Candidates Take Up Issues At Meeting

With the campaign for office in next Tuesday's municipal election in its final electric week, the numerous candidates seeking posts briefly aired their views on issues on Monday night before an audience of over 600 at the Newton League of Women Voters sponsored Candidates Night at Newton South High School.

Absent from Monday night's confrontation were six of the 53 candidates running for office. They were Rocco R. Magni, Stafford E. Davis, Thomas J. Quinn, Leonice B. Frasier, Harry L. Walen and Michael S. Wolfe.

The large number of candidates forced time limitations of their remarks so that a thorough debate of issues was not possible, but a glimpse of each candidate's personality and attitudes was certainly afforded the audience, a portion of which ap-

A MAYOR FOR THE PEOPLE

Newton's method of electing its Aldermen perpetrates the establishment. A better system would be one from each ward and another eight elected by the entire city in one contest. Mitchell worked with the League of Women Voters for charter study which would make this improvement possible.

Mitchell's petition to pay the Alderman $3000 was defeated, and so we have no contest for Ward Alderman in six of the eight wards, as no one wants to serve under the present systems, under which zoning hearings sometimes start at midnight.

Lukewarm Mayoralty Fight Seen Cause Of Apathy

40 Percent Of Total Voter Strength Expected To Go To Polls Tuesday

Only about 40 per cent of Newton's 47,113 eligible voters are expected to go to the polls for next Tuesday' municipal election.

The relatively small turnout predicted by political observers results from the fact that the mayoralty campaign has not been of such a nature as to arouse widespread public interest.

Mayor Monte G. Basbas is being opposed by Attorney George H. Mitchell, but Basbas, on the basis of his record of the past 22 months, is considered virtually certain to win reelection by a big margin.

However, the Mayor, who is taking nothing for granted, has made a vigorous campaign and today strongly urged Newton citizens to perform their civic duty by going to the polls and voting on Tuesday.

One side feature of Tuesday's balloting will be that Newton voters for the first time will make their choices on punch cards.

Secretary - Director Alan W. Licarie of the city election department last night assured those unfamiliar with the method of voting that additional personnel will be on duty at each polling place to demonstrate the procedure to them.

Actually, the procedure is relatively simple once it is explained. The Graphic carries an illustrated feature on the back page today, detailing the procedure.

If a person feels he or she has made a mistake and voted incorrectly, a second or third punch card may be obtained.

However, the voter must succeed on the first three tries. A fourth punch card cannot be secured.

Polling places will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m.

All persons in line at 8 p.m. will be permitted to vote.

Heaviest voting will occur between 5 and 8 p.m. in the early evening.

Those who can vote during the daytime hours were urged by election officials to do so in order to avoid possible delay during the final three-hour rush.

Battles will be decided Tuesday for 16 places on the Board of Aldermen and two seats on the School Committee.

Nine contests are being waged for posts on the Aldermanic Board and two for positions on the School Board.

Only two of the Aldermen-at-Large — William E. Hopkins and Jason Sacks of Ward 7 — are assured of reelection without opposition.

The unusually large num-

1280 Voters Added To City Rolls

There are 1280 new voters in Newton this year according to statistics compiled during the last registration period, the Election Commission reported.

According to figures released by Alan W. Licarie, executive secretary of the Election Commission, the new registered voters include 162 Republicans, 179 Democrats and 939 Independents.

During the registration period, from June 1 to Oct. 18, 15 registered voters switched their party affiliation from Democrat to Republican, and three Republicans switched to Democrat. Some 84 Democrats switched to unenrolled (Independent), while 25 Republicans did the same.

As usual, the busiest registration period was on the last day, with 382 voters signing up at the Election Commission.

Gala Hallowe'en Is Enjoyed By Kiddies

Thousands of Newton's school age youngsters were entertained at hundreds of parties held Tuesday as the city celebrated its 27th annual organized Halloween observance.

Hundreds of adults gave of their time and efforts to assure a safe and sane Halloween for the city's children.

Typical of the programs was that at the Williams School in Auburndale where a parade from the Lasell parking lot to the school opened the festivities.

John M. Livingston, the building chairman, reported that after the parade there was a musical program for all the children and a magician who performed for the first through third graders. The fourth, fifth and sixth graders attended a Fun House.

All children returned to their party rooms for refreshments, games and a costume show.

Working with Mr. Livingston in planning the party for the 300 children were Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wilson, Mrs. Stanley Margolin, Jack Crosby, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Movitz and William Chaisson.

The 295 children attending the Memorial School party had games and refreshments in classrooms from 7 to 7:30 p.m. At 7:30 grades 1-3 went to the gym for a Halloween Fair and prizes and grades 4-6 to the auditorium for a film. At 8 o'clock the programs were reversed.

Building chairman for Memorial was Louis S. Sebok. He was assisted by Dolores Rudnick, Ellis Dudelson, Barbara Feldstein, Arnie Lesberg, A. Applebaum and Bernie Feldstein.

Schools Praised For Handicap Work

Mrs. A. Berkowitz, president of the Newton chapter of the Massachusetts Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, commended the Newton Public Schools at Newton ACLD meeting held in the First Unitarian Church, West Newton, recently.

At that time, Dr. Joseph Massimo of the Division of Pupil Personnel Services, Miss Kaye Torrant, Dept. of Reading Specialists and Miss Marilyn Gordon, Department of Special Tutors outlined specific steps being taken by Newton schools to aid perpetually handicapped children.

The State Department of Education has already approved Newton's program for 50 percent reimbursement beginning Jan. 1, 1968, as provided by General Law Chapter 647 sec. 46K and 46L.

"Many school departments throughout the State," said Mrs. Berkowitz, "have been saying that nothing can be done until the guidelines for implementing the law were formulated by the Departments of Education, Mental Health, and Public Health. By the action you have taken to initiate a realistic program to help these children, and to help them now, you have set an example for the entire education community of Massachusetts."

ber of fights for places on the Board of Aldermen results from the fact that there are five openings for new Aldermen-at-Large.

Four of the present Aldermen-at-Large — William M. Glovsky of Ward 2, John P. Nixon of Ward 3, Warren A. Sutherland of Ward 4, and Charles F. Hovey of Ward 6 are retiring from office at the end of the year.

Jack M. Roberts, former Alderman - at - Large from Ward 8, already has resigned from the body.

Long-time School Committeewoman Grace C. Whitmore of Ward 3 and Committeeman Way Dong Woo of Ward 8 also are giving up the seats they now hold on the School Board, setting the stage for brisk contests to succeed them.

One of the stiffest battles is being waged for the two posts as Aldermen-at-Large from Ward 6. Alderman Hovey's coming retirement created one vacancy.

Contestants in a four-way fight are Alderman William L. Bruce who is seeking reelection, Attorney William B. Dockser and businessman Sidney T. Small, and Michael S. Wolfe.

Dockser and Small, regarded as the two top challengers for Hovey's seat, have both made extremely active campaigns.

Joseph M. McDonnell and Miss Adelaide B. Hall, seeking reelection as Aldermen-at-Large from Ward 1, are being challenged by funeral director Roger Magni.

Five candidates are hoping to win the seat of William M. Glovsky, who is stepping down from his position as Alderman-at - Large from Ward 2 at the end of the year, and possibly to displace Alderman Winslow C. Auryansent who is standing for another term.

Contenders in a six-way struggle for the two positions as Aldermen-at-Large from Ward 2 are Alderman Auryansen, Thomas B. Concannon Jr., a school teacher; business executive Stafford E. Davis, Attorney Peter F. Harrington, Attorney Glenn M. Shriberg and Attorney William H. Wolf.

Four candidates are battling for the two posts as Aldermen-at-Large from Ward 3. They are John F. Boyle Jr., well known civic leader; Alderman Melvin J. Dangel who is seeking reelection; contractor Thomas J. Quinn, Jr., and former Alderman Robert J. Tennant.

Four candidates, one of of them a woman, are involved in a hot fight for election as Aldermen-at-Large from Ward 4.

Alderman Sutherland is leaving office at the end of the year, while Alderman Louis I. Egelson Jr., is standing for another term.

In the fight with Egelson are John M. Boyle, an insurance agent, who is active in veteran affairs; Mrs. Leonice B. Frazier, a housewife and president of the Newton Traffic Policewomen's Association; and former Alderman David W. Jackson.

Franklin N. Flaschner and Harry L. Walen, present Aldermen-at-Large from Ward 5, are opposed by Victor M. Kumin, an engineer who is active in civic affairs.

Another interesting fight will be settled Tuesday for two places as Aldermen-at-Large from Ward 8. The candidates in a four-cornered contest are business executive Marshall B. Paisner, Attorney Eliot K. Cohen, Aldermanic President Wendell R. Bauckman who is seeking another term, and Gerald G. Aransky, nursing home administrator.

Ward Aldermen Andrew J. Magri of Ward 1, George L. Hicks of Ward 2, Edward C. Eehlein of Ward 5, Edward F. Dietz of Ward 6, H. James Shea, Jr., of Ward 7 and Alan S. Barkin of Ward 8 are unopposed for reelection.

Opponents in a battle for the position School Committeewoman Grace C. Whitmore is giving up as the School Board member from Ward 3 are Richard M. Douglas, chairman of the Humanities Department at Massachusetts Institute of Technology; and Eloise K. Houghton, former president of the League of Women Voters.

School Committeeman Edwin Hawkridge, Board member from Ward 5, is being challenged by Elinore B. Trowbridge, a lecturer in human relations and a psychology teacher for 25 years.

Alvin Mandell, a manager at Raytheon and an instructor at night at Northeastern University, and Henry K. Shor, a personnel director, are fighting for the seat from which School Committeeman Way Dong Woo is to retire as the School Board member from Ward 8.

School Committeemen Francis P. Frazier of Ward 1, Norma W. Mintz of Ward 2, Manuel Beckwith of Ward 4, Vincent P. Stanton of Ward 7 and board Chairman Harold J. Berman of Ward 6 are unopposed for reelection.

Licarie said the outside (ward) registration was about average this year, adding that the city will continue to offer the outside registration during registration periods.

He also said that with the Presidential primary slated for next April 30, registration will start Nov. 9 at the Election Commission and close March 30.

In other election news, Licarie said that applications are still being accepted at the Commission for precinct workers on election day. The hours are from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m., with lunch and dinner hours.

The new vote recorder units are on display in some supermarkets in the Garden City with girls from Newton College of the Sacred Heart volunteering to display and explain the function of the machines to voters.

Literature and, in some cases, portable visual aid machines, are on display in most Newton banks to familiarize voters with the new voting techniques.

Four Little Words

The memory of man is short. And, it seems, of all mankind, the memory of the great American public is shortest of all. The Vietnam dissenters, whether they are wide-eyed kids, opinion-moulding new columnists or retired generals, are among the worst offenders. They have forgotten four prophetic words:

"We will bury you."

Those chilling words were uttered by the leader of World Communism, Nikita Khrushchev, when he was at the height of his power. He meant exactly what he said. He meant that Communism would triumph over Democracy and the capitalistic system.

Just recently Secretary of State Dean Rusk was derided for defending the United States policy in Vietnam. He was accused of reviving the old Yellow Peril.

We do not believe that Secy. Rusk should be villified for describing a peril, no matter what its hue. Another man in the not too distant past described the same peril and he was not excoriated for it.

He said he believed in the so-called "domino theory," adding:

"China is big, looms so high just beyond the frontiers, that if South Vietnam went, it would not only give them an improved position for guerrilla assault on Malaya, but would also give the impression that the wave of the future in Southeast Asia was China and the Communists. So I believe it."

The man continued: "What I am concerned about is that Americans will get impatient and say because they don't like events in Southeast Asia or they don't like the government in Saigon, that we should withdraw. That only makes it easy for the Communists . . . we should stay."

That man was the late President John F. Kennedy.

He voiced his concern two months before his assassination and while he was escalating our aid and support to the South Vietnamese. As present day events have proved, President Kennedy's concern was justified.

This week one of the nation's leading critics of the U.S. policy in Vietnam is in that country on a two-week trip to see the war first-hand. He is retired Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, no stranger to war.

He believes the United States has been misdirecting its resources and energies to Southeast Asia for the past five years. He is more concerned with what happened to our own country as a consequence of our involvement in Vietnam.

We have no quarrel with his anxiety for our country. We, too, are concerned. But we feel our presence is required in Vietnam until an honorary peace can be negotiated. If we were not there, the first spadeful of earth would be turned in fulfillment of Krushchev's malevolent prophecy.

We hope that Gen. Gavin comes to that realization during his tour of the Vietnam battle area.

An Unwarranted Call

The recent call of the Massachusetts Teachers Association for the resignation or retirement of State Education Commissioner Owen B. Kiernan is patently absurd. We find absolutely no justification for it in this instance.

We do not always agree with Commr. Kiernan, but in his recent stand against teacher strikes, we do. He said at a conference of educators in West Harwich three weeks ago that teacher strikes represent "an attitude of let the public, the courts and the children be damned, and it is a first step toward anarchy."

Mrs. Helen F. Mara, president of the 37,000 member MTA, accused Kiernan of personal bias toward collective bargaining, "a condescending attitude toward teachers," all of which, she said, raises a serious question as to his value as chief executive officer for elementary and secondary education in Massachusetts.

Stung by the charge, Kiernan replied: "The issue is clear. Teacher strikes are unlawful in Massachusetts. Any teacher or teacher union official who teaches children to defy the law is no supporter of our democratic society."

We support collective bargaining and the right of workers to strike for what they believe is right and just. We support the right of teachers to bargain collectively in seeking higher wages and benefits. But we do not belevie the predicament of teachers in Massachusetts has ever or will ever reach the stage where a strike is justified.

Schools, after all, are run primarily for the children, the students, and they are the big losers when there is teacher strife. We feel that the primary obligation of a teacher is to the pupil and his teaching—not to labor considerations. We think our teachers are among the most valuable assets we possess here in our Commonwealth. We want to see them well paid and we think they are. But we deplore the use of strike tactics by members of such an honorable profession. We feel there is a better way.

We do not feel that Commr. Kiernan should be attacked for supporting what he believes is right educationally.

National Book Week Underway At City Library

In conjunction with the Newton Free Library's week long celebration of National Book Week, (October 29th through Nov. 4th), a Children's Carnival of Hobbies is being held at the Nonantum Branch Library on Bridge Street for all Newton Children and their parents and friends.

Boys and girls who offered to show their hobbies sat at distinctively decorated booths to share their individual collections on Wednesday, November 1st. from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m.

On Thursday afternoon, Nov. 2nd at 3:30 a group of children from the Lincoln-Eliot School under the supervision of Miss Janice Hyland will put on a puppet play, "The Frog Prince" as their contribution to the week long celebration.

Children from the Carr School under the direction of Mrs. Midge Merrill, School Librarian, and pupils from the Lincoln-Eliot School under the direction of Librarian, Mrs. Melanie Ehrhart as well as pupils from St. Jean's and Our Lady's Schools are all helping to celebrate Book Week.

Everyone is invited to "Take Off With Books" per instruction of the 1967 National Book Week slogan.

Political Highlights

However, surveys show that between 25 and 30 per cent of the persons interviewed declined to say how they will vote.

These are not undecided, on-the-fence voters. They are people who have made their choice between White and Mrs. Hicks but are keeping their intentions to themselves.

This means that the votes of somewhere between 50,000 and 60,000 of the anticipated 200,000 men and women who will turn out for next Tuesday's election are not reflected in the polls because of their refusal to reveal their choice for Mayor.

While there are some people in every election campaign who decline to tell the poll-takers how they will vote, they very rarely number as high as 25 or 30 per cent.

Usually, too, they split in about the same manner as do the persons who cast straw votes in a poll. That may not be the case this time.

If the great bulk of the "silent" vote is destined for one candidate, it could affect the outcome of the election.

Political analysts, of course, can form their judgments only on the basis of the poll returns tabulated from the replies of people who are willing to tell where they stand and how they will vote.

The results of the survey made by this writer pointed to a much closer contest between Secretary White and Committeewoman Hicks than was indicated in the poll taken by Channel 7.

In fact, the race shapes up as tight enough at this stage so that a strong finishing spurt by Mrs. Hicks or a slump by White in the closing days of the campaign could change its outcome.

Both White and Mrs. Hicks were found to have big pockets of strength in sections of Boston.

White will make his best showings in West Roxbury, Brighton, Allston, the Back Bay, Beacon Hill, the South End and parts of Roxbury, according to the straw vote.

Mrs. Hicks will run well in Jamaica Plain, South Boston, East Boston, the North End, Charlestown and the Mission Hill section of Roxbury.

Indications are that White and Mrs. Hicks will split Dorchester, with White running ahead in some sections and Mrs. Hicks in others.

The poll returns reflected a far closer fight in Dorchester, Roslindale and Hyde Park than did the Channel 7 survey.

If a large majority of the people who have made up their minds but will not divulge their choice for Mayor are actually voting for Mrs. Hicks, she can carry three of the five Dorchester wards and make a strong run for it in Roslindale and Hyde Park.

This writer found no evidence whatever that White is as far ahead of Mrs. Hicks in Hyde Park as the Channel 7 poll showed.

However, the trend does appear to favor White. Whether Mrs. Hicks can change that trend in the time remaining is uncertain. As this is written, White must be rated the favorite. But Mrs. Hicks is by no means out of the fight.

The poll indicates that White has gained and that Mrs. Hicks lost ground during the prolonged debate over her action in promising a $10,000-a-year salary for Boston police officers after three years of service and then telling the firefighters she would do the same for them.

This has been especially true in areas where there are large numbers of home-owners who are fearful of a jump in Boston's tax rate and an increase in their own real estate tax bills.

As Secretary White himself declared, it's unfortunate that so much of the campaign centered on one issue and that other matters which should have been debated and discussed were pushed into the background.

Under a new law enacted last year, police officers in all cities and town throughout Massachusetts, like other municipal employees, have the right of collective bargaining.

Patrolmen on the Boston force have not yet accepted the raise offered them by the bargaining agents representing Mayor Collins.

While the exact offers made to them have not been made public, members of the Hub police department above the rank of patrolman have been hiked to the same salaries received by the MDC police.

It is assumed that the patrolmen were offered the same pay as MDC patrolmen and rejected it. Such an offer would have boosted their yearly compensation to slightly more than $8000. They turned down that offer.

With the existing trend across the country, the likelihood is that Boston patrolmen will be getting close to $$10,000 annually within three years regardless of who the next Mayor is.

Both White and Mrs. Hicks are right on some points in their dispute as to whether federal funds would be available to cover police raises.

Under the provisions of a bill already approved by the national House $75 million would be available to the cities of the nation for improvements and innovations in their police departments.

Part of that money could be used for building new police stations and purchasing new equipment. None could be used for paying the salaries of police officers except those in training.

However, Senator John McClellan of Arkaansas, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, is the sponsor of a bill now before the Senate which would allow federal funds to be used for police raises.

If funds are provided at this session of Congress under the crime-in-the-streets bill, they will be used essentially for planning improvements in police departments.

U. S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark is hopeful that $300 million will be provided for this purpose for the fiscal year which starts next July 1. This would give meaningful aid to the cities.

The political stakes will be extremely high for both White and Mrs. Hicks next Tuesday.

If White wins election as Mayor of Boston, he will be projected into the forefront as a likely Democratic nominee for Governor in 1970.

If he loses, he will still be Secretary of State, but his chances of achieving the Governorship three years from now will be lessened.

If Mrs. Hicks prevails, she not only will be Boston's first woman Mayor but will automatically attain national prominence.

White and Mrs. Hicks are both attorneys. White is serving his fourth term and seventh year as Secretary of State; Mrs. Hicks her third term and sixth year as a member of the Boston School Committee where she has been an outspoken opponent of busing of children out of their home neighborhoods.

One thing this mayoralty campaign definitely has established is that a vast number of women do not necessarily consider the office of Mayor a man's job and that they will vote for a woman.

In every area that had been polled Mrs. Hicks received a higher portion of votes from the women than from men. In some sections the percentage of feminine votes she polled was extremely high.

This has caused some political writers to be conservative in their forecasts since the women voters substantially outnumber the men in Boston, and they might produce an upset in this election.

The polls and surveys will become meaningless when the vote returns are tabulated next Tuesday night showing whether Kevin H. White or Louise Day Hicks will be the next Mayor of Boston.

For those who will be watching the returns on television or listening to them on radio, the likelihood is that Mrs. Hicks will take an early lead in the contest.

She appears to be strong in the sections which normally are the first to report their returns. The critical question likely to develop on Tuesday night is whether she can hold her initial advantage. That will depend on the results in the big outlying wards where the voting is heavy and the polling places usually are late in tabulating their counts.

Cleric Warns U.S. Of "Dove-Like Naivete"

In these days of "anti" demonstrations, lawlessness, violence and war, the refreshing voice of Dr. Lee, of Tremont Temple Baptist Church, Boston, spoke out from his city pulpit in an exhortation to Christian Americans to "be as wise as a serpent."

In a sermon delivered last Sunday (Oct. 29), he said, "It is a Christian's obligation to be a peacemaker and reconciler, but not with a dove-like naivete which overlooks the war-like intentions of an aggressor."

"Indeed," he pointed out, "Jesus warned about the inevitability of war and the rumors of war throughout history because of the depravity and deceitfulness of human nature. Christ predicted a catastrophic crisis before His return to the world to usher in the Kingdom of God and the reign of righteousness."

The foolishly optimistic Christian who thinks that one world government, presumably communist, would maintain an eternal peace, understands neither history nor human nature, he warned.

"What practical service can the Christian offer a bunch of belligerents?" he asked.

"He can tell both sides that in the sight of God they are wrong and once they have had enough punishment from each other he'll try to save what is left of their faces by mediating between them!"

In the case of the war in Vietnam, he asked that the churches quit asking only the President of the United States to negotiate and would attach equal blame to the belligerents—the Communists in their craze for world power.

"The Church is meant to influence society and not to intimidate. Therefore, in a democratic nation Christians should seek every legitimate means to present the Christian point of view but without violence and coercion. If, for instance, the Christian conscience becomes uneasy about the conduct of the Vietnam war, representation can be made to the President or else later Christians can exercise their voting right to replace him, but no Christian will burn his draft card in an act of subversive defiance of his own government. The Church is not designed to be a saboteur of a nation," he said.

Considering the conduct of the "Hippies" and the free-thinking students, he asked about their future if they opened the flood gates to communism. He also speculated on the possibilities if some of his fellow churchmen, who join in the protests against the Pentagon, should hold an open-air meeting in Red Square.

"It is unrealistic to ignore or undertone Communist revolutionary program for world conquest. The question basically is not whether American forces should quit South Vietnam but whether young Americans want to quit the preservation of their own freedom by overthrowing their own government."

"Paul says that the Christian is given not the spirit of fear but of sound mind," he continued. "This means that he tries to see things as they really are—fair and square, historically and factually, and and in true perspective without prejudice. Where blame is to be attached he must have the courage to speak out, yet always with respect for all parties concerned. We live in an age of half-read books and half-baked thinkers and a lot of those who head up anti-government, anti-society and anti-everything crusades have failed to consider all the consequences."

"It it the duty of every Christian to strive for peace without committing treason against his own country, and to seek for a peace which will safeguard for others those freedoms essential to the dignity of man and the fulfillment of a meaningful existence."

Many Candidates To Speak At "Night" Here Nov. 5th

The West Newton religious community represented by their Social Concerns and Action Committees announces final arrangements for the "Get-Out-And-Meet-Your-Candidates" Night, Sunday evening, November 5, at the Unitarian Society Parish Hall.

Churches involved in cosponsoring this unique interreligious endeavor are the Second Congregational Church, the Myrtle Baptist Church and the First Unitarian Society, all of West Newton. Co-ordinators are Mrs. David J. Connor, Rev. Eddie S. O'Neal, both of West Newton, and Mrs. Charles Levy of Auburndale. Mrs. Connor is presently chairman of the Social Concerns Committee of the Second Congregational, Mr. O'Neal is minister of the Myrtle Baptist and Mrs. Levy is publisher of the Social Concerns Newsletter at the First Unitarian Society.

Thirty candidates for citywide offices have officially accepted invitations issued to all 38 contested candidates to be voted on in West Newton's Ward 3. Citizens from other areas of the city who are voting on many of the same candidates will also have this final opportunity to meet and hear some of their future city and school planners.

"In supplementing other such forums already being conducted in the city," the coordinators stated, "this side of the city is being given the rare opportunity to meet the city-wide candidates in their own 'backyard,' to say nothing of meeting their own Ward office seekers.

"As socially concerned and active members in issues in nearby communities, it is just as vital that we concern ourselves with promoting a healthy political climate in our own community. This cosponsorship by unquestionably non-partisan and nonpolitical organizations is an ideal atmosphere within which to present candidates for exposure to the community. We firmly believe that this is 'Social Concern and Action' at its most meaningful best."

Notwithstanding the "eleventh hour" issue of invitations 25 candidates were eager to again meet with the voters and rearranged already full schedules to appear.

Format for the evening's program will cover 2½ hours beginning promptly at 7:30 p.m. Mayoral candidates will make 10-minute presentations each with a five-minute question and answer period. Aldermen from Ward 3 will have 3-minute presentations followed by a 10-minute question and answer period; aldermen-at-large 2-minute presentations with 30-minutes for questions and answers.

At approximately 9:15 intermission will be called for a Cider and Donut break. Meeting will resume with School Committeemen three-minute presentations and a 25-minute question and answer period from the floor.

Advisors to the coordinators are Rev. William Blair of W. Newton, assistant minister of the Second Congregational Church; Dr. Leslie T. Pennington, minister of the First Unitarian Society; and Mr. H. Peter Karoff of West Newton, chairman of the Social Concerns Committee at the First Unitarian Church.

Moderator selected for the evening is Mr. Geoffrey R. Stoughton of West Newton, formerly affiliated with national and regional radio and television. Mr. Stoughton is a member of the Second Congregational Church and presently manager of radio station WNTN, and is currently serving as a member of the board directors of the Newton Association for TB and Health, the Newton Red Cross and Kiwanis Club.

Sacred Heart College Sets Organ Recital

Newton College of the Sacred Heart will sponsor a concert Nov. 3 featuring Anthony Newman presenting an all-Bach program on the pedal harpsichord and organ — the instruments for which Bach's music was written.

The concert in the college chapel is sponsored by the Janet Stuart Guild for the benefit of the bulding fund. It is open to the public.

Dr. Newman, who is 24, is a member of the faculty at the Juilliard School of Music in New York City. His two-part program will feature preludes, fantasies, fugues and trio sonatas.

Histadrut Sets Donor Luncheon Date On Nov. 8

The Annual Donor Luncheon of the Women's Division, Israel Histadrut, will be held on Wednesday afternoon, November 8, at the Chestnut Hill Country Club, Newton.

Mary Wolfman, Boston musical personality, will appear at this luncheon, with the Ted Phillips Instrumental Trio. She will present for the first time in this area the song "Yerushalayim Shel Zahav," ("Jerusalem of Gold").

Other songs will include numbers from Broadway, especially "Cabaret," the best of Korea, Greece, the Mediterranean, Old Jerusalem and New Israel, and one or two Yiddish and other European Folk Songs.

For information and reservations please contact either the Israel Histadrut Office 185 Devonshire Street, Boston, telephone number 542-1448, or the luncheon chairman, Mrs. Allen L. Gordon, 507 Ward Street, Newton Centre, 332-1283.

Lee Loumos Says:

It has been several years since I can remember a reaction from TV viewers so immediate and so positive as that which greeted Sylvania's presentation of the Melvyn Douglas play, "Do Not Walk Gentle Into That Good Night" week before last. To begin with, the play was given without interruption. Just as important, the one commercial that preceded it (although five minutes in length) was strictly factual, with no scientific or cartoon gobbledygook. More than any other similar blurb I have heard, it was well received by both men and women. Primarily, it explained Sylvania's vital role in the development and manufacture of its color tube, and how the tube is used by many other makers. There was also some "nuts and bolts" explanation about the fine Sylvania set which went home to many people. I hope you will forgive me a slight twinge of pride for my Sylvania line.

Diversity In Techniques

By KATE SOLOMON

Freedom! Flexibility! Creativity! Ingenuity! — The English Curriculum at Newton High houses them all.

Unlike most NHS courses, each English class reflects the teacher's personality and imaginative perceptions. In no other subject will one find two classes of the same level so completely different.

The English teacher not only has the choice of emphasis and order of material. He has access to any number of books: modern—classical, humorous—tragic, play—novel; each category with a myriad different topics.

And writing, which is an essential ingredient of any English course, can be taught in an infinite number of ways, for certainly variety of style is present in any language.

Room for Diversity

Newton High's English teachers derive enlough freedom from the curriculum to put into practice their own views on education. For example, Mr. George Bower molds his course around inducing the students to think; he wants them to be confused so they will have to discover why, have to make sense out of a mess of seemingly unrelated facts. Mrs. Miriam Goldstein on the other hand strives to make her students more aware of, "the challenge and joy of reading and writing," strives to help each student, use his writing to communicate more perceptively and imaginatively."

Mr. Michael Morris, also an English teacher at Newton High, attempts to teach the student an awareness of himself and those around him. He views literature as "man's soul on paper," and feels education should be, "more oriented toward the individual and his needs."

Miss Coleen Krebs perceives her role as an English teacher differently. She strives to help the student get beyond the accepted answer, get involved "Getting involved is basic to the greatest joys of life," she commented. Literature is one of the areas where people can share sensitivities."

Mr. Lawrence Rothman feels it is his job to "help the student improve his reading, writing, speaking and listening; to teach him to be able to express himself; his thoughts, experiences and feelings." He also desires to lessen the 'artificial gap" between school and life. According to him, the two should be inseparable.

Curriculum Requirements

There are certain requirements in the English curriculum, but as Mrs. Goldstein says, "The imaginative teacher uses these but as a spring board, a point of departure."

The teacher is expected to include in his course, some coverage of novels, plays, poetry, essays, and a Shakespearean play. He is supposed to assign various "uniform outside reading" and "individual outside reading."

Beyond that, the only requirement is that the teacher follow a certain sequence. For example, the course of study for the English Department states that, "The junior course of Curriculum I develops understanding of theme in various types of writing and the ability to organize the longer paper." The senior course on the other hand, "deals with attitude, tone, and other refinements of good reading and writing."

According to Miss Mary Lanigan, head of the English Department, the curriculum course of study is mostly just a guideline to teachers. It helps to acquaint them with the sequence of the three year program and thus to avoid needless repetition and confusion.

"English is a progressive subject," she said. "The teacher's main function is to help the student build on what he has already learned. The program itself is essentially flexible and is constantly being revised."

Weeknesses In The Curriculum

The only limitations teachers find is the overcrowded rooms and the insufficient book lists. Both Mr. Bower and Miss Krebs emphasize the hinderance large classes impose on communication and individual attention. "Every English class should have, at the most, fifteen students," commented Mr. Bower.

Most teachers agree that the English book room houses a good selection of literature. But obviously, the supply is not limitless and teachers cannot always teach the book of their choosing.

In addition, the teacher must decide in the spring when he needs which book and thus cannot incorporate into his class plan the needs of the individual students he will teach. Thirdly, all teachers cannot obtain the books when they want them, for the limited number of sets may already be in use.

Miss Lanigan states that she sees two improvements in the English Curriculum. She hopes that students will eventually be able to choose two years of elective English, choose either a general writing course, a poetry course, a drama course, or a course about the modern novel, the classical novel etc. She also hopes that in the future students will have more opportunity to work on their own, to assume some of the responsibility of their own education.

A Satisfied Faculty

In general, Newton High English teachers feel that the English program is liberal enough so that if one wants to make changes, one can. "Nothing is irrelevent to English," said Mr. Rothman. "It is the most flexible course in the school system." Miss Krebs added that teachers at Newton, "do not feel the school breathing down their necks."

Says Mrs. Goldstein, "I can only say that in my many years at Newton High I have never taught the same English course twice. Each time, the course of study, whether revised or unrevised, has given me and my classes sufficient latitude to follow our own bent and still fulfill the requirements. There are just more than twenty-one ways of looking at a blackbird, and, with a list of readings as diversified and open-ended as ours, if a teacher and a class are in bind, they can't just blame the course of study."

Communiy Council Speaker Discusses Students Values

The Newton Community Council's 31st Annual Fall Delegate Meeting was held Thursday evening, October 26, at the Second Church, West Newton.

The Rev. Myron B. Bloy, Jr., Episcopal Chaplain at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and executive director of The Church Society for College Work spoke on "The Revolution in Student Values — its Meaning, Power, and Problems."

Delegates from 105 organizations and agencies in Newton, which comprise the Newton Community Council, attended this lecture-seminar.

After Rev. Bloy spoke, the delegates attended seminars conducted by community leaders for discussion, after which the group discussion leaders gave their reports which were then assembled, discussed and answered by Rev. Bloy.

Community leaders, and Council representatives were as follows: Judge Julian Yesley, Mrs. Walter E. Dobler, Richard C. Howland, Mother Stanton, Mrs. Matthew Jefferson, Francis C. Chase, the Rev. Prentis Moore, Mrs. Maurice Crevoshay, Joseph C. Skinner, Dr. Sylvia Krakow, Mrs. John Morse, Jr., William A. Lincoln, the Rev. Walter E. Dobler, Mrs. Irene K. Thresher, George M. Shannon, Dr. Charles E. Brown, Mrs. Robert G. Fisher, Albert R. Beisel, Jr., William L. Bruce, Max Wexler, Paul H. Pierce, Miss Helen Finnerty, Mrs. Walter D. Hill and Donald C. Root.

Rev. Bloy described the "guilt culture" of the 1950's as characterized by a lack of rebelliousness and social powerlessness. In fact editorials and the establishment of that time were abjuring the youth to turn their attention from insurance plans and security and challenged them to take some risks.

Rev. Bloy described the new student of today as a protest type of personality and academically serious. The parents tended to have above average education and income. Even though parents and children have a close relationship the parents show status anxiety and tend to be more flexible.

He stated that the dissenting student is still very much in the minority. He stated 50% of the population is now under 26 years of age and more than 40% of those of college age do in fact attend college, and the percentage is rising.

"There are 6,000,000 students in 2,000 institutions of higher education and perhaps only 5% or 300,000 are right and left oriented dissenters. Two kinds of dissenting student: the activist and the culturally alienated. The popular notion fails to make this distinction. He is seen as both Bohemian and political activist, he is seen as disaffected from his society, influenced by radical ideas, an experimenter in drugs and sex, unconvential in behavior, frustrated and unhappy, a failure. They arouse in adults such ambivolent feelings as envy, resentment, admiration, repulsion, nostalgia, and guilt," he said.

Rev. Bloy also said the student protest is as American as apple pie and may come in the nick of time. "Ours is a time when ideology nas finally given way to pragmatism (two strong American themes), where we don't have (in our heated-up culture) a passionate vision of authentic life which can use the new freedom and awareness which technology has created.

"Student protesters struggle for a viable vision; they are not just content with (marxism or capitalism); they are, in fact, prophets, calling for the recovery of a sacral vision of authentic life which they themselves have not seen, but which they passionately believe exists.

"We, especially in Churches and Synagogues, should give them support, learn from their prophetic passion, and help them to recover the vision they seek, which we hold hidden, and to celebrate it as the authentic vision of man's maturity.

"Such support is certainly given to a dangerous movement, one which could ultimately be destructive rather than healing and renewing, but it is a risk worth taking; the world is almost as desperate as they picture it. We must realize, as Whitehead says, "The major advances in civilization are processes that all but wreck the societies in which they occur."

NEWTON STUDENT SAYS HE'LL RENOUNCE U.S. CITIZENSHIP

A PACIFIST STUDENT at Brown University, John R. Stahl of 37 Hancock St., Auburndale, said yesterday he would leave for Canada tomorrow to renounce his American citizenship because of his "disgust" with U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Stahl, 20, made his decision, he said, while watching the antiwar demonstration in Washington last week. He took no part in the rally but was grabbed at random along with 35 other persons and thrown into a truck by military police, he said.

The son of a Methodist minister in Auburndale, Stahl said, "It is terribly sad to realize that you no longer respect your country, its leaders and institutions."

NEW PROF. LOGUE DOESN'T RULE OUT POLITICS

THE FORMER BOSTON renewal chief, Edward J. Logue, is following his ex-boss, Mayor John F. Collins, into the academic world, but he has not ruled out a political future for himself. Logue, named yesterday to be visiting Maxwell Professor of Government at Boston University, effective immediately, told newsmen, "This appointment doesn't end or begin my political life." He noted the appointmend did not carry tenure.

JET AIRLINER BLOWS 3 TIRES AT LOGAN AIRPORT

A PAN AMERICAN WORLD AIRWAYS 707 jetliner blew three tirs last night in landing at Logan International Airport. The passengers evacuated the plane without injury as it came to a halt on grass at the end of the runway.

The plane was damaged slightly, airport officials said. Full details of the incident, including the origin of the flight, were not made available.

WILLIAMS STUDENTS WARNED OF EXPULSIONS

WILLIAMS COLLEGE students who interfere with Marine Corps recruiters on campus face possible expulsion, the college warned yesterday. The warning was issued by the Faculty Discipline Committee in preparation for a visit today by a team of Marine officers. The college enrollment is 1,250.

The officers will conduct a program of interviews for Officers Candidate School and other Marine programs at the college office of career counseling. One protest group indicated it was considering a demonstration against the presence of the Marines.

"TOURISTS, STAY AWAY FROM N.E.," SAYS EXECUTIVE

The chairman of Raytheon Co. urged tourists Wednesday to stay out of New England and leave it for those "who have chosen to live and work here." Charles F. Adams said tourists were keeping potential engineering students away from New England universities.

"Does it add to the contentment of these gifted people we would like to attract here", he said, "to have to stand in line at a ski lift behind a group from Indiana, to wade through the clutter of a Cape Cod beach that was deposited by citizens of Kentucky, and to breathe the exhaust gas generated by cars from 44 other states while they park in a traffic jam?"

POPE TO UNDERGO SURGERY SATURDAY

THE THREE DOCTORS attending Pope Paul VI announced late last night they will operate "in the next few days" to correct an enlarged prostate gland that has made the 70-year-old pontiff uncomforable and occasionally feverish for almost two months. Informed Vatican sources said the surgery has tentatively been scheduled for Saturday.

Presumably, the physicians will perform a prostatectomy—removal of the prostate gland. This is fairly common surgical procedure for men of the Pope's age. It is not particularly serious. A medical bulletin said the Pope was in "good condition," ready for surgery and that everything has been prepared to perform the operation in a special three-room suite on the fourth floor of the papal palace.

SWEEPING AMERICAN VICTORIES IN VIET ANNOUNCED

AMERICAN OFFICIALS reported yesterday sweeping victories in South Vietnam that killed 1,722 Communists and the eighth consecutive day of massive air strikes against the Hanoi-Haiphong area.

The American high command claimed a major military victory in the three-day batle of Loc Ninh, 70 miles north of Saigon near the Cambodian border. It said 369 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were killed. Headquarters also announced the termination of three military operations in the northern quarter which killed 1,353 other Communists. The operations were code named "Kingfisher," "Ardmore" and "Fremont."

JACKIE GOES TO RUINS OF COMBODIA TODAY

JACQUELINE KENNEDY arrived in Bangkok, Thailand, yesterday for an overnight stop on her way to fulfill a girlhood dream by visiting the ruins of the ancient temple of Angkor deep in the jungles of Cambodia. The widow of President John F. Kennedy flew in from Rome accompanied by Lord Harlech of Britain, whose name has been linked romantically with her despite their denials.

The former First Lady, Harlech, Michael Forrestal, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bartlett were to fly to Phnom Penh, Cambodia, today abord a U.S. Air Force C54 transport.

ISRAEL READY TO NEGOTIATE PEACE DIRECTLY

PREMIER LEVI ESHKOL of Israel said yesterday efforts in the United Nations to resolve the Middle East crisis apparently are getting nowhere and he offered to negotiate peace directly with the Arab states "jointly or separately." He said he was prepared to meet at any time with King Hussein of Jordan, in Jerusalem or in the Jordanian capital of Amman, to talk peace.

There was no immediate reaction from Hussein, but in Cairo, an official spokesman warned that Egypt would use a policy of resistance and, if necessary, retaliation against Israel if international efforts to settle the Middle East dispute by negotiation failed.

15 P.C. JUMP IN SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS OK'd

THE SENATE FINANCE Committee yesterday approved a 15 per cent increase in Social Security benefits for 23 million Americans. It would be financed by at least an $84 increase in maximum annual individual payroll deductions.

The increased benefits would total $4.7 billion. To pay for them, maximum paycheck deductions on Jan. 1 would be raised from $290.40 to $374.40 a year. The new figure takes into account a higher percentage of withholding and a broadened tax base to the first $7,800 earned in a year. The tax base might be broadened considerably more in the final version of the bill.

LBJ SAYS PROTESTERS SPUR HANOI PROPAGANDA

PRESIDENT JOHNSON, vowing to continue his course in Vietnam, said yesterday that antiwar demonstrators would understand they are not contributing to peace if they looked at the propaganda Hanoi was making out of their protests.

Johnson, at an unscheduled news conference, said almost scornfully that if the demonstrators knew what the Communists were spreading around the world about antiwar protests, "they would see that they are not contributing to the peace that everyone honestly seeks. We are not going to continue struggling for limited objectives, to keep from widening the war to deter aggression and to permit self determination.

Designer, Crew Chief Named By Country Players

David Wolf has been selected for the third consecutive year to design the sets for the Newton Country Players' December production, "Catch Me If You Can," a murder mystery comedy to be presented at Meadowbrook Junior High School on Dec. 8 and 9.

A patent attorney by profession, Mr. Wolf has designed sets for "The Deadly Game," "Inherit the Wind," "Make a Million," "Come Blow Your Horn," and assisted in other Newton Country Players productions such as "Damn Yankees," "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," and "Can Can."

David Wolf is a graduate of Boston Latin School, University of Massachusetts, and Harvard Law School. He has also done postgraduate work in engineering at Northeastern University.

Mr. Joel Gordon has for the fourth year been named crew chief for the fun-packed comedy "Catch Me If You Can," and will also be in charge of lighting. An offset printer, he worked backstage for the Newton Country Players' productions of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," was in charge of lights, props, and scenery, and has had extensive experience in community theatre work.

He also worked in "Damn Yankees," "Can Can," and "Come Blow Your Horn." Mr. Gordon is a graduate of Newton South High School, spent two years at Northeast Institute, and has studied electronics.

Petkun Participates In Archeological Find

Richard Petkun of Harvard University, a West Newton resident, was one of 37 American and Turkish investigators who recently discovered remains of Early Bronze Age farmers hidden in giant jars.

Excavating a cemetery near Sardis, one of the six great cities of the ancient world, where King Croesus once ruled the Lydian Kingdom, the archeologists found graves in which several dead had been placed in jars five to six feet high. Pottery and metal objects were found mixed with the bones.

Library Displays Works Of Noted Cape Glass Craftsman

Cape Cod, noted for its Sandwich Glass since 1825, is Bill's home territory, and it may be that his newly developed sandwich-process window pane will take its place in the history of glass.

It is hard to believe that the intricately designed, colored patterns start with just plain window glass. In 1965 Bill did some experimenting with glass and kilns. He developed a sandwiching process during which the glass is first fired at 1500 degrees for five hours, then cooled for forty hours. When the glass comes down to room temperature, it is finished and ready to be removed from the mold.

The exhibit at the Newton Library includes a step-by step display of the various stages of the sandwiching process from the cutting of the window panes and creating of the color design to placing the finished pieces on the table. Also on view are a number of representative finished pieces.

Several outstanding museums are already collecting Sydenstricker Glass, among them the Museum of Modern Art in New York; the Toronto Museum of Art; the Tiffany Museum in Winter Park, Florida; the Chrysler Museum in Provincetown; and the Bennington Museum in Vermont.

Two American Embassies (One in Russia, one in Central Africa) use dessert services of Sydenstricker Glass and the famous Chillingsworth restaurant in Brewster, Bill's home town, of course has a service of his glass.

Bill is a graduate of Orleans High School and of Boston University. Today he creates his glass in his Orleans Barncellar, where he keeps his shop open until Christmas, closing in January for a few months of concentrated work piece of glass is a hand-made to build up his inventory. Each product, and Bill says he long ago had to stop taking orders on special items for pre-Christmas delivery.

The library staff has brought together a particularly fine group of books on glass of various periods and types, including American cut and engraved glass, Tiffany glass, stained glass, art glass nouveau, old time bottles, modern glass, pressed glass, and of course the famous Sandwich glass.

The exhibit, including a few choice examples of rare Portland and Sandwich glass owned by Mrs. John Snyder of the Staff, will remain on view through November 10.

Rattigan of Newton, Thomas J. Ryan of Auburndale, Richard H. Stanton of Belmont, John F. Sullivan of South Braintree, and Thomas E. Twitchell of Wellesley Hills.

Mrs. Helen Copman of Newton and Elaine Stone, buyer and fashion coordinator of Lenard's in Chestnut Hill, are making final arrangements for B'nai B'rith Mayflower Chapter's dinner and fashion show scheduled for Wednesday, evening, Nov. 8th, to be held at the Chateau Garad in Brookline.

Mrs. Merle Lock and Mrs. Larence Phillips, both of Newton, are co-chairmen of this event. Elaine Stone will comment the fashion show. Included in the door prizes are short vacations at Grossingers and Magnolia Manor.

William A. Durbin Jr., the son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Durbin of 161 Pine Ridge road, Waban, has recently been accepted into Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic honor society, at Dartmouth College, according to word received here from the school.

Durbin, a senior at Dartmouth, is a graduate of Newton South High School. He has been active in the Ledyard Canoe Club and the Film Society and on the Dartmouth Winter Carnival Council.

The Alpha Chapter of New Hampshire of Phi Beta Kappa, which was established at Dartmouth in 1787, is the fourth oldest in the country.

Faculty Assignment To William Irwin

William Irwin, of 18 Nortgate park, West Newton, a new member of the faculty at Framingham State College has been named associate director of the Graduate and Continuing Studies program there.

The first full time instructor of physical education for men at Framingham State, Mr. Irwin won his bachelor of arts and master of education degrees from Boston University. He was a teacher and a coach in Portland and Westbrook, Maine, and also in Belmont before joining the faculty at Framingham.

Schools -

When a healthy child, whose I.Q. may range from average to genius, has an uneven learning pattern, performs noticeably below his potential in school, and shows particular difficulty in the language areas where he frequently reverses letters or jumbles their sequence in words, he is considered to be dyslexic—he has an actual inability to learn language by the usual methods.

He can overcome this inability with understanding teaching and the use of reinforcing techniques. Usually only one or two years of intensive specialized help is needed for him to master his handicap. Without this help, and without the diagnosis, he is generally mislabelled lazy or stupid, and often develops emotional problems as a result of his frustration. He thus becomes a problem to his home, his classroom, and his community.

..."The anticipated prevention of failure through reinforcement at the kindergarten level and with the use of transition classes, if necessary, such as outlined by Dr. Massimo is by far a more ideal solution to the problem," advised Mrs. Berkowitz.

"The entire kindergarten population of Newton will be screened," reported Dr. Massimo. "An attempt is being made to validate specific diagnostic criteria for predicting learning failures and to find the least costly and cumbersome successful battery of tests."

A search for those children in the upper grades who may qualify under the perceptually handicapped law will be underway very shortly. Marilyn Gordon explained that many of these older children accepted under this program could be aided by a tutoring program under her direction. She informed those present that she has been screening additional qualified personnel to supplement her existing staff and will be conducting an "Institute on Learning Disabilities."

This institute will consist of 14 meetings, two each week for seven weeks, and will be held at the new Burr Elementary School beginning on Nov. 1.

Certain aspects of many linguistic approaches now meeting with success at the language clinic were outlined by Miss Kaye Torrent.

She said that some of these have been successful in treating specific language disabilities but cautioned that no one method could be used since each child may exhibit deficiencies in different areas of perceptual ability and thus an individualized program will have to be formulated.

Mrs. Norma Mintz, School Committee member; Mrs. Anne Carr, principal of Williams School; concerned parents, teachers, and educational specialists participated in a general discussion of many problems which must be resolved in order to help the perceptually handicapped child.

In answer to a parent with a child in private school who desires to have her return to public school under a special program, Dr. Massimo said, "We will work out some way to help your daughter. Contact me at my office. I am available for consultation with every parent who has a child with a special problem."

It was also brought out by Dr. Massimo that he is having meetings with all the principals. When asked about reaching every classroom teacher to sensitize them to the special needs of these children he stated, "We will do all we can, however, the yearly teacher turnover will be a continuing problem in this area." The parents were told to seek the aid of the school principal for resolving any particular situations which may arise.

When questioned about ACLD Mrs. Berkowitz summarized some of its many activities on the local, state and national levels.

The Newton ACLD was instrumental in forming committee to discuss the broad aspects of perceptually handicapped children.

Members of this committee which has met three times during the past four months are: Dr. Charles Brown, superintendent of schools; Dr. J. Bernard Everett, assistant superintendent of schools; Mrs. A. Berkowitz, Newton ACLD; Helen Brievogel, Department of Physical Education; Marilyn Gordon, Special Education Tutors; Albert Hurwitz, Department of Art Instruction; Dr. Joseph Massimo, Division of Pupil Services; Dr. Lawrence W. Macdonald, optometrist; Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Morris, Newton ACLD; Dr. Thomas Peebles, pediatrician; James Remely, Department of Music Instruction; Dr. William E. Stone, director, Newton Mental Health Center; Mr. and Mrs. David Rubin, Newton ACLD; Mrs. Sidney Spill, Newton ACLD; Kaye Torrent, reading specialists; Mrs. David Winn, Newton ACLD.

Since its inception last March, Massachusetts ACLD has sponsored conferences on learning disabilities at Boston College, the University of Massachusetts and Massachusetts Institute of Technology where speakers from the U. S. Dept. of Health Education, and Welfare; Harvard University, and Massachusetts General Hospital were featured. The group has also sponsored legislation, and testified before the Board of Education hearings on the Guidelines of Bill 46k.

In its role as host to the International ACLD conference next February 1, 2, 3 in Boston it is now working on arrangements and speakers for "Successful Programs for Children With Learning Disabilities and the People Who Staff Them." It is expected that several Massachusetts school systems will participate in this conference, which last year attracted an attendance of over 5,000 in New York City.

On the National level ACLD's president has testified before the Ad Hoc committee on the Handicapped, House of Representatives. Many members of the ACLD National Advisory Board appeared before the Senate Subcommittee on Education. Direct results of these actions were the recognition of Learning Disabilities as a handicap to be serviced by the Bureau of Handicapped Children administered by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Federal funds will be available next summer for six teacher training courses throughout Massachusetts.

This young organization is growing rapidly because of the mounting interest in Learning Disabilities, and the impact of recent medical knowledge on the educational world.

Parents, professionals or interested laymen who wish to join the Newton ACLD (one membership fee includes National, State, and Local Chapters) in its many activities, or to be placed on the mailing list, may contact Mrs. Anne Campbell at Mass. ACLD, 397 Moody street, Waltham, 893-1278, or at her home, 23 Cherry place, W. Newton 969-5240.

Hamilton PTA Holds Meeting

The Hamilton School PTA of Newton Lower Falls held its first general meeting of the school year on Tuesday, October 17, at 8:00 p.m.

In an endeavor to create a better teacher-parent-child relationship, this first meeting offered an opportunity for the teachers and parents to meet in the classroom and the parents to discover the objectives for the year and ways they can best help in the 3-way relationship.

Parents participated in typical opening exercises and then proceeded to the reading classes, after which they had a choice of science, math, or social studies. At the sound of the bell, parents and teachers returned to the auditorium for a short business meeting and refreshments.

Katz Helps Conduct College Reception

Irwin A. Katz of 5 Sheldon Rd., Newton Centre, a fifth year student at the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy in Boston, acted as a student assistant during a reception and open house for relatives and friends of the College's freshmen last week.

Some 300 persons toured the College facilities and observed classes in session in a program sponsored by the Student Council.

Old-Fashioned Dancing To Be Taught at 'Y' Classes

On Friday evening, Nov. 17, a new group in good old-fashioned ballroom dance steps will be offered to men and women at the Newton Y.M.C.A. William Riely and his wife, Barbara, long-time instructors at the Newton "Y," will instruct the classes.

For those who want to renew their acquaintance with the foxtrot and waltz steps, or who just want to get rid of the "two left feet" feeling, the class gets under way at 7:00 p.m.

A class will also be offered in modern South American steps at 8:00 p.m. for the more sufe-footed.

For the brave and those who thoroughly know and enjoy dancing and want to expand their enjoyment by learning new steps, they can join in the club session organized by Mr. Rieley.

Ballroom dancing is now recognized as a healthy recreational activity and is on a par with walking and jogging, while at the same time rendering a good social activity.

In this particular program the Newton "Y" is strongly encouraging the married and about to be married couples to participate, but it is also interested in the single person having an opportunity to participate in adult activity.

Information concerning these groups may be had by calling the Newton Y. M. C. A. adult division at 244-6050.

Some may ask whether these groups are just for Newtonites. The answer is no—the classes serve persons from Newton, Watertown, Waltham, Wayland, but there are people in the program from Belmont, Brighton, and some as far away as Holbrook and Taunton.

Parnas To Solo Dec. 10th With Newt. Symphony

Eminent cellist Leslie Parnas, a Newton resident, will perform with the Newton Symphony Orchestra as guest artist in a concert on Dec. 10 at the Meadowbrook Junior High School at 8 p.m.

Mr. Parnas' distinguished accomplishments have won him international acclaim. He studied at the Curtis Institute under Piatigorsky and made many appearances at the Conals Festival in Puerto Rico.

In 1962 Leslie Parnas achieved the coveted second prize in the Tchaikowsky Competition. This came after a successful career as first cellist of the St. Louis Symphony and winner of the "Prix Pablo Casals."

Since winning the Tchaikowsky award, Mr. Parnas has made appearances with the New York Philharmonic, the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the St. Louis Symphony. He recently traveled with a State Department sponsored tour of Europe with Rudolph Berkin and a two-week tour of Russia.

The concert on Dec. 10 is the first in a series of three programs under the musical direction of Michel Sasson. On March 3, 1968, the Newton Symphony Orchestra will feature Joseph Silverstein, concert master of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and on May 19, 1968, Earl Wild, renowned pianist, will appear with the orchestra.

Headlights and Highlights From Newton High School

By KATE SOLOMON

Lunch, the salvation of Newton High students, happens to fall during the same course twice a week. To many students' dismay, on Mondays and Fridays, they have a long period (68 minutes instead of 49) of the same subject. The SCRB (Student Curriculum Review Board) hopes to correct this "injustice," hopes to let the student have a different "long" period class each day of the week.

The SCRB also is working on initiating various pass-fail courses for the students. The board has discussed the sponsoring of possible courses with Newton Junior College, and the possible creation of completely new NHS courses. The possibilities for the new courses are a Current Events or History Seminar, a Chemistry Seminar, a Debating class, and a Curriculum I Economics course.

The SCRB plans to begin a policy which excuses members of the boys' junior varsity from gym class. Previously, only those on the varsity team were allowed this priviledge. This year, for the first time girls participating in varsity or junior varsity sports, also can remain in their study for the duration of the specific sport season.

Senior and Junior Class

Newton High houses 864 seniors. Each one is invited to the annual Senior Supper, December 9. This year the supper will include in addition to a dinner, a band, skits arranged and performed by students, and door prizes.

To raise money for this function, the Senior class is selling NHS hats, and senior class charms. The hats are orange and black ski caps that sell for $1.50 apiece. Bracelets, keys and key chains with the Newton High School seal imprinted on them are the types of charms sold.

The senior class, also to raise money, is planning to hold a concert featuring a big name band. According to Bob Tennant, class president, the trip to expo has helped the class's finances immensely.

The Junior class held its Annual workday October 28th. The car wash was held from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. on Elm street and various volunteers visited the near-by houses, asking the residents of they had odd tasks they wanted performed. Cheryl Walsh was appointed chairman of the Workday Committee by the Junior class president Iris Brass.

National Honor Society

The National Honor Society honors both juniors and seniors for their combined scholarship, leadership, service, and citizenship qualities. This year the society, headed by Gretchen Mueller, hopes to change the induction ceremony and the process of selection. Its officers, which include Paula Stone as Vice President, Debbie Bovarnick as secretary and Marcia Cohen as treasurer, sent questionaires to all fifty-one of the present Newton High members.

The questionnaire asked the seniors such questions as "Should the National Honor Society exist at Newton High School? Should it be strictly honorary or also a service organization? Would you participate in an exchange day? Have you any suggestions for activities you'd like to see the society doing?"

At least 60% filled out and returned the questionaire. In general the students were satisfied with keeping the society only an honorary one and with changing the induction ceremony and the process of selection, but suggested no additions.

At the meeting on October 13, the members decided to set up a committee to look into the national framework of the Society. The purpose of the committee is to see what can be changed while simultaneously maintaining a national status. Those who volunteered to be on the committee are Linda Gradone, Paula Stone, Marcia Cohen, Debbie Bovarnick, Larry Samet, Neil Gorfinkle, David Rome, Bob Houghteling, Gretchen Mueller, and Ed Kleiman.

National Merit Test

Beside the ten students from Newton High who were chosen as semi-finalists in the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test, twenty-seven NHSers were granted letters of commendation. These students, scoring slightly below the cut off mark for the semi-finalists, are eligible for certain scholarships.

Harvey Baker, Steven Beckman, Reginald Benn, Russell Berman, Michael Boyajian, Mary-Jo Carr, Donald Dewsnap, Steven Fine, Neal Gorfinkle, Kathleen Gurd, Ann Kristal, Diane Levine, and Herbert Levine are among those who were awarded this honor.

Clubs

The Newton High Film Festival featured the movie CASABLANCA last week. The film, which stars Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Berman, cost each student 50c. The other movies which the festival will sponsor this year have not yet been decided. The club has definitely planned to make their own films and accompanying scripts. Last year they showed a film about a boy who fell asleep in class and dreamed about a girl. Johnathan Dietz, the festival's president and only officer, said that he also plans to have the members visit film makers and studios.

The Equestrian Club, headed by Nancy Melanson, has planned a week-end trip to Thousand Acres Dude Ranch in New York. Forty-five members are planning on participating in the week-end and will be charged $40. Mr. Ronald Prevoir, an art teacher at Newton High and advisor to the club, will accompany the group.

The plans for the week-end include not only horseback riding, but also swimming, both band and jukebox dancing, ping pong, pinball games, sauna baths, and a smorgasborg meal with nine different kinds of meat. The students will travel to and from New York by chartered bus and will leave some time on Friday, November 3, 1967.

The Equestrian Club is the largest club in the school, with a membership exceeding 250 students. Its officers include Sarah Raleigh and James Hyman as vice presidents, Nancy Wecker as secretary, and Andrea Barron as treasurer.

Faculty Senate

The Faculty Senate, an organization completely independent of the administration, was formed last April. The purpose of the Senate is to improve Newton High education, which, according to the senate's preamble, would result from more active communication between members of the faculty, the faculty and the administration, and the faculty and the community.

The faculty senate spent last year writing the constitution and forming committees. So far this year, the senate has elected officers.

Thomas Wolfe, an English teacher at Newton High, is chairman of the Senate, Robert Malone, a science teacher, is vice-chairman, Mrs. Barbara Killion, who is in charge of the reading clinic, secretary, and Atwood Dunham, a Math teacher, treasurer. The senate meets once a month unless otherwise specified.

Girls' Sports Activities

The varsity and junior varsity field hockey teams have played five games so far this year. The varsity holds a 2-3 win-loss record, while the junior varsity has a 1-4 record. Two games are left for both teams to play, one against Weston, and one against Winchester.

The co-captains of the varsity team are Ruth Pigeon and Sarah Conant. Margie Drew, a sophomore, scored four goals in a game against Newton South, and so far she is the highest scorer of the season. Ruth Pigeon, Donna Ross, Sarah Conant, and Glenda Lovell have all scored at least one goal this year.

The junior varsity co-captains are Peggy Carten and Chris Edwards. Pam Leary and Sue Campbell are the only two players who have as yet scored goals.

For the school year of 1967-1968, girls' interscholastic sports include field hockey, gymnastics, tennis, and softball. This year is the first time that gymnastics is a varsity sport. Dr. Joseph Massimo, a psychologist at the Newton Public Schools and a former Olympic gymnast, is helping to perfect the girls' skills. The team will be chosen some time after Thanksgiving.

The intramural sports this year are fall tennis, basketball, and volleyball. If there is sufficient interest among the girls, fencing and lacrosse will also be part of the agenda for after school sports.

Sports Clubs

Orthesis, which meets twice a week for both the advanced group, and for the beginners group, is the Newton High Modern Dance Club. The advanced group requires tryouts, and Linda Altshuler, Debbie Warshaw, Marni Lipke, Linda Karzerman, Tina Takayanagi, and Ann Nowak are those girls who were chosen. The beginner group is open to everyone.

Tina is the club's president, Debbie its vice president, and Linda its secretary-treasurer. The purpose of the beginner group is to furnish the students with a better foundation in modern dance, The beginners will concentrate on technique and composition and will relate not only to music, but also to a group of other dancers. The advanced group composes all its own dances and will perform for various house assemblies.

The G.A.A. (Girls Athletic Association) is sponsoring various activities this year. Powder Puff Football, which is an annual house competition among girls, was held October 30, and will continue on November 6, and November 7. The club hopes to back a winter carnival, and will definitely sponsor the annual college conference. It will also hold a banquet for all its members at the end of the year.

Ruth Pigeon is the president of the club, Betsy Fesseden its vice president, Janet Turner its secretary, and Tina Davenport its treasurer. The committee heads are Wendy Keil, Darlene Gratto, Jocelyn Covington.

AMY KAZIS

Mishkan Tefila Temple PTA To Meet On Nov. 6th

William B. Nathanson, president of Temple Mishkan Tefila Parent-Teacher Association announces that the opening meeting of the PTA will be held on Monday evening, November 6th in the Temple Social Hall 300 Hammond Pond Parkway Chestnut Hill, commencing at 8:00 p.m.

The guest speaker for this evening will be Miss Amy Kazis, daughter of Rabbi and Mrs. Israel J. Kazis.

Amy has just recently returned home after spending 14 months in Israel attending her junior year of College at the Hebrew University under the auspices of American Friends of the Hebrew University.

Amy, now a senior at Brandeis University is majoring in History. During her stay in Israel, aside from her University studies, Amy taught Hebrew to Russian immigrants, worked part time doing sociological research for an American Economist, and tutored Israelis in English.

When things grew tense, prior to the war, she was assigned to work on the staff of the Hadassah Hospital which was to be set up in case of emergency.

After the end of hostilities, Amy helped setting in order the University buildings on Mount Scopus, filling in ditches inhabited by soldiers only weeks before.

This will be a most interesting evening with Miss Amy Kazis reliving her experiences in Israel. Coffee and refreshments will be served.

Other officers of the Temple Mishkan Tefila PTA are: Mr. Stanley Gaffin, vice president; Mr. Stanley Robbins, treasurer; Mrs. Harold Polan, recording secretary and Mrs. Eliot Sagan, corresponding secretary.

Newton High Wins Third Place In Cross-Country

The 30th Annual State Divisional Cross - Country Championships were run last Saturday morning at White Stadium, Franklin Park. Some 152 schools and 1500 runners competed in the six divisions.

In Division I, Brockton placed five men in the first nine positions and all seven of their runners in the the top fifteen to sweep past all other competitors with a score of 32. Brockton placed men in positions 3, 5, 7, 8, 9, 11, and 14. This amazing depth allowed Brockton to finish nearly 60 points ahead of the second place finisher BC High.

John Quirk of BC High took first place with a time of 11:43 for the 2.4 mile course. BC High also took places 4, 6, 29, and 50, to finish with 90 points. In third was Newton with 113 points. Their top runner finished twefith.

Catholic Memorial took first in Division II with 69 points, ahead of Lawrence Central Catholic by 89 points.

Lawrence of Falmouth paced Division III, Sharon was tops in Division IV, Weston in Division V, and Medway in Division VI.

The first, second, and third place teams in each division plus the top five individual performers who were not a member of a placing team will run in the state championship this Saturday at White Stadium. The winners will then travel to Waterville Maine, Nov. 11, to compete in the New England championships.

Both Newton High schools ran in Division I. Newton High finished third in the division, copping places 12, 18, 21, 30, and 32. Senior Bob Tennant finished twelfth with a 12:13. However, from this group only two will return next year to run. Doug Tomb, a sophomore will return, as will junior Jeff Hyman.

On the other hand while Newton South did not finish strongly this season three of their seven participants will return, as will their eighth and ninth men. Also, Newton South ran without their second man Jeff Davis, and this was a great handicap.

Of their seven men, Dave Whitney (12:38), Dave Williams (13:26), Rick Levin (13:58) and Mike Donnelly (14:49) will depart after this season. However, Fred Kaye (13:38), Henry Ehrlich (14:00), and Lew Freedman (14:04) will return to form the nucleus of next year's squad.

The two schools will be fairly evenly matched and should supply the rest of the league with some rough competition next season.

Rabbi Cohon Warns Jews To Remember Two Allegiances

A ranking Jewish Clergyman recently warned members of his congregation not to forget their allegiance to their country, as well as their faith. Rabbi Beryl D. Cohon, Rabbi Emeritus of Temple Sinai in Brookline, in a sermon delivered on Rosh Hashanah told his congregation "We are Jews, religious Jews; we are also Americans, loyal Americans."

"We are heirs to Moses and the Prophets and Psalmists and the martyrs," he pointed out, "We are the heirs also to Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln."

"The United States of America is the first country in history to give us equality of rights and liberties guaranteed by the basic law of the land. The United States of America was the first country in the world to convert us Jews from the "wandering Jew" the accursed of God, branded as the "Christ killer," doomed, like Cain, to wander the face of the earth as a fugitive, into a free citizen, with all the rights and liberties and dignities of a free citizen," he said.

"How can we transmit to our super-intellectual sons and daughters, raised in an opulent, permissive society, the enormous reality in the simple words, 'Our Country and our nation?' The Bible speaks a powerful warning to us American Jews. 'When Jesurun grew fat he grew thick and forgot. . . .'"

Concerned over the state of the Nation, its problems and troubles, its involvement in a cruel war, the Rabbi also warned that unilateral pacifism is national suicide and more, may bring on war.

He recalled the words of the Prophets and of the Fathers of our country and called his people to "think anew" and to work for this, "our" country.

Issues -

The political aspirants are seeking election to eight school committee posts, eight ward alderman seats and 16 alderman-at-large jobs. Newton voters for the first time will use electronic plauded and sometimes hissed according to its mood.

The jousting between Mayor Monte G. Basbas who is seeking a second term and his opponent George H. Mitchell, supervisor of assessors for the city of Boston, centered around such issues as spending and where the money should come from, law enforcement, zoning and schools.

Mayor Basbas pointed to his background and to the progress achieved during the last two years. He said construction of a new Newton High School remains on schedule according to the Capital Improvement Program which calls for the building in 1970-717.

He said he is not upset by the present indecision of the Board of Aldermen regarding the site of a new main library. "They should not accept without question and should give the matter a good look," the mayor commented.

Basbas also pointed to improvements in law enforcement. He noted that 12 patrolmen were added last year and 15 this year to the police force. Other new features are a new police radio system, two cruisers, walkie-talkies and a police training academy, the mayor said.

Mitchell felt the numerous burglaries called for more street lighting and possibly foot patrolmen in Oak Hill.

Mitchell also charged that the search for additional state and federal aid to finance improvements in the city and in the schools would, in the long run, cost the people even more.

"If we need improvements we should have them and be willing to pay for them," he said. "We shouldn't wait for the federal or state governments."

He pointed to the sales tax favored by Basbas as costing the city of Newton more than it is getting back because of the distribution formula which is based on poorer communities receiving higher percentages of return than their more affluent neighbors.

The three School Committee posts being contested appear to be bringing out the greatest differences of opinion in the current campaign.

In Ward 3 Richard Douglas and Mrs. Eloise Houghton are fighting for the seat being vacated by Mrs. Grace Whitmore.

Douglas pointed to his direct experience over the last five years as a consultant to the social studies curriculum revision project. He called for a reduction in the pupil-teacher ratio in the classroom, said that autonomy in the individual schools has had the effect of pulling lively people into the school system, and when questioned about the matter of assistance with Boston's educational problems indicated that the "privileged urban suburbs" have an obligation to the city and cannot close their eyes to the problems.

Mrs. Houghton felt that public education demands public involvement. She said there are enough professional educators in the School Department and that School Committee members should be responsive to the public as well as to the school administration which they are responsible for hiring. She said members should be concerned with making expenditures "wise" ones.

In Ward 5 Mrs. Elinore B. Trowbridge is the only candidate attempting to unseat a School Committee incumbent, Edwin Hawkridge.

Hawkridge stood on his 10 year record as a School Committee member and felt that a primary problem in the future will be the conflict between the rapidly growing cost of education and the rapidly rising real estate tax.

Mrs. Trowbridge called for outside, unbiased professional evaluation of experimental programs and said she would encourage career minded teachers rather than "young brides working while their husbands finish school." She jabbed at articles in lay publications praising programs in the Newton schools, pointing particularly to a recent one about Meadowbrook Junior High School which appeared in a New York paper.

In Ward 8 Henry K. Shor and Alvin Mandell are vieing for the seat being vacated by Dr. Way Dong Woo.

Mandell said one of the greatest problems of the School Committee is communication with the public. He favored occasional open forums or short question and answer periods following School Committee meetings. He said he would be "responsive to the electorate" if elected.

Shor felt that the school system should develop to be able to adapt to the growing body of knowledge about how children learn. He also felt that Newton must provide the best environment for teachers so that they can hand on the best education possible.

Six of the eight ward alderman posts will go unchallenged to the incumbents. In Wards 3 and 4 Aldermen Paul J. Burke and William P. Matthews are being opposed by Charles E. Aucoin and Nicolo V. Nardone.

Candidates for aldermen-at-large were limited to a minute and a half for a presentation of their points of view though there was a question period later in the evening. As a result, discussion of the issues was necessarily not very thorough.

Most candidates seemed to favor charter reform and broadening of the tax base through careful development of commercially zoned areas along with preservation of the quality of residential sections.

Candidates Reply To Housing & Rights Quiz

Considerable concern about discrimination against minority groups in Newton and widely divertified viewpoints regarding means of combating it have been revealed by the candidates for mayor of Newton and a majority of the aldermanic candidates in a preelection survey of their opinions in this field conducted during October by the Newton Committee for Fair Housing and Equal Rights.

The two mayoral candidates — Mayor Monte Basbas and George Mitchell — and 21 of the 40 aspirants for seats on the city's Board of Aldermen demonstrated their belief in the political importance of this topic by responding to a questionnaire developed by the Fair Housing group and mailed in the middle of October to all candidates for city office except School Committee. The Fair Housing Committee adopted this method of soliciting the public stands of candidates in the Newton elections this year on aspects of city policy bearing on intergroup relations, instead of conducting its traditional "candidates' night."

The survey questionnaire was keyed to three critical issues in the field of discrimination, regarding each of which a specific question was framed by the Fair Housing Committee that required candidates to explain in some depth, on the basis of personal knowledge about the subject, their positions about discriminatory patterns in Newton. These three questions were:

1. The experience of the Newton Committee for Fair Housing and Equal Rights during the last ten years shows that there still exists in Newton considerable discrimination against minority groups who wish to obtain homes or apartments. How would you as (mayor) (alderman) exercise moral leadership in the community to eliminate this problem?

2. What steps would you take as (mayor) (alderman) of Newton to increase the supply of low and middle-income housing in the city?

3. Kindly evaluate the performance of the Mayor's Community Relations Commission. Would you take any steps to change or strengthen its role?

In addition to the two candidates for mayor, those who responded to the questionnaire included four of the ten candidates for ward alderman (three incumbents and one challenger) and 17 of the 30 candidates for alderman-at-large (five incumbents and twelve challengers).

On the first question, Mayor Basbas stated that he would exercise "moral leadership" by continuing to uphold the State's non-discriminatory housing code and by collaborating, in the future as in the past, with the work of the Community Relations Committee and its Advisory Board. Mr. Mitchell declared his intention of providing "leadership by example," through continued backing of experiments such as METCO, through truthful and fair dealing with all groups in the city, and through support of the idea of Negro representation on the Board of Aldermen.

With respect to Question 2, Mayor Basbas indicated his concern that low and middle-income housing is "almost totally lacking" in Newton today, and said he would use whatever land is available in the city after other needs are met to provide such housing for Newton residents.

Mr. Mitchell answered this question by declaring his emphatic support for the petition currently before the Board of Aldermen that would permit housing to be constructed for residents of Newton other than the elderly., and by suggesting payment for aldermen as one way of obtaining Board members with a keen interest in problems of discrimination.

"More citizen participation" was Mayor Basbas' formula for strengthening the Community Relations Commission. This would occur, he said, if other community groups stimulated interest in the Commission's work through educational and publicity campaigns. His opponent's position on Question 3 stressed the need for more local press coverage of the Commission's activities, and the desirability of adding to the Commission's membership persons with more "practical experience" in the race relations field.

Responses from the aldermanic candidates to Question 1 ranged from a belief, on the one hand, that little discrimination exists in Newton to a position that included on the other, strengthening of the enforcement process of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination, denial of licenses to real estate operators proved to be acting discriminatorily, and requiring "meaningful assurances" of non-discrimination as a conditon of approval by the Board of Aldermen of petitions for construction of new houses for sale or rent (Mr. Kumin).

For the most part, respondents endorsed fair housing policies for Newton and the State, and supported educational and public relations programs by various Newton agencies and groups aimed at eliminating discrimination in housing, while stating their firm personal opposition to discrimination in any form.

With respect to Question 2, many solutions were suggested for overcoming the shortage in the city of low and middle-income housing, although it was specified in most cases that such housing should be made available primarily for certain categories of persons presently living in Newton, especially those displaced by land-takings of all kinds under eminent domain.

Among the ideas suggested for remedying the shortage were the following; re-zoning, receipt of larger amounts of Federal funds for construction of housing in Newton, support for new housing by non-profit groups, rehabilitation of run-down housing by the city, support of Federal rent subsidy programs, use of turnpike "air rights" and available vacant land in the city for construction of housing units, a comprehensive city housing survey, increase in private investment in middle-income housing to be encouraged through "cluster zoning" and "site plan approval provisions" and better code enforcement.

Several candidates indicated a belief that there was no "over-powering" need for low-income housing in Newton, except perhaps for certain city employees, and these and several others wanted to be sure that any public housing built in Newton would be scattered about the city in small units, rather than organized in projects, so as to avoid creation of low-income ghettos. In general, the respondents supported the present petition before the Board of Aldermen calling for a change in the Newton Housing Authority's rules so as to permit it to construct public housing of all kinds, rather than for the elderly only.

Although most of them thought it was working reasonably well, several candidates said, in response to Question 3, that the city's Community Relations Commission had not "sufficiently fulfilled its hope." As a group, the aldermanic candidates expressed the following ideas for strengthening the Commission: initiation by the Commission of studies of changing population patterns and problems of discrimination, expansion of its budget, greater attention by the Commission to housing needs and problems of youth, more extensive follow-up to the Commission's meetings in the form of specific action, and hiring of professional consultants to advise the Commission.

Also undertaking by the Commission of programs to achieve a better level of knowledge among Newton citizens in the field of discrimination, greater attention on the Commission's part to "hidden techniques" of discrimination, increase in size and powers of the organization, inauguration of an improved "public contact" and public relations program, development of a more "vital" administrative role for the Commission through employment of full-time professional staff responsible to the mayor, and continuous re-evaluation of the Commission's work in terms of experiences with similar mechanics in other communities.

Also, publication by the Commission of better reports of its activities, reduction in the number of "eminent citizens" on the Commission in favor of other comunity groups — particularly representatives of the more disadvantaged economic levels, adoption of a "less intellectual" approach to its work by the Commission initiation of a program of 'home visits" by members and staff of the Commission to apply "individual persuasion" to Newtonites on the subject of discrimination, development of better official Commission contacts with ethnic and religious groups in the city, and encouragement of the Commission of broader community participation in its work — particularly through public attention at Commission meetings.

Founders Dinner Planned To Aid Day School Drive

Melvin Miller, president of Temple Mishkan Tefila, has been appointed chairman of the Founders Dinner for the Solomon Schachter Day School, it was announced this week by general campaign chairman Irving R. Shapiro.

The Founders Dinner, which will be held Wednesday evening, December 13, at Sidney Hill Country Club, will mark the climax of the Special Gifts phase of the $100,000 fund drive. Featured speaker at the dinner will be Senator Abraham Ribicoff.

"Melvin Miller's acceptance of this key post in the campaign for support of Solomon Schechter Day School is typical of the enthusiasm being manifested throughout the community on behalf of this vital project," said chairman Shapiro.

"We are particularly pleased that we are attracting to our campaign young and dynamic leaders who are concerned with the future of Jewish education and are concerned with the development of young people who will be trained to accept the mantle of Jewish community leadership in the coming decades," Shapiro observed.

"Education at Solomon Schachter School combines the finest integrated English-Hebrew curriculum. The almost 100 students in the school's six grades receive an intensive grounding in the fundamental elementary school courses plus a comprehensive background in Jewish history, the Hebrew language, and the wisdom and philosophy of the Talmud.

"The Special Gifts drive is being conducted primarily within the 28 Conservative congregations in Greater Boston associated with the United Synagogue. Contributors of $100 or more will receive complimentary tickets to the Founders Dinner," Shapiro explained.

Chairman Shapiro announced that the first report meeting for the Special Gifts Committee was held Monday evening, October 30, in the Library of Temple Mishkan Tefila, Chestnut Hill.

Newton South Win Streak Snapped By Leominster

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

The Newton South football squad watched its five game winning streak come to an end last Saturday as they ran into a tough Leominster defense. The Lions could never muster much of an offense, even with the return of star halfback George Tsiumus to the starting line-up, as they amassed only 68 net yards throughout the game, and were shut-out, 14-0. The Lions never approached the Leominster goal-line, as they passed into Leominster territory only twice during the game.

Meanwhile, the Lion defense was not as stingy with yardage as they have been in recent games, allowing 256 yards on the ground and 68 passing. Both the Leominster scores came on short runs.

It seems as though all the Lions had a bad day at once, as they no way resembled the powerhouse they had been for five weeks. The Lions hit the road this weekend as they travel to Rindge Tech for a 1:30 game. South will be on the road for the rest of the season for two weeks following the Rindge game.

The Newton South harriers concluded their dual meet season last week, 1-6, as they were defeated by Waltham, 23-36. The score, however, is not as bad as it sounds, as only one other school came that close to first-place Waltham this year.

The varsity race was exceptionally fast as two men broke the previous course record of 13:23. Moe Bordinca of Waltham toured the 2.6 Mt. Ida course in 13:22.2. Lion co-captain Dave Whitney finished just a step behind him at 13:22.4. Bordinca will be a thorn in the Lion's paw for a long time to come as he is only a sophomore.

Finishing third in the race and second for the Lions was Jeff Davis at 13:33. In ninth was Rick Levin with his best time of 14:51. The other two Lion placers also ran their fastest times on the home course. Henry Ehrlich at 14:58 and Dave Williams at 15:02 placed tenth and eleventh respectively.

Fred Kaye was thirteenth in the race with a 15:32. Mike Donnelly followed him in fourteenth at 15:41. Lew Freedman in sixteenth at 15:46, Bruce Kopelman in seventeenth with a 16:11, and Rich Aron in nineteenth, struggling with a cramp at 17:54, rounded out the Lion finishers.

The jv squad was trounced 15-48, by Waltham as Waltham swept the first six places. The South point-scorers copped places 7, 8, 10, 11, and 12. Steve Sahl was in seventh with a 16:06. Dave Glaser ran a 16:13 to place eighth. Bruce Young took tenth, Wally Milgroom eleventh, and Jimmy Silverman twelfth.

The Lion soccer team lost one game and tied one last week to bring their season's slate to 2-8-1. The loss came at the hands of Newton High, 4-0. South played its usual haphazard game, booting away scoring opportunities, etc. The Lion varsity has still never beaten the Tigers. In the second game of the week, the Lions played their best soccer of the year in a thrilling game vs. Belmont, which ended in a 2-2 tie in double overtime. The Lions went behind 1-0 in the first period, but junior Paul DeRogatis scored his first goal only moments after Belmont had put one by goalie Ned Morse. The game passed through the first overtime period with the score knotted at 1-1. In the second overtime Belmont scored again, however South roared right back with an unassisted goal by junior Rodney Brown. The game ended 2-2. Both the Belmont goalie and Morse shined in their respective goals.

The jv booters, the best in South's history, won one game and tied another last week to raise their record to 3-5-1.

In the first game the Lions topped the Newton High Tigers, 2-0, on goals by Mark Young and Alan King. Goalie Steve Finer was injured over the left eye and left the game bleeding. Rich Black, who had not been in the goal since last season, replaced him, and turned in a fine performance to preserve the shut-out with some strong defensive help from Bill Goldberg and Mark Young.

The Lions gained a 0-0 tie in a defensive battle vs. Needham High in their second game last week. Black was again the goaltender and he was superb. Paul Hockmeyer starred in his defensive position time after time thwarting Needham's offensive attacks.

Court Frees R. I. Youths

The cases of two 20-year-old Rhode Island youths were continued without finding in Newton district court last week after they had been charged with possession of marijuana and treaspassing.

Robert M. Duffey, of Providence, and Ralph H. E. Fortune, of Lincoln, were arrested Oct. 18 while on a country-wide hitchhiking tour. Sgts. Joseph Arnold and Thomas Dargan arrested the pair in a shelter in Newton Centre woods after area residents complained.

Police found an envelope containing marijuana and it was revealed in court last Friday that the marijuana was not purchased illegally but had been picked growing wild in Nebarska this past summer.

Judge Julian Yesley warned the youths that marijuana is illegal and dangerous, and the continuance of their case without a finding was dependent upon their staying out of trouble.

The boys told the Judge they were going home to Rhode Island. Duffey said he was going to work, while Fortune said he was going to go to school.

Newton Patriots' Record Better Than Hub Pros

The Newton Patriots play their last game of the regular season, when they meet Randolph this Sunday afternoon. Kickoff time is 12:30 p.m. at Randolph High School.

A victory over Randolph would give Newton an undefeated session and the championship of the Southern Conference, Junior Midget Division, Pop Warner Football League. If the Patriots win this title, they will then play the Northern Conference winners for the state championship in late November.

Last Saturday the Patriots scored an 8-0 victory over previously undefeated Arlington. In the second period, Newton's Tod Reynolds recovered a fumble on the Arlington four yard line, and on the next play Peter Percy scored. Bobby Kinsella passed to Dan Ahern for the two-point conversion.

The game was dominated by the Patriot defense which has given up only three touchdowns over the entire season. The Newton defensive lineup consists of ends Ron McGerigle and Greg Messina; tackles Mike Rooney and Bill Bertrand; linebackers Tod Reynolds, Dickie Ready and Bob Babbin; and safeties Peter Percy and Dan Ahern.

Practical Problem

It is true that dropping heavy hints should be avoided. But not so much from the image standpoint as from the fact that they probably won't work anyhow.

The heaviest hint I know of is when the host and hostess retire to their chambers, re-emerge in their doctor dentons, sing two choruses of "Good Night, Ladies" and tippy-toe off to bed.

But chances are when they arise the next morning some of the guests will still be holding forth in the living room.

To say, however, that "there is no approved way" of breaking up a party is pure twaddle. There are numerous ways it can be done, and without besmirching one's perfect-hostess image.

One charming couple I know initiate the homeward move by activating an air raid alarm in their attic. Guests are then ushered through a door marked "shelter," which opens onto the street.

Grand Ole Opry: The Quip Stuck

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The Grand Ole Opry, the oldest continuous show in the history of American broadcasting, got its name quite by accident.

The show went on the air at WSM in 1925 as the "Barn Dance." One of the infant broadcasts followed a network production of music from the Grand Opera in New York.

Announcer George D. Hay went to the microphone when the high brow music was over and said:

"For the past hour we have been listening to music taken largely from grand opera, but from now on we will present the Grand Ole Opry."

The name stuck.

Adventure Calls Bold Australian

By JOHN WILSON

RIO DE JANIERO (UPI) — An Australian on a round-the-world search for adventure is laying plans here for his next hazard against fate — the supreme test of a sailor.

"I am going to sail alone around Cape Horn, east to west from the South Atlantic to the Pacific out of sight of land," said Thomas Robert Harrison, 50. "This is the supreme test of man and ship, the route of the clipper ships of the last century."

Harrison set out five years ago from Queensland, Australia, in his 24-foot craft, Sundowner. After crossing the Indian Ocean, a typhoon struck in the Mozambique Channel. "I got tossed around, but the Sundowner is sound and I rode out the storm lying on the floor in the cabin!"

"I joined Mike Hoare and the mercenaries and ended up as chief of the Congolese navy," said Harrison. He was in Africa two and a half years.

"I saw a lot of death in the Congo, but we didn't suffer much. I always felt it was like a long holiday, running around the sunny Congo countryside in a jeep or roaring along the rivers in launches."

He arrived in Brazil last March, working to finance the next step of his adventure. Before he challenges Cape Horn he wants to "inspect the ports of Santos, Porto Alegre, Montevideo and Buenos Aires. Then I am going to take a look at the sheep ranches in Patagonia, before I hop over to the Falkland Islands and take on the Cape."

'A Cinch'

"Sailing is a cinch, he said. "Sundowner sails itself. I am just along for the ride.

"The clipper route has never been done by a lone sailor in a small boat. A Frenchman, Marcel Bardiot, is the only one to try the east to west route. He nipped out a few miles around the Cape and back into the shelter of the channels where the currents are with you. I am going to duplicate the clipper ship routes."

Asked about the icing conditions found by such mariners as Charles Dana in his 1837 book "Two Years Before The Mast", he said, "they were tall ships, and their 150 foot masts iced up. Sundowner is under the water half the time. The water around the cape is above freezing even in winter. The ship won't freeze up when she is wet.

"I might go next July, in '68. It's mid-winter then, but the weather is more favorable. I would only have to battle the cold."

Harrison was born in Sydney, Austrialia, and his ship was built 25 years ago in Cairns, North Queensland.

"I expect a struggle all the way, but if I can make it I will have proved something to myself." he said. "If I don't well, death has to come some time. It might as well come while I am doing something I like."

West German Private Detectives Revive Sherlock Holmes Tactics

By TERENCE ANDREW

BONN (UPI) — West German private eyes are going back to detecting like Sherlock Holmes.

Otherwise they face prosecution since modern eavesdropping aids were outlawed recently in West Germany.

German technicians had developed a whole arsenal of sophisticated bugging devices and exported more to Japan, Switzerland, the United States and other countries.

"Want to hear and learn things when and where you want? Our minimicrophone, small as a sugar lump, can be concealed anywhere," the ads of one West German firm proclaimed.

An estimated 10,000 of the electronic sugar-cube bugs were sold before the legislators clamped down.

Tiepin and ballpoint pen bugs were becoming best sellers among private detectives and businessmen. The bugs were called "Minispies."

The growing use of bugging was brought to the attention of deputies in Parliament by husbands complaining they had been blackmailed in divorce cases.

Parliament decided to act quickly and close a loophole in the law.

Under a law dating back to 1928, a permit was required for using the devices. But people could still buy them.

Now it is an offense even to possess a bugging device, punishable by six months jail or a fine. The law also covers unauthorized recording of private conversations and passing the material on to a third party.

Before approving the bill unanimously, Parliament heard accounts of the wide use of bugging methods in the United States.

On one occasion it gave a demonstration with a microphone - transmitter in a matchbox, relaying a conversation without wires to a tape recorder several rooms away.

The only West Germans allowed to use electronic bugs are the authorities themselves.

The Office for the Protection of the Constitution, the West German counterintelligence organization, is specifically authorized to use "Minispies" to catch mansize spies.

"Your main function round the place is a cross between something in a skirt for the men to whistle at and joke about, and a sort of girl-next-door-listener who's just around to be talked to.

"The thing we get tired of is being asked why we came. I hadn't been out of my home state until I came here. It's an adventure, it's something we'll never get a chance to do again and probably won't feel like doing when we're a couple of years older."

Karen said her family hadn't liked the idea of her going to Vietnam until she'd talked them around. "My friends still think I'm out of my mind," she said.

"I did have ideas of finding out about Vietnam and how the people lived, while I was here. But everything we hear is pretty much second hand, except for leave and then we usually go right out of the country.

"It's the same with the fighting. That's nothing to do with us directly, except when the mortar attacks come."

She yawned and looked at a fading poster tacked to the back of the hut door.

"Welcome to our first ladies," it read.

Bomb Threat Works

This method, however, involves rather expensive equipment. An anonymous post - midnight phone call warning that a bomb has been planted in the house or apartment likewise has drawbacks since it requires the services of a confederate. I therefore recommend one of the less elaborate gambits for achieving mass evacuation of the premises. All of the following have worked well for me:

— The host puts on the phonograph an album of Edith Sitwell reading her own poetry.

— The host invites everyone down to the rec room to see his collection of rare bird eggs.

DOUBLE CONSERVATION

CHILDERSBURG, Ala. (UPI) — In a double-barreled effort to preserve wildlife along the Coosa River as well as to conserve water for its newsprint mill here, Kimberly - Clark is accumulating 1.5 billion gallons of waste water in a 370-acre man-made lake.

A $2.5-million water cleaning system will clean and meter back as much as 30 million gallons per day, needed for the production of paper. To dramatize the positive effect of the pollution control system on local wildlife, a 1,000-acre sanctuary to provide a refuge for birds and animals is planned.

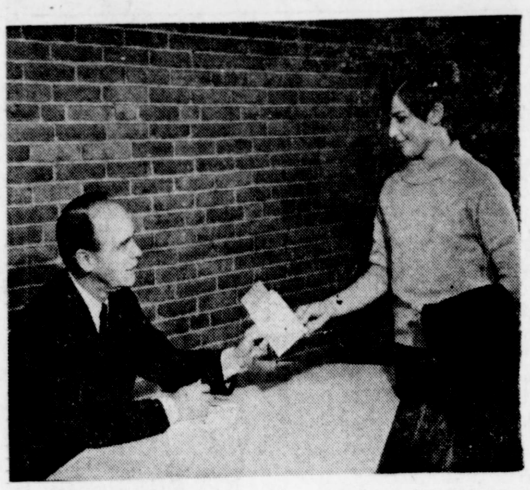
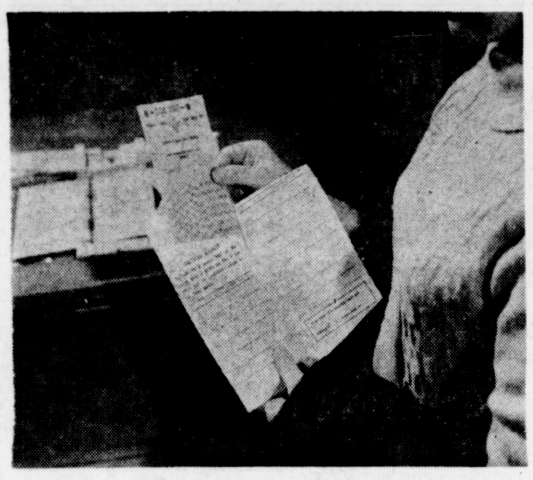
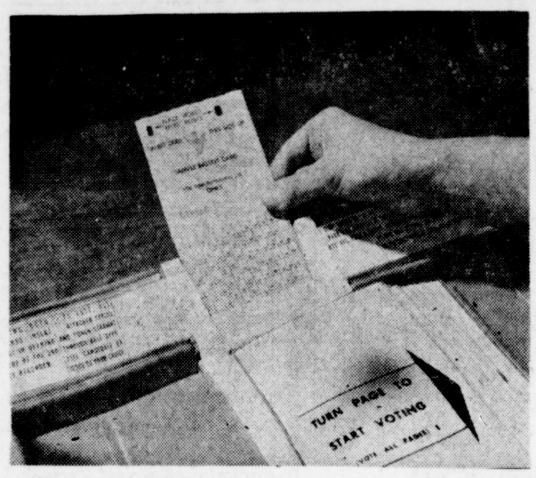
Newton Steps Into The Computer Voting Age



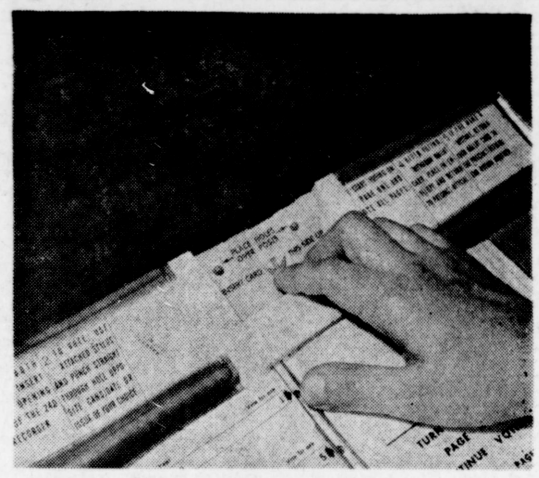
VOTING IS EASY — Yes, it's a simple matter to vote with Newton's new voting machine. Step one is to pick up your ballot, an IBM card which replaces the former paper ballot.



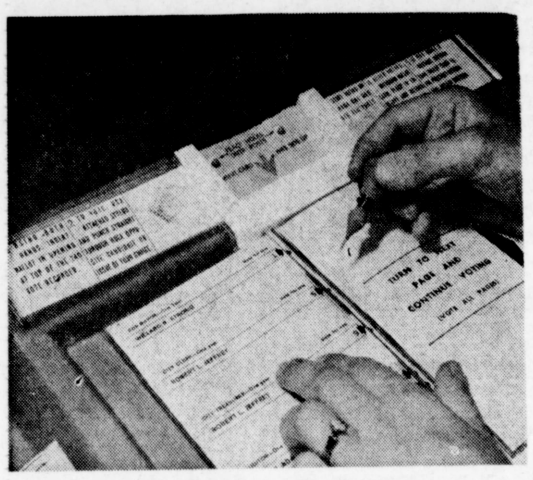
HERE'S YOUR BALLOT — The new ballot looks like this. It's a standard IBM card with a special handling tab on one end which is later torn off and discarded.



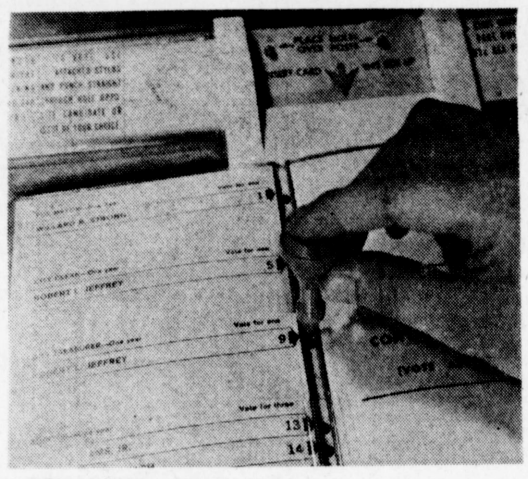
READY TO VOTE — Ballot is inserted into the voting machine. It goes right side up into the slot marked "Insert Ballot" with a detachable tab protruding. Couldn't be easier.



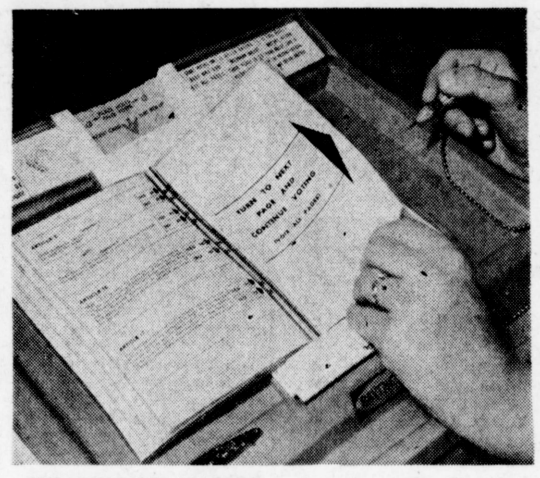
IT'S PERFECT FIT — Holes in the tab fit over the posts on the voting machine. The final push on the tab not only positons the ballot properly but allows you to start voting.



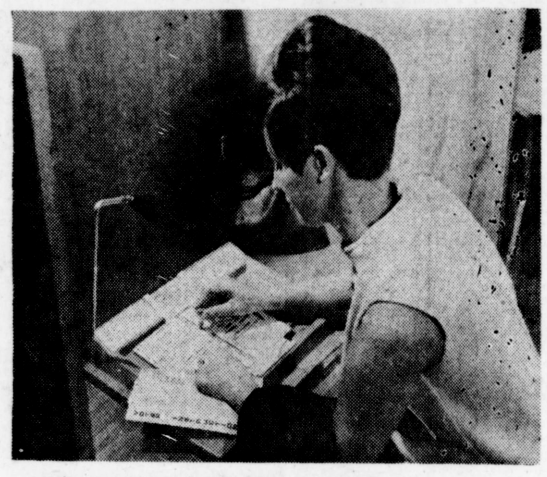
YOU LEND AN ASSIST — Pick your favorite candidate, the machine can't do everything. Hand in photo holds stylus used to punch the card opposite name of your choice.



MAKE YOUR CHOICE — When you punch card opposite candidate's name, it removes a pre-punched piece of your ballot and leaves a clean hole. This hole represents your "X" as you vote.



IT'S COMPACT VOTING — Turn the page. This exposes a fresh new row of candidates on your ballot and is ready to be punched. You can vote on a small card for a large number of candidates.



CAN CHANGE YOUR MIND — If you think you have made a mistake, just turn in your first ballot and ask for a new one. When you are finished, turn in your ballot like you always used to do.

$12,000 "Pot" Cache Found In Newton

A $12,000 cache of marijuana was discovered in a Hammond st., Newton, garage last week as the result of an investigation by Boston police and Federal Narcotics Bureau agents following the arrest of a 23-year-old West Roxbury youth.

The youth was arrested at his Park st., West Roxbury, apartment by Boston Police Div. 5 Officer Paul Lee and Federal agents Edward Cass and Matthew Seifer. He was charged with possession of narcotic drugs after officials said they found a quantity of marijuana in his apartment.

Further investigation led police to the Newton garage where the officers said they recovered $12,000 worth of marijuana. Div. 5 Police Officers Lee, Daniel Fallon and John Ridlon, accompanied by Sgt. Joseph Arnold and Patrolman Albert Flanagan of the Newton Police Department, found the cache after obtaining a search warrant in Newton district court.

Kastle, manager, Personnel Services, Raytheon Company. Sponsors of the public seminar are the Middlesex County Extension Service, University of Massachusetts, and the Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

Planned for volunteer and professional leaders from educational, religious and social service organizations, the sessions beginning at 9:30 Tuesday, November 7 will feature a panel discussion on How Volunteers Participate in programs geared to the solution of urban problems. Moderating the session will be Mrs. Noreen Haygood, Weston, Consulting Sociologist and panel members will include Jeannette Bowen, Operation Exodus and Mrs. Jean Silva, Mystic Valley Mental Health Association Project at Metropolitan State Hospital.

First Unitarian Children Stars In Film "Happening"

Patrick Ullmark's visual poem "A Year of Sundays," starring the children of the First Unitarian Society in Newton will be a unique triple-screen montage of images that flash and disappear to the pulsing rhythms of a modern folk ballad.

Culminating a year of picture taking and experimenting, and performed with an assortment of screens, projectors and stereo speakers, for the most part borrowed, the slide-film "happening" is being presented publicly for the first time Friday evening, 8:15 p.m., during the Parent-Teachers Night at the First Unitarian Society in Newton. The program is sponsored by the Religious Education Committee of the First Unitarian Society.

Mr. Ullmark of Newton is a Harvard-educated architect whose major was visual design. His purely avocational experiment in the church school began more than a year ago.

For nearly a year he watched the children as they wondered, listened, questioned and discovered. What he saw he recorded on film. Then, with an artist's eye for pattern, color and visual harmony, he arranged his slides to be flashed singly or in groups of two and three on a trio of screens The three projectors are operated by separate control buttons which Mr. Ullmark "plays" to the accompaniment of recorded music. No two performances are ever identical.

For the most part, however, "A Year of Sundays" is about children. It shows them as they witness new life emerging from a shell in the form of a baby chick. It shows them expressing their ideas about religion with daubs of paint and gobs of paper mache. It follows them through a study of the human fetus and an exploration of other religions and other cultures. It tries, in short, to capture the essence of a Unitarian religious education program.

Two Boyles Not Related

John F. Boyle, Jr., candidate for Alderman-At-Large from Ward 3 and John M. Boyle, candidate for Alderman-At-Large from Ward 4 have set the voters of Newton to talking.

Their slogan "VOTE BOYLE TWICE" has received much notice. In spite of the fact that "The name's the same" the Boyles are not related in any way.

The Boyles say: "If we did not unite our candidacies, because of our similar names, we felt the voters of Newton might be confused. We feel our joint candidacy has made it clear that two separate and distinct individuals named John Boyle are seeking separate and distinct offices.

The NEWTON GRAPHIC

Vol. 96 No. 45 Newton, Mass., Thursday, Nov. 9, 1967 Ten Cents

Newton Mayor Monte G. Basbas was decisively returned to office for a second term in Tuesday's municipal election by defeating George H. Mitchell by the more than three to one margin of 16,802 votes to 5,074. About 45 percent or 22,981 of Newton's registered voters turned out to cast their ballots.

In what was considered an upset by most political observers Alvin Mandell was elected to the School Committee over Henry K. Shor by a vote of 8,801 to 7,889. Mandell will occupy the seat from Ward 8 being given up by Dr. Way Dong Woo.

In the other heated School Committee contest Richard M. Douglas, chairman of the Department of Humanities at MIT, defeated Mrs. Eloise K. Houghton, former president of the Newton League of Women Voters, by a vote of 10,826 to 8,331.

In the aldermanic contest that seemed to generate the most heat during the pre-election campaign, Sidney T. Small won over William B. Dockser by a vote of 11,564 to 9,427 for the post of alderman-at-large from Ward 6 being given up by Alderman Charles Hovey. Incumbent William Lane Bruce was re-elected to the other seat with 10,933 votes. A fourth candidate Michael S. Wolfe polled 3,295 votes.

In Ward 2 where five candidates fought for the seat being vacated by Alderman William Glovsky, William H. Wolf racked up 8,533 votes for a decisive win. Alderman Winslow C. Auryansen was returned to his seat as the other alderman-at-large from the ward with 8,370 votes. Peter F. Harrington received 7,377 votes, Thomas B. Concannon, Jr. 5300, and Glenn M. Shriberg 3,954.

Former Alderman Robert Tennant defeated two other candidates for the alderman-at-large seat in Ward 3 being given up by Finance Committee Chairman John P. Nixon. He received 9,974 votes. The other seat was returned to incumbent Alderman Melvin J. Dangel who received 12,170 votes. John F. Boyle, Jr., captured 8,458 votes and Thomas J. Quinn, Jr., 4,530.

In Ward 1 incumbents Adelaide B. Ball and Joseph McDonnell were returned to office with votes of 14,451 and 14,930 respectively. Rocco R. Magni received 6,337.

Window Breakage A Pain To Board

Broken windows in schools, and parking meters, occupied the time of the Newton Board of Aldermen Monday night with members solving the meter dispute easily.

The problem of how to prevent more broken windows in schools was not solved, however, as at the same time, it was brought out that Newton will pay about $25,000 this year for their repair.

Discussion about the high cost of window repair was triggered by a request from the city's acting building commissioner to transfer $9000 from capital outlay to pay for the repair of the windows. The request was granteed unanimously.

Alderman William P. Matthews, who last summer introduced a petition to have the school vandalism studied, questioned the latest spending, noting that apparently no one knows what is happening and that "the obligation must rest with someone."

Electronic Age Voting Hits A Few Snags Here

The biggest surprise and disappointment in the Newton election were the new electronic voting machines.

Actually, voters seemed to like using the machines, Alan Licarie, executive secretary of the Newton Election Commission reported.

However, final city results were not complete until 4:30 a.m. Considering that only about 45 per cent of the voters turned out for the strictly local election, a substantial savings of time in counting ballots over the old, slow hand method could not really be acknowledged.

White Savors Election Win As Hard Problems Await Him

As Secretary of State Kevin H. White savored the highly important election victory he won over School Committeewoman Louise Day Hicks after a close fight, he obviously also was contemplating problems he will assume when he takes office as Mayor of Boston next New Year's Day.

White is now enjoying the glory of his political triumph. In less than two months he will face the grief and headaches which go with the office he fought so hard to get.

During the campaign White indicated that he will not be a candidate for the Governorship in 1970.

The likelihood is that he will change his mind before the time comes for a final decison on that question.

WHITE HOUSE CONSULTED ON 'GET TOUGH' DRAFT STAND

LT. GEN. LEWIS B. HERSHEY said yesterday that his new "get tough" directive against antiwar demonstrators who disrupt draft operations and military recruitment was issued after consultation with the White House. However, he told a news conference that "I want it to be perfectly clear that this is the sole responsibility of the director of Selective Service."

The Selective Service chief recommended that local draft boards order induction or assist in the prosecution of draft law violators. His letter was dated Oct. 26, several days after pacifist demonstrators stormed the Pentagon. The White House had no comment on whether or to what extent it was involved in the drafting of Hershey's letter.

GARY VOTE ROW ERUPTS, GUARD LEAVES CITY

NATIONAL GUARD TROOPS pulled out of Gary, Indiana yesterday after a Negro Democrat won a bitter election for mayor. His opponent, a white Republican, refused to concede. Joseph P. Radigan, who lost a close race to Richard G. Hatcher, said he understood the election board had been informed of "voting irregularities" and that he may seek court action "to protect the rights of citizens and the reputation of the city of Gary."

Radigan said he had not decided whether to ask for a recount. He made his remarks during a news conference called an hour after Gov. Roger Branigin withdrew the National Guard.

SENATE SPURNS DELAY IN REDISTRICTING UNTIL 1970

THE SENATE REJECTED, 55 to 22, yesterday a House-passed bill to delay "one man, one vote" legislative redistricting until after 1970. It then quickly passed a bill to ban at-large elections for the House of Representatives.

The measure the Senate turned down, a compromise worked out by conferees from both houses, provided that no state would be required to redistrict until after the 1970 census, unless a special census was held. The ban on at-large races was offered as a rider on a minor bill being considered by the Senate, Offered by Sen. Howard H. Baker, Jr., (R-Tenn.), it pased by voice vote.

ISRAEL'S EBAN REJECTS AFRO-ASIA PEACE PLAN

ISRAELI FOREIGN MINISTER Abba S. Eban yesterday rejected an Afro-Asian peace formula for the Middle East, declaring it prejudiced Israel's position and was drafted in close consultation with the United Arab Republic. Eban also criticized a counterproposal by the United States, saying it did not make it clear that there must be direct Israeli-Arab negotiations for a durable Mideast peace settlement.

Both proposals were to go before an urgent meeting of the United Nations Security Council today. The meeting was requested by the United Arab Republic because of Israel's refusal to withdraw from territory it occupied in last June's six-day war.

HEAVY FIGHTING CONTINUES IN VIET HIGHLANDS

HEAVY FIGHTING in the jungles of South Vietnam's Central Highlands near Dak To continued through the night and into the daylight hours today. In one engagement two companies of the U.S. Army's 4th Infantry Division were battling Communists equipped with automatic weapons, rockets and mortars, and several miles to the west of Dak To another group of Communists, believed to be part of the crack 1st North Vietnamese Division, were attacking paratroopers of the 173rd Airborne Brigade.

Military officials said thousands of Communist troops have been reported moving into the Highlands area in recent weeks. "The Communist hope that we will have to shift substantial forces, thinning them out in another area," an American officer said. "We think we will be able to thwart this."

COMMUNIST WORLD PARLEY SET FOR NEXT YEAR

COMMUNIST LEADERS visiting Moscow for the 50th anniversary of the Soviet Union have agreed to convene a world Communist congress next year, informed sources said yesterday. The first world gathering of the Communist movement since the Moscow conference of 1960 will probably be held in Budapest, in the late spring or early summer, the sources said.

About 80 foreign Communist parties sent delegations to the Soviet anniversary, but although they met under one roof several times, they held no conference to discuss joint problems connected with the split in the international movement.

JACKIE ENJOYS STAR KISSED NIGHT IN THAILAND

JACQUELINE KENNEDY wound up an enchanted evening on the banks of a shimmering starkissed river last night, sitting crosslegged on a straw mat, sipping coffee and listening to Thailand folk songs and crickets chirping by candlelight. Mrs. Kennedy was the guest of Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn, his wife and cabinet, at his elegant riverfront villa with a sweeping veranda that extends out over the water.

It was her first of three nights in Thailand, and except for the bugs attracted by the candles and other lights, which she flicked away with a pink feather fan, it could not have been lovelier. Lord Harlech, British diplomat and widower who had accompanied her through Cambodia, flew back to London late yesterday afternoon.

BROOKE SAYS NEGRO VICTORIES BLOW TO MILITANTS

SEN. EDWARD W. BROOKE, the nation's highest elected Negro, said yesterday Negro victories in Tuesday's election were a defeat for black power militants but warned the results could be negated by Congressional inaction. "People who are hungry and have no jobs will take little hope in the elections of Negro mayors in Cleveland and Gary," he told a news conference.

He saw the victories of Carl B. Stokes in Cleveland and Richard G. Hatcher in Gary, Ind., as "very significant. This is the road Negroes should follow, to the ballot box not through violence and bloodshed. It would be very difficult for the militants to argue now that the Negro lot cannot be improved through the democratic system."

WOMAN PLACED NEAR SCENE OF MAIL HEIST

A WOMAN DEFENDANT in the $1.5 million Plymouth mail robbery was identified yesterday as being near the scene of the holdup on the same evening. H. Angus Perry, a Centerville flight instructor, pointed to Mrs. Patricia Diaferio, 32, of West Roxbury and told a U.S. District Court in Boston he had seen her a few miles south of the scene of the nation's largest cash holdup 35 minutes before it occurred.

Judge Charles E. Wyzanski Jr. adjourned the trial early to allow the defense to consider a 40-minute movie in which Perry had thought he recognized the blonde woman he had seen the night of Aug. 14, 1962. The prosecution did not elaborate on the movie, which Perry said was shown to him by postal inspectors on Jan. 12, 1965. He said he could not remember if more than one woman appeared in the film, but that one scene contained the woman he thought he recognized.

DAVOREN SEEKS SECRETARY OF STATE JOB

HOUSE SPEAKER John F. X. Davoren said last night he would seek election as Secretary of State and added, "I have more than enough votes in my own branch to win it." The present holder of the office, Kevin H. White, takes office as mayor of Boston in January. Both branches elect a successor in such a case.

Davoren said three other Representatives seeking White's office, Robert L. Cawley and Daniel W. Carney, (D-Boston) and Donald J. Manning, (D-Waltham), each had "some scattered support," but added, "I enjoy the solid support of my colleagues."

Chamber Music Series To Be Held At Local School

The Parents Association of the All Newton Music School will be sponsoring a Chamber Music Series again this year, featuring concerts by the Wheaton Trio, faculty members of the All Newton Music School, and the Early Music Quartet of Munich.

The newly established Wheaton Trio will make its local debut at the first concert of the series on Sunday evening, November 19 at 8 p.m. in the concert hall of the All Newton Music School, 321 Chestnut street, West Newton.

Violinist Nancy Cirillo, pianist John Covelli and cellist Madeline Foley will play: Haydn Trio No. 4 in E Major, Ravel Trio in A minor, and Brahms Trio in B major Opus No. 8.

Established last year at Wheaton College in Norton, each member of the ensemble is a member of the College's music faculty, teaching in both the studio and the classroom.

Nancy Cirillo began studying the violin at the age of four and played her first recital the following year in Carnegie Recital Hall. She has studied extensively with Louis Persinger and received much of her formal musical education at Mannes College of Music and Manhattan College. In 1955, Miss Cirillo made her New York recital debut as a winner of the Walter W. Naumburg Musical Foundation Award. She has toured with the Boston Concert Ensemble, the New Art Trio, Manhattan Trio and the Rudie Quartet. Miss Cirillo is assistant professor of music in performance at Wheaton and resident violinist at Brandeis University.

John Covelli also began giving piano recitals at an early age. By the time he graduated from high school, he had appeared in a CBS series of nationwide TV performances. He distinguished himself in 1969 in the first Young Master's Series of chamber and solo concerts at Carnegie Recital Hall. In 1964, he was a winner in both the Queen Elizabeth of Belgium International Piano Competition. Prior to his association with Wheaton last year, Mr. Covellie served as resident artist at the Binghampton (N. Y.) Fine Arts Center.

Madeline Foley began her cello studies with Willem Durieux and worked with him until she entered the Juillard Graduate School under a fellowship with Felix Salmond. Within a week of graduating in 1947, Miss Foley won a Frank Huntington Beebe Fellowship for study in Europe. There she met Pablo Casals, with whom she studied during a period of five years. Miss Foley has been a visiting professor in music from Brandeis University since 1964.

Featured in the second concert scheduled for February will be faculty members of the All Newton Music School in a program of chamber music rarely performed in concert, for unusual, small combinations of instruments.

The unique vocal and instrumental Early Music Quartet of Munich which had tremendous success last season in New York, Washington, San Francisco, Montreal, and many other cities in its first American Tour will be featured in the third concert in April. This superb ensemble uses originals and copies of early instruments of medieval and renaissance periods such as the vielle, rebec, citole, lute, recorder, krumhorn, tambourine, organetto, with the added dimension of voices of instrumental purity.

These concerts are open to the public and subscriptions are available from the office of the All Newton Music School or from the Concert Committee Chairman, Mrs. Arthur E. Vershbow, 54 Bishopsgate road, Newton Centre, 332-5171, and Mrs. Floyd H. Gilles, 667 Chestnut street, Waban, 969-6591. A limited number of student tickets will be available on a first-come first-serve basis.

The Concert Series Committee includes Mrs. Joseph G. Pittman, chairman of the Parents Assn., Mrs. Nicholaas Bloembergen, Mrs. Robert C. Buxbaum, Mrs. Ephraim Friedman, Mrs. Richard W. Husher, Mrs. S. Wendell Kravitz, Mrs. Warren Marcus, Mrs. John F. Reichard, Mrs. Irving R. Schwartz, Mrs. F. Dow Smith, Mrs. Paul W. Wiggin, and Mrs. Otto Gombosi, director of the school.

"Who is your brother's keeper?"

Should it be you?

In a time when it's 'every man for himself,' to love your neighbor as yourself may seem to carry a hollow ring.

But to do so can be vital to each of us. To love even our enemies is to discover something of the richness of love itself. It can open the way to greater accomplishment in our lives, restoring health and blessing others. And the way is to begin to see our true nature — and that of our fellowman — as fashioned in the image and likeness of God.

You are invited to hear this subject explored in a challenging lecture by Neil H. Bowles, C.S.B., of Atlanta, Georgia. Mr. Bowles is an experienced Christian Science teacher and practitioner and a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

Admission is free and all are welcome.

"Anatomy of a Riot" To Be Theme at Temple Breakfast

A symposium on the subject "The Anatomy of a Riot" will feature the regular monthly breakfast meeting of Temple Emanuel of Newton Brotherhood on Sunday, November 19th at 9:30 a.m. in the Community Hall of the Temple.

Discussants will be: Rev. Virgil Wood, minister, Blue Hill Christian Center, Roxbury; Atty. Levin H. Campbell, First Assistant Attorney General, Comm. of Mass.; Dr. Ralph Conant, Assoc. Dir., Lemberg Center for Study of Violence, Brandeis University. Dr. James Shulman, Visiting Professor in Management at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will serve as Moderator.

The symposium will direct itself to the question: What are the factors which lead a community to riot? What is the responsibility of the suburban community to the core city? What are the implications for the Jewish community?

This symposium is one of a series presented throughout the year so that distinguished speakers many present their viewpoints on contemporary issues of the day. The sense of frustration in the American Negro community which has manifested itself these past three years in increasingly explosive acts of violence throughout the major cities of the United States constitute an issue which in the opinion of many knowledgeable observers is second only on the national scale to the question of the Vietnam War.

A spokesman stated that Temple Emanuel of Newton Brotherhood presents this program so as to provide opportunity for the gaining of closer insights with respect to the factors which lead members of a community to violence and those steps which must be taken in order to alleviate such conditions.

It is pointed out that the symposium will also provide opportunity for a clearer understanding of responsibility of the suburban community to the central core city and the role that suburbia (and the Jewish community) can and must play in helping to achieve a meaningful solution to this vital problem of human relationships.

Following the symposium there will be opportunity for questions from the floor. The public is invited to attend.

Herbert Shapiro is president of Brotherhood, Harold Luck is program chairman, and Jack Hoffenberg is in charge of breakfast reservations.

Newtonites Will Hear Plight Of Vietnamese Tots

Next Wednesday (Nov. 15) the Newton Community Peace Center is sponsoring a lecture, open to the public, at 8 p.m. at the Eliot Church at 474 Centre Street, Newton, in which Dr. Frank R. Ervin will give a graphic account of the plight of war-injured Vietnamese children.

A research associate in psychiatry at Boston City Hospital, Dr. Ervin is a representative of the Committee of Responsibility to Save War-burned and War-injured Vietnamese Children. This national Committee is working to bring these children who cannot receive adequate medical care in their own country to the U.S. for treatment.

Spokesmen for the Committee of Responsibility report that children who survive the initial stages of burning or massive injury can be competently treated in the U.S. The Committee points to the large number of surgical specialists in the U.S., many of whom have indicated willingness to contribute their skills and knowledge.

Between 15 and 20 hospital beds for Vietnamese children have been tentatively secured in the Boston area to date, the Committee reports, and 12 families are firmly committed to serve as foster parents.

The Committee of Responsibility is a voluntary non-governmental effort and contributions to its work will be accepted at the November 15 meeting. Further information can be obtained by calling the Newton Community Peace Center. 332-9110.

Mrs. Jackson Speaker At Meeting Of Exodus Group

At a luncheon held at the Newton Highlands Women's Club on October 23, the Newton Committee for Operation Exodus heard Mrs. Ellen Jackson discuss the past progress and future plans for Operation Exodus, Inc.

Mrs. Jackson was recently named Woman of the Year for her remarkable achievements as the prime mover of this organization. Mrs. Hans Krieks, Chairman of the Newton Committee, was assisted by Mrs. James Harrison, Mrs. Bernard Kramer, Mrs. Alfred Maleson, Mrs. Irving Schwartz, Mrs. Ralph Fishman, and Mrs. Abraham Berger as hostesses for the afternoon. All proceeds will serve to defray the $65,000 budget faced by Operation Exodus this year.

Operation Exodus was formed in 1965 by a group of North Dorchester - Roxbury parents in an effort to provide better education for their children in the Boston schools. All funds hav been raised privately through the generosity of many friends and well-wishers. Their work depends upon continued support through contributions and attendance at sponsored events to raise money.

On Sunday, November 26, at three o'clock in the afternoon, a benefit concert will be held at Jordan Hall in Boston. A varied performance will include the Peoples Baptist Men's Choir, Gerald Janey, tenor, and Webster Lewis, organist. The choir, directed by organist Morris Small is distinguished by several outstanding solo voices including Benjamin Franklin and Edmund Henley, first and second tenor respectively, and baritones George Tynes and Walter Fairley who has studied with the great Roland Hayes.

Gerald Janey, a senior Physics major at Boston State College, has studied with Professor Sapienza and is currently singing with the John Weeks group. Mr. Webster Lewis, is currently in Boston furthering his musical education at the Berklee School of Music.

He is a graduate of Morgan State College, has studied at the Johns Hopkins University, the Peabody Conservatory of Music, and has taught music in the Baltimore public schools. For tickets call Mrs. Kramer at 527-4924. Donations should be sent to N.C.O.E., Box 93, Newton Centre 02159.

Alderman Edward C. Uehlein quoted the $25,000 repair figure, noting it was a decrease from 1966 when $44,000 was spent. Alderman Melvin Dangel brought out that the $9000 was taken from an appropriation originally intended for vandalism detectors. He said that $17,000 was appropriated for detectors but the purchase had been stopped so that portable detectors can be bought in the future.

Dangel said that the detectors now in use can be installed in only one building but the new ones can be moved from building to building when necessary.

The Board voted 15 to 6 to put parking meters behind police headquarters and the district court, but not before opponents and proponents had their say.

Some Board members doubted if it was worthwhile to meter the lot, especially after it was pointed out that parking meters yield only about $3 a month per meter throughout the city.

Others were concerned whether police and court personnel would have enough room in an unmetered area to park their cars during their tours of duty.

It was also argued that the lot should not be metered until it is known exactly how many spaces would be left unmetered for police and court personnel.

There are now 14 reserved spaces at the Cherry street entrance to the lot for police use.

Voting against the meter petition were Aldermen Andrew Magni, Harry Walen, William Matthews, Joseph McDonald, H. James Shea and Paul Burke.

In other business, a report was requested on the progress of a resolution calling for a suitable memorial in Newton to the late President John F. Kennedy.

The resolution was introduced last November by Alderman Joseph McDonnell. It requested the Mayor to form a committee to in some way set up a memorial to President Kennedy.

In Dec. 1963, Rep. Theodore Mann introduced a resolution, which was passed, calling for the same thing. Nothing came of it, however.

highest recognitions granted in Scouting.

Last year he was chairman of promotion and production of "Scout Expo '67," an event which attracted more than 20,000 persons.

His record with the Scouts is a long and honorable one. The important posts he held are too lengthy to mention, but Nathan's greatest reward has been helping the young and receiving their enthusiastic gratitude.

As a boy Nathan never had the opportunity to avail himself of the scouting program. As an adult his devotion to the Scouts was unlimited.

Nathan and his wife, Alfreda, are the parents of two sons and a daughter. Richard, a college student, lives at home. Paul, an electrical consulting engineer lives in Framingham with his wife and three children. His daughter, Myrna, also lives in Framingham. She is the mother of two.

CANDOR Asks Reconsideration Of Apog Petition

The Newton Board of Aldermen will be asked to reconsider a request to tear down the former Apog property, an abandoned house at 1183 Boylston st., Newton Highlands, by the Committee Against Needless Downgrading of Real Estate (CANDOR).

Mrs. Christiana Sharkey of CANDOR said at a recent meeting of the group that the property was sold recently to the Salem Realty Trust Co which she said hopes to build a liquor store. Alderman Edward Uehlein, Franklin Flaschner, William Bruce and Harry Walen attended the meeting.

The organization charges in its petition that the property is a tax loss to the city, a blight on the area, and a fire and safety hazard.

At the time the original petition came up before the Board, it was claimed by city building and fire officials that the house, if properly boarded up, would not be hazardous. However, CANDOR claims that children can easily slip into the building and playing in it constitutes a hazard.

At the last aldermanic meeting, the petition was voted "no action necessary." The majority of aldermen felt the matter had been cleared up at the public hearing and was deemed safe if boarded up.

Arthur Laughland, principal of the school, announced that the P.T.A. extended invitations to the Mayor, Dr. Charles Brown, Supt., members of the Building Committee of the Board of Aldermen, Alan S. Barkin, Melvin J. Dangel, Ernest F. Dietz, William F. Glovsky, William P. Matthews, Joseph M. McDonnell, Harry L. Whalen and H. James Shea; Ward 5 Aldermen, Edward Uehlein and Franklin N. Flaschner; and Edwin Hawkridge, Ward 5 school committee member.

Alvin Goodman and Harold Band, chairman of the Hyde School Building program will be on hand for this long-awaited event in the Newton Highlands area.

The children of the school have been using the facilities of the gym since September, and it is hoped the gym will serve also as a recreational facility for the entire area.

The second part of the program under the chairmanship of Mrs. Bradford Wright will be a panel discussion about the single session pilot program now in effect at the Hyde School.

This pilot study, one of three, involves various schedule changes in the elementary school hours, lunch in school, the use of teacher-aides and expanded programs in music, art and physical education under full-time specialists.

Mr. Laughland, the moderator, will give some background data about the pilot program. The panel consists of Mrs. Charlene Lum, physical education specialist; Miss Janet Trapp, art specialist; Miss Patricia Humphrey, music specialist; Michael Modern, teacher-aide; and Officer Charles Feeley of the Newton Police Department, who will discuss safety aspects, patrols and bicycles.

Miss Trapp and Miss Humphrey are new teachers at Hyde School this year. Miss Trapp is from Pittsburgh, Pa., and graduated from Penn State University. Interested in all forms of art, she regularly attends theatre, art exhibits and lectures.

Miss Humphrey of Waban is a Boston University graduate and comes to Newton after experience in the Waltham schools. She is an accomplished pianist and was soloist with the Newton High School Orchestra.

Mrs. Charlene Lum graduated from Colorado State College, received her M.A. from the University of Southern California and has been in Newton as a Physical Education specialist since 1965. She was born and grew up in Honolulu, Hawaii and expects to return there next year.

Mr. Modern is a former student at Hyde, Weeks Jr. and South High. He graduated from Union College, Schenectady in Psychology and is now attending Boston College in Guidance and Counseling.

Walter Robinson invites the public to attend this meeting. Questions by parents and teachers may be submitted in advance for the panelists to answer and questions may be asked from the floor at the end of the program, time permitting. Refreshments will be served following the meeting.

A Yoke Is No Joke

Since the middle of last August there has been some sort of a game played at the State House. We've named it the "keep 'em on the hook" game. We refer, of course, to the way the Legislatuure has fiddled around with the yoke of auto insurance presently burdening Massachusetts motorists.

The insurance and legal lobbyists seated in the House gallery three months ago were stunned when members spurned other plans and voted 133 to 85 for the so-called Keeton-OConnell basic protection proposal. Brookline Democrat Michael S. Dukakis led the fight in favor of the sweeping insurance reform plan. He described the vote as "one of the most horrifying experiences" the insurance and legal lobbyists had ever suffered through.

That was not the reaction of the public. They cheered and the collective thought was "they're finally doing somthing to give us a break."

But the public cheered too soon and, as the legal and insurance lobbyists recovered slowly from their shock, the merry-go-round switched tunes in the Senate when the Keeton-O'Connell plan was shunted aside and Gov. Volpe's financial responsibility proposal was accepted. Incidentally, plans similar to Gov. Volpe's are in effect in 47 other states.

So, the days passed, and the lobbyists were fully recovered, and the financial responsibility plan languished in the hands of the House Ways and Means Committee. Last Wednesday it was taken out, dusted off and buried along with the Keeton-O'Connell plan.

And the lobbyists seated in the House gallery were spared a second "horrifying experience" as a modified compulsory insurance plan was voted. Thirty-seven members of the House changed their minds in that vote, apparently convinced that the other two plans would not do the job.

The bill passed by the House was labelled "a juggler's act" by Sen. John F. Parker (R-Taunton), Senate Minority Leader. He said it will not reduce "the highest cost of auto insurance in the country and anyone who thinks it will is kidding himself."

We think the game is over for this year and venture to speculate that the House and Senate will not agree on a single plan and that no change will be made in the present compulsory insurance law. The Massachusetts motorist will continue to bear his yoke — and that is no joke.

Slanted Reporting

The elections are now over and we are thankful. The voters in Boston and other communities have elected those who will run their local governments for the next four or two years, as the case may be.

During Boston's pre-election campaign many statements were made by candidates dealing with the so-called "issues" in the communities. Many, perhaps, were made in good faith and many, perhaps, just to sway votes. Whatever, the elections are over and the choices of the voters have been made — for good or bad.

What we found disturbing in the Boston election, which was generally regarded as the election holding the most interest in this area throughout the country, was some of the pre-election reporting. The Newsweek magazine article we found slanted and biased out of all proportion and even insulting. To a lesser degree, but not much, were stories and articles appearing in a Boston newspaper.

We do not object to a magazine or a newspaper editorializing — we are doing that here — but we do object strenuously to their editorializing in what are supposed to be objective news columns or news space. Both Newsweek magazine and the Boston newspaper have more and more devoted their new columns to slanted reporting.

How can the public, which depends on Newsweek or the Boston newspaper to get the truth, stand for such undependable reporting? We believe the public wants to know the facts, all the facts. We believe they would like to make their own judgments on an issue or an event. We do not believe they merely want to read the opinions of a young reporter fresh from college who, although he may have a fine academic education and has been imbued with the high-minded theories of his professors, knows nothing of life as lived by the "Moon Mullins family" of our era.

We hope that Newsweek and the Boston newspaper will now begin presenting the news fairly and unbiased and will leave opinion for the editorial page. We suggest that if they don't, readers inevitably will turn to other, more objective publications.

Political Highlights

White achieved not only state-wide prominence but national fame as well when he defeated the highly publicized Mrs. Hicks.

He now stands as the logical Democratic candidate for Governor in 1970.

If he does not run then, he may never realize his desire of being Governor. Indeed, most astute political observers would wonder why White sought office of Mayor if he did not intend to bid for the Governorship three years from now.

Experience has shown that the popularity of a Mayor usually declines after his first term because of the enormity and complexity of the problems with which he must cope.

John F. Collins must be rated as good a Mayor as Boston ever had. But because of the tough decisions he made—decisions which inevitably displeased some segment of Boston's citizens—he was unable to carry his own city in a Democratic primary fight with Endicott Peabody after holding office a little less than seven years.

Collins probably could have been elected Governor in 1964 if there had been an opening for him to run and if he had desired to do so. He certainly could have won state-wide office in 1962 after three years of service as Mayor when his popularity was at its peak.

But 1966 was too late for Collins, and guessing is that 1974 would be too late for White after seven years as Mayor.

That's why it's likely White will set his sights on the Governorship in 1970 rather than wait until his vote-getting ability has been worn down under the pressure of one tough problem after another.

As Boston mayoralty contests go, the White-Hicks fight was an extremely close one. A shift of 6000 votes from White to Mrs. Hicks would have returned the School Committeewoman a winner.

It was an election battle which did not follow the predicted pattern and left most of the pollsters talking to themselves.

White was stronger in some sections of the city than it was expected he would. Mrs. Hicks made a better showing in other areas than it was believed she could.

Political pundits, in sizing up the mayoralty struggle, were in virtual agreement that White had to carry such sections as West Roxbury and Roslindale by a big margin in order to win the election..

Mrs. Hicks ran close behind White in West Roxbury and ahead of him in Roslindale but did not pile up the great pluralities on which she had depended in areas such as East Boston, the North End and portions of Dorchester.

Many political pundits believe they can pinpoint the exact date and time Mrs. Hicks lost the election. They cite it as 9:05 on the night of Oct. 16.

That was the night Mrs. Hicks promised the patrolmen on the Boston police force a $10,000-a-year salary after three years of service.

The experts have been pointing to that as the fatal mistake Mrs. Hicks made.

They declared that this cost her the support of many home-owners who became fearful of a big increase in the Hub's tax rate if she were elected.

The fact is, however, that Mrs. Hicks did not do that poorly in the big home-owning districts where the residents are most conscious of the tax rate.

While her promise of a big raise to the police may have cost Mrs. Hicks some support, the vote returns do not indicate that it was an overriding issue on election day.

Several factors probably did contribute to her defeat.

One Boston newspaper gradually ground her down.

Newspaper articles appearing day after day sold many people the idea that there was a credibility gap in her statements.

Many persons were apprehensive that there would be Negro violence and disorder if she were elected Mayor.

A large number of men would not vote for a woman for Mayor. This was partly offset by the manner in which the women rallied behind Mrs. Hicks.

In face of the handicaps confronting her, Mrs. Hicks made an excellent showing.

However, Mrs. Hicks did make mistakes in the campaign which undoubtedly hurt her and may have even cost her the election.

She had no professional campaign setup. She was strictly an amateaur in politics. As one observer put it, she ran her campaign herself, and she ran it out of a hat box.

Her brother was her campaign manager, and his political experience was limited.

She had no speech-writers. She had no publicity man turning out news releases for her.

For the most part her speeches were extemperaneous and off the top of her head. At times she was carried away by her own enthusiasm and that of her audience.

Her campaign was one that had political observers shaking their heads in amazement. Yet, she almost won.

In fairness to her, she waged her campaign the way she felt it should be conducted. She made her own decisions. And she came within a narrow margin of being Boston's first lady Mayor.

This probably was not Mrs. Hicks' last political fight. The likelihood is that she will run either for State office next year or for the Boston City Council in 1969 to ready herself for another mayoralty bid in 1971.

Kevin White was described as a bland man who waged a bland campaign. That description came from New York newspapers and national publications, whose writers obviously understood little about either Boston's mayoralty contest or the mood of the city's voters.

White made the only kind of campaign he could make and still win. Mrs. Hicks was almost constantly under attack from outside newspapers and publications and from one inside Boston.

If White had joined in the all-out assault upon her, he probably would have killed his own election chances.

As it was, an insulting article in Newsweek Magazine, which obviously was intended to ridicule and hurt Mrs. Hicks, probably helped her because of the public indignation it aroused.

The big problem confronting White throughout the contest was that his opponent was a woman. He had to tailor his campaign accordingly.

The hard - fought battle, which attracted international attention, ended on a gracious note as Mrs. Hicks made a personal appearance at White's headquarters to congratulate him.

Now White settles down to the knowledge that to the winner goes grief as well as glory, problems as well as cheers, headaches as well as handshakes.

White in his victory speech didn't exaggerate the enormity of those problems. He'll earn the $40,000 a year he'll get as Boston's next Mayor.

Poverty Program In Great Danger

President Arthur J. Gartland and Executive Director George Bennett of Action for Boston Community Development, Inc., express extreme worries concerning the fate of this year's Anti-Poverty War before Congress. If amendments proposed by the House Committee on Education and Welfare are incorporated in the final bill, they believe the entire poverty war would be disrupted not only in Boston but throughout the United States.

Boston would suffer a cut in funds of over $1,250,000. It would mean that practically all community action programs would be wiped off the slate. Even some phases of the Head Start program would have to be cut out. The amendments also include provisions making local contributions required by OEO to be made in cash instead of in kind (volunteer services, free municipal rentals, etc.). This would impose a necessity of raising $750,000 locally either through municipal funds or by non-public donations. That would be an impossible task.

The House amendments are being pushed by a strong coalition of Southern Democrats and Northern Republicans. While the Boston delegation in Congress, including Speaker John W. McCormack, are battling to block the amendments, fear is expressed by ABCD that certain members of the Mass. delegation, particularly some of the Republicans outside of Boston, will swing with the economy-minded bloc.

Old Customs

Editor of The Graphic:

How customs change. Years ago, around Hallowe'en time, we would obtain a small pumpkin, cut off the top and scoop out the contents, which our mothers made into a pumpkin pie (minus seeds). We'd cut out a face on it, and put in a candle. At Hallowe'en we would put our costumes on, take our pumpkins and go out and hold them up to our neighbor's windows and knock on their doors and run.

Now, it's all commercialized. The merchants sell special shopping bags. The children take them, put on their costumes, some don't bother with costumes, and go around to the neighbors' houses, demanding "trick or treat." The neighbors hand out candy, etc.

When the children get back home, they see who has collected the most loot.

Viva progress.

Editor of The Graphic:

It does provide quite a jolt to see one's name presumptuously listed in the Graphic under a candidate's political message without ever having signed, seen or known of his advertisement. Election time can bring out the best and the worst in contenders—and also in community "leaders."

It is unfortunate that the bitterness over educational matters this year prompted a kind of fear, distrust and insecurity never before seen in the community. Some respected residents even let themselves deviate from ethical standards in behalf of their favorites during the heat of battle.

Let us now hope that the new school commitee will find it possible to adopt more realistic and less emotional attitudes toward its programs. Many people would like to redirect their energies toward issues like citizen understanding of a school budget, the hopes and promises of a Metco program or a better teacher-pupil ratio.

The ill feeling in the community in relation to education must be honorably removed. The election revealed that there were too few voices of moderation and that a relatively "clean" city like Newton still has many dirty faces.

Very truly yours,
Brenda R. Tanger

Carr School PTA Open House, Book Fair Wed. Nov. 15

The Carr School PTA season will open this year with an Open House and Book Fair at the Nevada Street elementary school at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday evening (Nov. 15th.). Principal Joseph Gattuso invites parents to participate in communication between home and school with any of the questions they have concerning school life.

In previous grade level meetings, Mr. Gattuso has actively sought questions. He has been asked about the pressures upon today's youngsters—both in and out of the classroom; about the new Carr School physical education program emerging from the new look in Massachusetts' overall program for physical fitness; the extent to which study skills are developed at the elementary level; he was asked about homework, about phonics as related to the linquistic reading series; "Why don't elementary schools teach guitar," he was asked.

"You see, we've a broad range of questions. But this is not a one-way educational street,' 'says Joseph Gattuso. "We invite questions so that we can open the communications door. Already a group of parents and educators have sat down to discuss what's happening and what more can be done with instrumental music programming in Newton.

"From behavior to foreign language teaching, questions have been asked," says Eugene Salem, President of Carr School's PTA, "and thanks to a progressive group of educators, Carr School will answer them."

Mr. Salem points out that in keeping with popular tradition, the annual soft-and-hard-cover Book Fair will be held the same evening.

Children will be given an early opportunity to select their own moderately-priced favorites; then, adults can add their own choices in a leisurely browsing period.

Rounding out the evening will be an informal tour of the school's new facilities. For many parents, it will be the first visit to the recently added gym and activities room and multi - purpose fourth grade classrooms in a joined but separate wing of the building. A brand new library, freshly equipped science room, art facilities, audio center and administrative suite will also beckon to visitors.

Refreshments will be served to conclude a full program.

Items 'Most Wanted' by Servicemen in Vietnam

Local residents perplexed as to what to send in packages being mailed to servicemen in Vietnam need wonder no longer.

Combat veterans at the Chelsea Naval Hospital have compiled this list of "most wanted" items:

Canned fruit, wool socks, insect repellent and pre-sweetened drinks.

Canned "ready-to-eat" foods such as ravioli, spaghetti, tuna fish and juices. Lifesavers, chewing gum, canned peanuts and "M and M's."

In addition to socks, personal items desired are shaving gear with stainless steel razor blades, toiletries in plastic tubes, dark color sweat shirts, rain repellent jackets and pants, foot powder, flashlights, toothbrushes and paint brushes used to clean rifles.

The GIs also look forward to hometown newspapers, which can be used as part of the packing, small games, paperback books, magazines and plastic-frame sunglasses.

Don't send cakes and cookies because they will spoil or crumble. Don't send fruit cakes because they're in good supply in Vietnam.

If brownies or similar bar-type cookies must be sent, they should be wrapped in an airtight container which in turn is packed in a resilient material like unbuttered popcorn.

Deadline for packages sent by surface mail to Vietnam is Nov. 15; for air-mail, Dec. 11.

If a package weighs under five pounds and measures no more than 60 inches in length and girth combined, it can be sent by surface mail to San Francisco and then air-lifted on a "space available" basis to Vietnam at no additional cost. The deadline for this mailing is Dec. 1.

Items to be auctioned come from the attics and closets of the friends of the Maryknoll Sisters League of Greater Boston.

Since it was the first time they were used in Newton, extra precautions for accuracy were taken, Licarie said. This probably accounted for some of the long hours.

In addition, voters in more cases than were anticipated, bent the punch card ballots, wrote Xs on them to vote, or in some way caused the computer to reject them in the counting.

These Ballots were counted by hand. A few were mutilated by the computer but not so they could not be read and hand counted.

Licarie, who worked hard to make the trial a success, is probably the most disappointed. He reported that an evaluation of the whole process will be made in an attempt to pinpoint problems and to determine whether or not they can easily be corrected.

After the polls closed on Tuesday, the ballot boxes were taken from each precinct to Boston College where the cards were collated and fed into a computer.

As each precinct was counted, a tally sheet recorded the votes and the sheets were taken to City Hall.

It sounds simple, but for some reason it wasn't.

6th Annual Art And Music Series Opens at Junior College Nov. 15

Charles W. Dudley, president of Newton Junior College, has announced the opening of the Sixth Annual Newton Junior College Art and Music Series, 1967-1968. All events are free of charge and open to the public and will take place at 8:15 p.m. at College Hall, Washington Park, Newtonville.

The Newton Federation of Women's Clubs will be the guests of honor at the first concert by the Curtis String Quartet, to be held at 8:15, Wednesday evening, November 15, at College Hall, Washington Park, Newtonville.

Members of all the Women's Clubs of Newton have been invited as special guests at the concert, and together with the artists of the Curtis String Quartet, they will be greeted at the reception following the program by President Dudley; Dr. Charles D. Merrill, Dean of the College; and members of the faculty. Representative of the Women's Council of the College will assist with the hospitality.

The Art and Music Series, carefully selected and enriched this season, offers a variety of artistic programs throughout the College year.

The Curtis String Quartet, one of the best known chamber music ensembles of the present day, has distinguished itself both here and abroad in more than 2,500 recitals for more than two decades.

Their superlative interpretations of the classical and contemporary repertoire are far-famed, and the sweep and style with which they perform have continually commanded the acclaim of the critics. Each member is a virtuoso, and in recent years they have furthered their fame individually as distinguished members of the faculty of Philadelphia's well known New School of Music. They are: Jascha Brodsky; Violinist; Geoffrey Michaels, Violinist; Max Aronoff, Violist; and Orlando Cole, Cellist.

On December 6, Angus Whyte of the Newton Junior College Faculty, will give a harpsichord recital. Angus Whyte studied harpsichord with Alan Curtis at the University of California at Berkeley, with Isolde Ahlgrimm at the Salzburg Mezarteum Academy, and with Gustav Leonhardt at the Amsterdam Conservatory.

In Europe he has performed at the Bayerischer Rundfunk in Munich, at the Salzburg Mozarteum Academy, and at the Concertgebouw and the Bachzaal in Amsterdam. In the United States he has performed extensively on the West Coast and locally, in addition to solo recitals, is currently performing with the Cambridge Society for Early Music and the Camerata of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. This Summer he held a fellowship in harpsichord at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood.

On December 13, the art film, "Children of Paradise" will be shown. Directed by Marcel Carne and written by Jacques Prevert, this great French film classic is both a triumph of romantic ism and a sweeping portrait of early nineteenth century Paris.

Centering on the lives of the members of the traditional French vaudeville theatre, Carn's masterpiece develops into a vast panorama of all the people — their loves, their joys, and their sorrows — of the Paris of that legendary era.

On January 10, 1968, the College will present Eunice Alberts, nationally known contralto. Among the most notable of her numerous outstanding appearances was in "Moses and Aaron" by Shoenberg at the world premiere in Boston. Miss Alberts also sang a solo in the Mozart Requiem for the late President Kennedy at the Holy Cross Cathedral.

On February 14, 1968, the film classic "I'm All Right Jack", starring Peter Sellers, will be shown. This uproarious comedy which satirizes labor - management relations, also offers Peter Sellers one of his choicest roles as a union shop steward. The comedian received the British Film Academy Award for this performance.

On March 6, 1968, Jesus Maria Sanroma will appear in recital. An all-time favorite among American pianists, Sanroma's remarkable record is eloquent testimony to his popularity. He has played over 2,000 concerts in nineteen different countries, over 600 performances with nearly 100 different orchestras, and has starred at the major music festivals both here and abroad. He has been acclaimed as an outstanding virtuoso, whose playing is beautiful, brilliant, and sensitive.

The final event of this Art and Music Series is the dramatic production of the Newton Junior College Players, "The Adding Machine," by Elmer Rice. This play expresses the futility and the tragedy of the mediocre spirit. The annual productions of the Newton Junior College Players have gained public interest to the extent that each performance has played to standing-room-only audiences. Under the direction of Dr. Emil Freniere, Chairman of the Department of Humanities at the College, each production approaches professional staging and interpretation.

Among the Honorary patrons of this series are: Governor and Mrs. John A. Volpe, Senator and Mrs. Edward M. Kennedy, Senator and Mrs. Edward Brooke, State Senator Mrs. Leslie B. Cutler, State Senator Berryl W. Cohen, Representative Paul F. Malloy, Representative Joseph G. Bradley, Representative Theodore D. Mann, Representative Irving Fishman, Mayor and Mrs. Monte G. Now that elections are over and the 1967 Red Sox Season is a fond memory we can all pay a little more attention to our private lives and work. And with the advent of Standard Time, all evening golfing or landscaping activities can be put off 'til next spring, so I'm not too unhappy to inaugurate my Fall schedule of evening business hours. Starting today, we will be open every night until 9:00 p.m., Monday thru Friday. Each year, my dream is that my quota of Christmas business can be realized early enough for me to leisurely enjoy the Christmas holiday. So, for both our sakes, let's get that Christmas shopping completed early this year!

U.S. Engaged In Two Wars, Brooke Says

The United States is presently engaged in two wars, Sen. Edward W. Brooke said this week in an address at Lasell Junior College in Auburndale.

The Senator told an audience of students, alumnae, parents and faculty attending cornerstone ceremonies that the wars are in Vietnam, with its devastating and disastrous losses in lives and money, and the war of civil disorders, poverty and educational needs in urban America.

The program, held during parents weekend, marked the construction of Lasell's $1,500,000 library. More than 1,000 persons attended.

Sen. Brooke, referring to the recent anti demonstrations in Washington and the pro demonstration in Wakefield last Sunday, said that "young people on both sides" have a message which he said should be heeded. He described the youth of today as "the committed generation."

He stressed today's need for "dedicated concern, integrity and a total commitment —by colleges and universities, businesses and individuals—to help people help themselves, rather than relief programs."

Following the Senator's address, a box containing memorabilia of Lasell and the current times was placed in the cornerstone by Robert W. Manon, vice-president of the Henry E. White Construction Co. of Newtonville.

Among the memorabilia were blueprints of the building, which were placed in the box by Edward T. Steffian, the library architect. Also, a Lasell catalogue and copies of student and alumnae publications at Lasell, as well as a roster of students for this year.

The cornerstone was sealed by Sen. Brooke and Lasell Trustee Chairman Wilder Smith of Auburndale. It will not be opened for 100 years.

The ceremonies highlighted a day-long schedule of events marking Lasell Parents' Day.

Lasell President Vincent C. DeBaun presided at the ceremonies. Other guests were Sen. Leslie B. Cutler, Mayor Monte G. Basbas, Alderman Louis I. Egelson, Jr., Miss Frances Atwood of Newton Highlands, head librarian at Lasell, and Lawrence A. Paley, of Providence, chairman of the Lasell Parents' Association.

Following luncheon, there was an address by John H. Fenton, a Lasell parent and New England correspondent for The New York Times.

Lasell's octet, the Lamplighters, presented a selection of songs, and there were informal panel discussions with department chairmen and faculty. Lasell parents also toured the new dormitory facilities.

Others who took part in the library ceremony were Miss June Babcock, dean of Lasell; Mrs. Bruce Bredehoft, alumnae representative, and Mrs. Ruth T. Lindquist, faculty representative.

The cornerstone committee had Mrs. Mary B. Van Etten as chairman and included; Miss Atwood, Mrs. Lydia Kavanagh, Mrs. Frank Kneisel, Sebastian F. Mignosa, Dr. Richard M. Packard, Mrs. Barbara Parkhurst, Miss Jacqueline Saunders and Miss Amelia J. Terrazano.

Preceding an afternoon open house in the new dormitory areas, panel discussions were held for parents by department chairmen and faculty from each of the college's curriculum. These included art, child study, executive and medical secretarial, nursing, retailing, and liberal arts, academic and medical technology.

DeBrun, U.S. Senator Edward W. Brooke, principal speaker; Lawrence A. Paley, chairman, Lasell Parents Association; Wilder N. Smith, of Auburndale, Lasell trustee chairman; and Robert W. Rev. deSousa Speaks To Jaycees On India Today

Rev. Herbert A. deSousa, S.J., President of St. Xavier College, Ahmadabad, India, was guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Newton Junior Chamber of Commerce here. He is presently visiting professor of Indian Culture at the Newton College of the Sacred Heart.

Rev. de Souza discussed three major problems with which India is faced today. First is India's survival on a physical plane. He said that India's present population stands at 510,000,000 and is increasing at the rate of around 1,000,000 a month. Because of better health methods introduced by this country, he said the U.S. is partly responsible for this population explosion. Because India's agricultural methods are still very primitive and totally dependent on the monsoons, "the spectre of famine stalks the land."

The second problem cited is political in nature. Rev. deSouza said that for centuries India has been considered impregnable geographically. However, in this day and age she can never forget her proximity to Russian and China. Therefore, he said, India must keep an equitable relationship with them both. This political requirement sometimes makes India appear unthankful for U.S. aid.

The third problem discussed is India's governmental situation. Congress today does not apparently speak for the whole country; and it seems that India is being drawn into the red world. In referring to the communist influences in Indian governmental affairs, Rev. deSouza said, "By in large, Indians feel they have seen enough of that form of life to have done with it."

He concluded his talk by saying that it is not often that a nation such as India encounters such generosity and sincerity from another people without the need for requital. Generosity of this nature without obvious strings attached makes the recipient constantly searching for those strings. This, he said, "gives an appearance of ingratitude which does not exist in this case."

In the last analysis, he said, "the U.S. must first decide what its own interests are before she determines India's needs." And these interests must not be "detrimental of the brotherhood of man and must cement more strongly the sovereignty of nations."

After a standing ovation for Rev. deSouza, Jaycee President Charles E. Aucoin presented him with a certificate of appreciation for addressing the group.

INTERIOR OF THE HATCHERY, which opened last week on the VFW parkway, West Roxbury, featuring chicken and seafood. There is comfortable seating for 40 people in a homey farm atmosphere.

First Hatchery Is Hatched On VFW Parkway, West Roxbury

Grand opening ceremonies for the Hatchery, a new chain of franchised chicken and seafood outlets, were held last week at the first unit on the VFW Parkway, West Roxbury.

Massachusetts Lieutenant Governor, Francis Sargeant, cut the ribbon with the help of "Miss Hatchery" (1966 Miss Massachusetts) who wore a striking costume with yellow feathered hat and shoulder cape and a plastic egg for a body and bright yellow tights and "mod" boots.

Hatchery is a division of the Mister Donut Corporation, the world's largest international chain of franchised donut and coffee shops. Mister Donut President, David B. Slater, stated that in addition to over 250 donut shops, his firm franchises a group of Tarry 'n Taste muffin and sandwich outlets and is well staffed to launch this newest food chain.

An attractive barnyard motif highlights the contemporary design of the Hatchery. An abundance of rough-hewed beams and authentic barn shingles are used on both the building and large road-side illuminated sign. The colors are barn red, sunny yellow, and deep brown.

Women Voters Discussion Units Due Nov. 15, 16, 17

Discussion Units will be held by the League of Women Voters of Newton on November 15, 16 and 17 to set up criteria for a library site as a guide to the League in any future action it may take in support of a particular site.

Since the issuance of the Humphry-NcNiff library study in 1964 with its recommendation of the Mason School site in Newton Centre, there has been much discussion but no agreement in the Board of Aldermen and the community over an acceptable site for a new main library.

There has been a difference of opinion between the Mayor's Site Committee and the majority of the Board of Library Trustees and, recently, between the Public Buildings Committee and the Finance Committee of the Aldermanic Board.

Unit meetings are open to the public, although only League members may vote. The League invites the citizens of Newton to attend the Library Site Units this month. In this way, a cross section of the community can express an opinion that may be of value to the recently created Aldermanic Library Site Committee.

The meetings will be held on: Wednesday morning (Nov. 15 — 9:30 to 11:15 at the Newtonville Library, 345 Walnut St., Newtonville: (Please use Highland Ave. entrance). The hostess is Mrs. Robert Capeless. The leader is Mrs. Charles Ryan.

Wednesday afternoon (Nov. 15—1:15 to 3:00) at the home of Mrs. Gerald Golden, 83 Hammondswood Road, Chestnut Hill. The leader is Mrs. Ernest Picard.

Wednesday evening (Nov. 15—8:00 to 9:45) at the home of Mrs. Alan Goldberg, 31 Sheffield Road, Newtonville. The hostess is Mrs. Sherman Grossman. The leader is Mrs. Alan Goldberg.

Thursday morning (Nov. 16—9:30 to 11:15) at the Newton Highlands Workshop, 2 Columbus St., Newton Highlands. The hostess is Mrs. John W. Locke. The leader is Mrs. Louis Orzack. The co-leader is Mrs. W. Erlich.

Thursday evening (Nov. 16—8:00 to 9:45) at the home of Mrs. Melvin Clayton, 265 Upland Avenue, Newton Highlands. The leader is Mrs. Maynard Slessinger.

Friday morning (Nov. 17—8:00 to 9:45) at the Auburndale Congregational Church, 64 Hancock St., Auburndale. The hostess is Mrs. Douglass Moran. The leader is Mrs. Ralph Rosenbaum. (A baby sitter will be in attendance.)

The Resource Committee for this library study is composed of Mrs. Eugene Bronstein, Mrs. John Coddington, Mrs. Alan Crist, Mrs. Robert Green, Mrs. Edgar Brown, Mrs. Kenneth Quinlan, Mrs. Theodore Singer, and Mrs. Charles Ryan, Chairman. For further information, Mrs. Ryan may be contacted at 527-4408.

Youths Seek Jobs To Help Finance PTA Hobby-Shop

A work day at Newton Corner, to support a community venture, an after school hobby-shop, will be conducted on Sunday, November 18th, from 1 until 6 p.m.

At a recent meeting, representatives from the top four grades of Underwood volunteered to have one brief Work Day under the helpful guidance of the Senior EYC of Grace Church.

They made $100 their ambitious target to be made by baby-sitting, car washing, yard and basement cleaning, and paint-washing with (weather permitting) a cookie sale at the site of the Car Wash on Watertown road.

This is a group of very enthusiastic youngsters, anxious to make some money in order to learn something new, exciting and worthwhile during these coming months. If you have cellars that need cleaning, cars or paint-work that needs washing, baby-sitting or leaf raking to be done please call Mrs. Marshall at 527-2988.

Fishman Rejects Keeton-O'Connell

Rep. Irving Fishman of Newton last week said he would hesitate to vote for the Keeton-O'Connell automobile insurance plan without an intensive study. "Keeton-O'Connell would undermine the emphasis on safety and safe driving," he maintained. Fishman affirmed that changes in automobile insurance should be made in a "responsible way." An attempt to revive the Keeton-O'Connell plan in the House was killed on a rollcall vote.

Headlights And Highlights From Newton South High

By JAMES SHULMAN

"That orbed maiden, with white fire laden, whom mortals call the moon . . ." (Percy Bysshe Shelly), will visit Newton South High School this week!

"Dark of the Moon," the Newton South fall drama production, based on one of the many versions of the haunting ballad of "Barbara Allen," will be presented in the South auditorium Nov. 16, 17, and 18 at 8 p.m.

The play is a story of John, the witch boy, who falls in love with the beautiful Barbara Allen. In order to woo and marry Barbara, John makes a compact with the Conjur Woman. In the deal, John is turned into a human, and Barbara must stay loyal to him for a year, or else John will be turned back into a witch by the Conjur Woman. The remainder of the play deals with John's life with Barbara in Buck Creek located in the Smokey mountains and the outside forces which hinder their happiness.

The witch-boy, John, is played by Jeremy Mann, and Deborah Platt plays the beautiful Barbara Allen. The audience will be moved by Debbie's lovely voice, as she sings her life story, "The Ballad of Barbara Allen." Ruth Maclosky, a talented actress, who has had experience in professional acting, plays the part of Barbara's mother. And Mr. Allen is played by Stanley Schertzer.

Harris Gershman, who portrays Preacher Haggler, moves the sinners in his congregation to "repent all their sins," as he wrings his hat and fervently pleads with them to "let the Lord show you his grace." Larry Kaplan is the amusing Uncle Smelicue, who always has a sin to confess, and livens up the show when he comes running down the aisle, amongst the audience screaming "the spirit gonna move me to-night fer shore." Herbert Lustig plays Barbara's boy friend is supposedly the strongest man in the county.

Other important members of the community are: Miss Metcalf, portrayed by Carrie Gershman, who is a spinster and a gossip; Mrs. Summey, played by Rhonda Blair, whose daughter Edna, portrayed by Andrea Bryant, is quite a catty character.

Barbara's brother is played by Richard Stich, and other inhabitants of Buck Creek are portrayed by: William Oser, Steven Sacks, Stephen Kaye, Kirk Pantos, and Jerry Altman. Also participating are: Maryanne Juillerette, Leslie Filiurin, Nancy Tobin, Patti Kovitch, Nancy Megrian and Mark Ochs.

Four extremely important characters who greatly control the course of events that occur in the play are John's witch friends. Ellen Model does a superb job as the Conjur Woman. She is dripping with evil in everything she says and does, and her blood-curling laughs are enough to make the bravest person twindge.

Andrew Krinsky portrays the Conjur Man, and Deborah Levy and Laurie Zallen play the Dark and the Fair witch —who constantly torment and tease John when he is a human, by reminding him of his witch days, when he could ride on his eagle and fly by the moon at night.

Although "Dark of the Moon" is not a musical, there is singing, dancing, and music in almost every scene. The songs are of folk nature, and range from the sad melodious "Ballad of Barbara Allen" to the rustic, humorous "Mountain Dew Song." Also during a stirring and frenzied revival meeting there are several emotional church hymnals, such as "No Never Alone," and "Take my hand, take my hand and lead me to the promised land."

Larry Kaplan, a talented guitarist, and Steven Sacks, a fine accordianist, accompany the singers for many of these songs. They composed music and lyrics for other songs as well a adopt and arrange the music for the songs previously named.

Lois Levine, the choreographer, created several extremely unusual and interesting dances. They are lively dances and jigs, done by the towns folk of Buck Creek, in addition to several dances done by witches to a background of eery, electronic music. Dancers include Lois Levine, Deborah Levy, Marcy Klan and Wendy Flashner.

The unique stage setting and design is one of the most influential characteristics of the play. The actors and actresses not only act on the stage—they act on the floor of the auditorium as well. The stage has been constructed by the Art Department, so that there are different levels to it, to represent a mountain. These various levels add to the uniqueness of the witch dances, because the witches are able to run up and leap off from various heights, in addition to dancing on the stage itself.

Also heightening the interest of the play is the switching of scenes from the Buck Creek environment to the eery atmosphere of Old Baldy Mountain, where the witches reside.

She stage crew under the management of Peter Bouroughs, and the acting management of Charles Haughton have devoted many hours coordinating the various sound and lightning techniques required. Len Schnabel, in charge of lighting; and Fred Husher, in charge of sound are responsible for the thunder, lightning, eagle calls, electronic music, and other effects necessary to create a haunting and eery atmosphere. Helping these people behind the scenes are: Stuart Glazer, Marvin Goldman, John Hall, Randy Berkson, Denise Bethel, Robert Klugman, Carol Radlo, Daniel Veaner, Michele Cooke, Jacqueline Calnon, Joel Kaufman and Dana Kessin.

The play is being directed by Mr. Ernest Chamberlain, who is the head of the theatre arts department at Newton South High School. Also helping with the production are Linda Gershman, the production manager for the play; Lucy Sollogub, the junior apprentice, and Deborah Rosenthal, the sophomore apprentice.

Urban-Suburban Subjects

By Dorothy Ingram

One of the current topics of concern to both the city dweller and the commuter is public transportation. Such suburban towns as Needham presently enjoy adequate train service, but the age old threat of "for how long?" is ever-present. Such cities as Boston suffer from antiquated subway-trolley systems. Thus we are all concerned with the problems of public transportation in some way.

A public interest exhibition outlining the concepts behind the renovation of the Mass. Bay Transit Authority system and the solution to some of Greater Boston's urban transportation problems is being extended through the month of November, by popular demand, at the Institute of Contemporary Act, 100 Newbury St., Boston. The exhibition was designed and installed by Cambridge Seven, Associates and is entitled, Design in Transit. Part of the exhibit includes a full-scale model of a portion of a new "train" that visitors can actually step into and try out the seats. This is as interesting to children as to adults . . . I have first hand experience backing up this statement! . . . so it can be a family outing.

Representatives of architectural firms are present at Gallery Talks at 3 p.m. Sunday afternoons—open to the public—where various aspects of Design in Transit are discussed. Of special interest to the men who work in Boston, there are lunch hour discussions, by registration only, every Wednesday and Thursday. Regular Institute hours are daily, except Monday, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Wednesday evenings until 9 o'clock. Admission for nonmembers is 25 cents; members, free. Located in the Liberty Mutual building, the I. C. A. is easily accessible from Copley Square and the Arlington St. subway.

Newton Council of PTA Hears Dr. H. Berman

Dr. Harold Berman, chairman of the Newton School Committee, while guest speaker at the Newton PTA Council meeting last Thursday, described the committee as a forum before which the school administration can test the ideas of professional educators. He spoke during the meeting at the Underwood School, chaired by Council President Bernard I. Kaplan.

Among those attending were Dr. Charles E. Brown, superintendent; School Committee members, principals, teachers, PTA presidents, and guests. Included were Mrs. Carmella Nadeau, assistant principal at Underwood, and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Teplow, presidents of Underwood PTA.

Dr. Berman traced the history of Massachusetts school committees, stating that great power was vouchsafed to them by the founding fathers in an attempt to free the school committees from city, state, and federal governments. One of the results is that the School Committee is entirely responsible for the school budget. Teachers' salaries, he said, were the most significant part of the budget, with the level of education in Newton depending upon the quality of teachers the school system can attract.

He outlined the various functions of the School Committee and described the procedure to be followed by an individual facing a problem in connection with the school . . . from the classroom teacher to the school principal, then to the superintendent and finally to the School Committee.

He mentioned that an individual may speak at a School Committee meeting if he submits a written request one week in advance.

Dr. Berman's explanation of the School Committee's relationship to the city government, to the school administration, and to the local citizens was one move of several planned by PTA Council President Bernard I. Kaplan in an effort to improve the widely recognized problem of communication between the school system and other groups within the city.

Mrs. Norma Mintz of the School Committee, also talking about avenues of communication, spoke of the gap between the technology of education and the layman's experience in the educational process. She hoped there would be more of a dialogue between the School Committee members and the general public on subjects that need clarification.

Mr. Kaplan announced that the PTA Council, in an effort to make its executive board more representative, will name five additional PTA presidents to the board, in accordance with a recent change of the by-laws.

In welcoming the group, Henry H. Atkins, principal of the Underwood School, mentioned that the school had been named for Civil War General Adin B. Underwood, who was chairman of the Newton School Committee in 1872 and 1873.

The Council accepted the budget presented by Mr. Nomi Henes, treasurer. John Webber, Council liaison to the School Committee also read his report.

Questions from the floor touched on more complete use of school buildings during non-school time; how the general public may express not only grievances at School Committee meetings but also opinions and suggestions; by what mechanism the School Committee makes plans with the Mayor for building new schools in Newton; a broader base for funding public education (Dr. Berman, raised the question of donations from private sources); and the problem of redistricting some of the schools for a more equal distribution between the under-attended and the over-crowded.

Pretty Fall Wedding For Miss Crowley, Mr. Toomey

A reception at the Blue Hills Country Club in Canton followed the recent wedding of Miss Catherine Coyle Crowley and Mr. Edward William Toomey, which took place in St. Catherine of Siena Church, Norwood.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Crowley of Norwood. She is a graduate of Ursuline Academy, Dedham, and Elizabeth Seton College, Westchester, New York.

Mr. Toomey, the son of Mrs. Reginald E. Smith of Newtonville and the late Edward William Toomey, is a graduate of Boston College and is presently a candidate for his master's degree in business administration at Suffolk University.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a demi-fitted gown of English net which was appliqued with motifs of Alencon lace sprinkled with pearls and sequins and was terminated with a circular skirt of silk faced peau.

Her waterfall veil of imported silk illusion, held in place by a circle of matching lace, cascaded to the hemline of the gown, creating a cage effect. She carried a small bouquet of Eucharis lilies set off with carmillion foliage.

Mary Anna Crowley was her sister's maid of honor, and the seven bridesmaids were Miss Judith E. Folan and Miss Carolyn Runci, both of Norwood; Miss Mary Ellen Crowley of Belmont, Miss Michele E. Stearns of Jewett City, Conn., Miss Elizabeth E. Costello of Cumberland, R.I., Miss Jo-Ann Pennings of Warwick, N.Y., and Mrs. Thomas J. Regan of West Roxbury.

Serving as best man for his brother was Mr. Richard Leo Toomey of Newtonville, while two other brothers, Mr. Robert B. Toomey and Mr. Stephen G. Toomey of Newtonville, headed the ushers' list.

Ushers also included Mr. William Crowley, Jr., of Norwood, Mr. Edward J. Matthews, Jr., of amaica Plain, Mr. Edward J. O'Neil, Jr., of Ashland, Mr. Harold B. St. Onge of Cohasset, and Mr. Byron G. Tosi, Jr., of Boston.

The couple has returned from a honeymoon in Puerto Rico and the surrounding islands. They plan to live in Warwick, R.I.

Headlights And Highlights From Newton High School

By KATE SOLOMON

Newton High calmly takes the place among the Hollywood stars. Tuesday, October 31, Adams House sponsored "The Dating Game," modeled exactly after the daily TV show.

Nancy Barr and Leo Blair were chosen randomly from the Adams House applications to be the contestants. They were allowed to prepare questions overnight.

On Tuesday, three boys and three girls were chosen from the audience. Each was a potential mate for the two contestants and had to answer the questions they were asked.

Sample questions were: "If I called you up to come to a 'come as you are party' and you were taking a shower, what would you do?" "If you came to pick me up and my grandmother, dressed in a mini skirt, took my place, what would be your reaction?" "Do you consider yourself pretty?" "Sing me a stupid song." One can imagine the answers!

At the conclusion of each 10 minute question period, the contestant had to choose either person No. 1, person No. 2, or person No. 3, having seen none of them. The two winning couples were given free tickets to see "Gone With the Wind," on Saturday night, November 11.

Leo Blair had a choice among Natalie Levine, Chris Matzak, and Barbara Marzilla and apparently liked either the voice or the answers of Chris the best. Nancy Barr could have picked Joe Picarello, Jeff Danis, or Steve Santarpio. She decided upon Joe.

"The Dating Game" match was held instead of the usual orientation assembly of meeting the officers and hearing their speeches. Adams House president Alan Rondina, and housemaster Mr. Norman Gaudet, however, gave short talks highlighting the necessity of student participation.

Riley House

Riley House is planning an assembly for Jan. 29, 1968. Ideas that have been suggested according to house president, Betsy Beard, are 1) a movie, 2) a battle of the bands, and 3) a panel discussion on a topic such as Viet Nam or drugs.

Riley House, in addition, hopes to sponsor a school-wide dance. So far this year, it has held an orientation assembly with free coffee and cookies and on Nov. 16 will sponsor a coffee hour for the whole house.

Beals House

Beals House sells coffee and donuts every Thursday. Last week, they added taffee apples to their menu. Jeff Hyman, house president, calls the breakfasts "a great financial success," and is very pleased with the sales.

A music assembly for Beals House members will be performed in the near future. The band, called "Yesterday Dawn," is headed by Jay Civilli, a Beals House student.

Barry House

The Barry House council is attempting to alter detention hall techniques. In the future students who have been given detention, will help clean up the school grounds and do odd tasks for teachers and secretaries. "Detention," said Barry House president, Cindy Mackay, "should not be spent doing absolutely nothing, as students have a tendency to do."

Barry House plans to sponsor a school-wide Christmas party. Mr. Michael Morris, Newton High English teacher, will play the role of Santa Claus.

A live band will be provided for dancing, and refreshments will be served.

There is a possibility that a few Newton High students will perform as "go-go girls," at the dance. Bacon House and Palmer House have not yet elected officers.

A. F. S.

Two N.H.S. students have been blessed by the wrath of their interviewers. Friday, November 3, Kathy Gurd, a senior, and Beth O'Leary, a junior at Murray Rd., were notified that they were the two A.F.S. semi-finalists from Newton High.

Nine N.H.S. students initially applied for the A.F.S. abroad program. After the preliminary applications were handed in, accompanied by a personal statement, the school record of each applicant was examined. English and language teachers, in addition to the students' guidance counselors wrote recommendations.

Each student was then individually interviewed by either Miss Nancy Dellmuth, as history teacher, or Mr. Norman Gaudet. Three out of the nine candidates were eliminated after this interview.

The second interview involved a committee of eight or nine people who talked with the remaining students in groups of two, and three. After this interview, the family of each applicant was visited; the purpose—to see how each student acted in a family environment. And then, the students were chosen.

Kathy and Beth will not be notified of their acceptance or rejection as finalists until late spring or early summer. Two years ago, Bonnie Bell, an A.F.S. finalist was not told of her acceptance until August.

Last year, Russ Berman did not find out that he was going to Austria until mid-July. However, Newton has a high record of finalists; last year, three out of four were chosen.

Angela Pope spoke at the A.F.S. meeting Thursday, November 2. Angela comes from Sussex, England, and is living with some friends of her family. She is a student at Newton High this year and talked to the club about the English schools and about the English government system.

Club News

Certain clubs at Newton High do nothing but play around, play cards and chess, that is. The Bridge Club, headed by Kate Solomon, plays duplicate bridge once a week. The club keeps a record of the weekly winners, and a couple of times a year holds meets with other schools..

The officers of the club, besides Kate, are Tony Pappas, vice president; Jill Breslau, secretary, and Peter Black, treasurer.

The other "game club" is the chess club. The chess club, like the bridge club, holds internal meets, with an initial pyramid, then various individual challenges.

The Newton High chess club is a member of the Greater Boston Chess League. There are seven other teams in the league and Newton plays each team twice. Larry Samet, from Newton High is the league's president. The remaining officers come from other schools.

Larry is also the president of the chess club itself. Harvey Baker is the club's vice president, and David Salett the secretary-treasurer. Joel Krakow is the team captain and is responsible for deciding which ten players will play at each meet.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore an ivory Bianchi gown designed of peau de soie and Belgium lace. The empire bodice had elbow-length sleeves and the A-line skirt terminated in a chapel length train.

Her bouffant full-length illusion veil was fastened to a matching lace crown. She carried a cluster of white roses with ivy.

After a honeymoon in Bermuda, Mr. McLaughlin and his bride will live in Stoneham.

Hawaii's Flag Is Like Union Jack

HONOLULU (UPI) — "Dear me," said the startled Englishman as he peered at the Hawaii state flag flying atop a fire house, "have we extended the British Empire to Honolulu?"

His remark was not unnatural. Many visitors to Hawaii are surprised when they see the state flag. It bears a strong resemblance to the British Union Jack.

The Hawaii flag, like the Union Jack, is red, white and blue. But the similarity Union Jack actually is emblazoned on the upper left quarter of the state flag.

Eight red, white and blue stripes fill out the rest of the flag. The stripes represent the major islands of Hawaii.

Legend says the flag was designed by King Kamohamera I in the early part of the 19th century. The story goes that the king, with the help of his British advisors, designed the flag to serve as the symbol of his monarchy on ships sailing to the Orient.

Fumbles Blamed . . .

South Edged By Rindge 12-8, For Second Defeat

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

The Newton South football squad reeled to their second consecutive defeat last Saturday, as they were up-ended by Rindge Tech, 12-8.

Two Newton fumbles were the direct result of both Rindge touchdowns. Both came in the first period and Tech made the most of their breaks, scoring once on a pass play and once on a short run. This, coupled with a crunching defense, stymied the Lion offense time and again.

The two Rindge scores held up throughout the game. The score remained 12-0 for three periods before the Lions got on the board on a 10-yard run by Nick Parnell for his fourth touchdown of the season, to cap off the Lions' only sustained drive of the afternoon. Quarterback Tommy Rezzuti carried it over to make the conversion attempt good. The Rindge defense stiffened to stave off a desperation drive by South in the final moments.

The loss dropped the Lion record to 5-2.

The Newton South soccer team concluded their season this week with two ties, to bring their seasons's slate to 2-8-3.

The first game, on Halloween, found the Lions pitted against Brockton in a clash that was highlighed by strong defense on both sides. The game ended in a 0-0 tie as darkness closed in to preserve the double shut-out for Ned Morse of the Lions and the Brockton goalie. Both were superb netminders.

On November 2 the Lions battled Brookline to a 2-2 tie. Ned Morse was again the goalie and he gained his third consecutive tie. Wade Johnson tallied the first goal for South as he threaded the Indian defense for an unassisted goal. Frank Hurvitz booted the second score on a penalty kick. John Schaffer excelled for South as his pinpoint passing was a determining factor.

The Newton South Cross-country team avenged some early season defeats due to bad luck as they finished in a tie for third place in the eight team Suburban League Championship meet.

The Lions copped places 7, 8, 23, 31 and 36 for a team score of 105 to tie Medford. The Lions placers were Dave Whitney, Jeff Davis, Rick Levin, Dave Williams, and Fred Kaye.

Newton High took first place as they placed five men in the top ten including one, two finishers, Bob Tennant and Bill Tomb. The Tigers also took fourth, sixth and tenth for a winning total of 23 points.

Waltham was second, led by sophomore Moe Bordenca, who romped home in third place. Waltham's total was 52.

Medford followed, in a third place tie with the Lions at 105. Their top finisher was Tom Waterfall in fifth. Malden, Arlington, Everett, and Revere followed, in fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth places, respectively.

Tough Newton Defense Defeats New Bedford, 8-0

The tough Newton High defense, relying mainly on great performances by Robbie Cohen, Ron Arcese and Bill Thurston, forced a safety and set up a touchdown as the Tigers edged an aggressive New Belford team, 8-0, Saturday at Dickinson Stadium.

Following the opening kickoff, three unsuccessful New Bedford plays lost 16 yards. On fourth down, Cohen broke through the Whaler's line to block the punt which bounced out of the en dzone for a two point safety.

The 2-0 score remained until early in the fourth period. A Thurston punt put New Bedford on their 10 yard line, one of the many times during the game that the visitors were situated deep in their own territory.

On first down, quarterback Tom Farias sent a receiver deep down the Newton sideline. Farias tried to lob the ball over Ron Arcese's head to his streaking teammate, but Ron made a leaping finger-tip interception and carried the ball bac kto the New Bedford nine.

Fullback Cohen took the opening play hand'f and, with fine blocking, went over the right side of the line into the endzone for Newton's final tally.

Although Cohen and Arcese made clutch plays, coach Jim Ronayne cited co-captain Thurston as Newton's most outstanding player. Thurston was personally responsible for ending two New Bedford scoring marches.

Thurston's first key play occurred midway through the third period with New Bedford threatening inside the Newton 30. With a fourth and one from the Tiger 20, Thurston, a defensive back, spotted the run and thwarted the ball carrier at the line of scrimmage.

Billy's second defensive gem came with time running out in the final stanza and the Whalers on the home team's 48. Desperate for a score, Farias attempted his 17th pass of the afternoon. Near the 20, Thurston picked it off, depriving the visitors of the ball for the remainder of the game.

Offensively, the Tigers displayed a more varied attack than in previous games, with quarterback Reggie Benn running rollout option plays in which he could either pass, run or lateral to the back trailing him.

Conscious of this outside threat, New Bedford was unable to concentrate on blocking up the middle, giving Cohen better running room. Robbie responded with a fine day, gaining 58 yards in 13 carries.

Despite the victory, not everything was rosy as Bob Wargin, Mark Hoffman and Joe Picariello had to leave the game due to injuries. Hoffman and Picariello sustained shoulder injuries while Wargin broke a bone in his left arm.

The cross-country team, led by the one-two finish of Bob Tennant and Bill Tomb, successfully defended its Suburban League Meet title last week at the 2.7-mile Mt. Ida course.

Tennant, the Newton captain, repeated his victory of last year by winning with a time of 14:04. Tomb, also seconded last year, finished with a 14:08 clocking, 15 yards back.

Moe Bordenca of Waltham placed third but Dave Hoover (fourts), Doug Tomb (sixth), and Jeff Hyman (tenth) gave the Tigers the winning margin. Newton compiled 23 points, the record low, to Waaltham's 54.

In the state All-Class Meet Saturday Newton finished ninth with 234 points. Brockton, the winner, had 61.

The soccer team finished its season with a string of six straight wins to record a 7-6-1 mark, third in the Suburban League.

In last week's action, the Tigers beat previously undefeated Medford High, 2-1, behind goals by Bob Houghteling and Skip Stearns. In Newton's 3-1 triumph over Watertown High, Houghteling, Stearns, and Barry Harsip scored.

Christmas Cards Offer The Most In Numbers, Designs This Year

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEY YORK (UPI) — The Christmas card story this season is written with superlatives.

More of them expected to be sent, more of them reflecting the true spirit of the season, and more designs "bigger, brighter and more colorful."

There are new design motifs, new color schemes, new papers, and "many innovations in exciting graphic arts processes," reports the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

Steve Shannon, the association's executive director, said that estimates are that more than 3.5 billion cards will be mailed in 1967, an increase of eight per cent over last year.

The association doesn't like to talk about what this record total will mean in actual retail dollers. But a little figuring on your own gives an idea. Say the average card costs 10 cents. That would mean a retail sales figure of $350 million, probably a conservative guess since cards each year get a little fancier and you can spend many times that 10 cents on the more elegant ones with engraved signatures.

The Yule season is the biggest in sales for any one holiday period for the greeting card industry. And Shannon says it also is a big revenue producer for Uncle Sam — it will take more than $200 million in postage to send the '67 greetings.

Shannon reports further that nearly 60 million American families will send cards, with each family averaging 75 cards. Figuring again on that 10 cents per card basis, each family would spend $7.50 on cards, plus $3.50 on postage if sent by regular first class mail, or $6, if all went air mail.

This year, we'll choose from some 50,000 designs, 30 per cent of them with a religious motif.

The word "Peace" also features prominently on the new greetings. One, a striking design, introduces an ancient map of the world in warm colors with the word "Peace" predominantly in burnished gold raised letters across the entire illustration.

Another popular theme is the age-old story of the "lion and the lamb," a motif introduced successfully several seasons ago and seemingly destined for peak popularity this year.

"Bas relief" techniques are big — raised effects to give a three dimensional quality. These use gold and silver in some instances, in others look almost sculptured through the embossing effects on white plastic or white paper stock.

Like the Christ Child, the manger, the Wise Men, the shepherds, and other religious motifs, the other popular symbols of Christmas go on and on. Cards feature Santa, reindeer, bells, candles, holly, mistletoe, and poinsettia. This year, designers also have gone quite folksy and nostalgic.

Cards show Mr. and Mrs. America at the corner florist picking out their Christmas tree. Other cards show the "little red schoolhouse" with wreaths in windows and teacher helping the children trim the tree in the school yard.

The greeting card association says that the earliest known holiday greeting card was a crude woodcut printed about 1450 in the Rhine Valley, in Germany. Actually, it was a New Year's card, but it showed the Christ Child standing in the bow of an ancient galley manned by angels, with the Holy Mother seated at the mast.

The inscription read, "Here I come from Alexandria and bring many good years to give generously. I will give them for almost no money and have only God's love for my reward."

The ancestor of our modern Christmas card dates to three centuries ago, says the association. English schoolboys composed messages of Yuletide will, and bordered their messages with engraved pictures dramatizing the year's important events.

Credit goes to John Calcott Horsley, painter and illustrator, for the first real Christmas card in 1843. Horsley did it for Sir Henry Cole, the inaugurator and first director of the Victoria and Albert Museum in London.

In 1846, one thousand copies were lithographed, hand colored and sold by Felix Summerly's Treasure House in Bond Street, an art shop Sir Henry had set up to improve the tastes of his contemporaries.

Louis Prang is known as the "father of the American Christmas card." Prang arrived in the United States in 1850 a penniless immigrant from Germany. He worked as a wood engraver, saved $250, and opened a lithography shop. In 1875, Prang issued the first line of Christmas cards ever published in this country. His first plant was in Roxbury, Mass.

By 1881, Prang was producing over five million Christmas cards each year. They were elegant and painstakingly crafted, and retailed from 25 cents to as much as $3 each.

Salvaging The Jobless

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Nearly 1 million Americans, or about one-third of the nation's jobless, lack elementary job skills and, in some cases, cannot read or write yet they can be salvaged by new developments in communications and educational technologies that would provide all the unemployables with basic work skills within five years.

Urging a massive rehabilitation effort by industry and government to solve this critical social and economic problem,

Campaign For Signatures By Women Voters

The League of Women Voters of Newton is in the midst of a drive to obtain 61,000 signatures in order to initiate an amendment to the State Constitution which would reduce the size of the House of Representative from 240 to 160. This amendment would also eliminate multi-member districts, and establish a commission for redistricting.

The League supports this amendment because a smaller House of Representatives would simplify legislative proceedings and debate, making them more understandable to the voter. A smaller legislature would also attract well-qualified candidates. The voter would have a better opportunity, too, to be more aware of his representative's voting record.

Members of the League are conducting a house to house campaign, but anyone who is not approached may call Mrs. Jay Orlin at 244-9501 to have a petition made available.

Officer Feeley Talks On Safety At PTA Meeting

"Safety is a 24-hour-a-day matter," Officer Charles Feeley of the Newton Police Dept. told parents of the Countryside PTA. He went on to say that responsibility for the child's safety in the streets is in the hands of the parents fully as much as safety at home.

He recommended that parents investigate possible hazards in order to be able to instruct their children to avoid them. "The problem exists all over the state," Officer Feeley concluded, calling for bold new programs including annual inspections for bicycles.

Plans were announced for the 15th Anniversary Dinner to be held in February. The event will feature a "pot luck" meal, followed by an original play in the school gymnasium. Mrs. Anne Haney is now interviewing talented performers for the play.

The Halloween parties in the afternoon and evening were the best organized and most successful in years, according to the thrilled youngsters. Various games added to the usual costume competition and refreshments to add to the fun. A magician was engaged for the afternoon party, which was chairmaned by Mrs. Rona Hamada. The evening pary was headed up by Mrs. Charlotte Lipson.

Treasurer Edwin Chyten announced that a record 89% of the parents of children attending Countryside have indicated their interest by paying their dues. This indicates an active year for the association. Among other events, plans were announced for a continuing creative arts program, an election day cake sales and a series of plays being sponsored by PTA for the children.

Dr. Berman Gets Plaque Of Honor

Dr. Sam S. Berman of 281 Park street, Newton, has been awarded a plaque of honor by the Boston Lodge of Elks as their annual "man of the year" for dedicated and untiring efforts to the well-being of members of the Boston police department and the Boston F.B.I. and law enforcement officers throughout the Commonwealth.

The award was presented to Dr. Berman by Superintendent Taylor of the Boston Police Department last Saturday, Oct. 28.

Blonde Beauty, Jane Banas, Is Westfield State's Queen

With a radiant smile, beautiful and blonde Jane Banas, of 12 Marion street, West Newton, accepted the crown as Homecoming Queen at Westfield State Colleges' first annual Homecoming Weekend. She was crowned during the Homecoming Ball held at Shaker Farm's Country Club in mid-October.

The contestants were nominated by the student body and the seven girls with the highest number of votes were chosen to participate in the finals. After personal interviews with three professor-judges, Jane was selected and her name placed in a sealed envelope to be announced at the Ball.

Reigning for the entire weekend, which featured the ball, a soccer game between Westfield and Castleton and the New Country Squires Concert, she presented the winner's sports trophy to Soccer Coach John Kurty and Captain Milan Kesser.

Jane is a 1966 graduate of Newton High School and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Banas of West Newton.

Julie Hickey Is Featured In Seventeen

Julie Hickey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hickey of 215 Temple street, West Newton is featured in the "Teen Scene" column of Seventeen Magazine's November issue.

Julie, who is a University of Wisconsin sophomore, spent a summer successfully working with emotionally disturbed children.

"For the first time in my life I didn't have time to think about myself — a healthy change," says Julie of the effect on her of her work with the children at Camp Ramapo Anchorage in Rhinebeck, New York. Although the children were disturbed in different ways, according to Julie, they were alike in that they had not learned acceptable reactions to experiences. Given no hard and fast rules during pre-camp orientation, she found the best ways to help them overcome this barrier were to demonstrate appropriate behavior, show she was on their side and be really patient — "I'm not naturally, but it wasn't hard."

Julie found, too that "with love, very little can go wrong and a lot can be accomplished." She cites the case of a friendly, lively girl, whose big problem was disobedience. Her refusal to make her bed for inspection, although ordered to do so, led to a fight with a counselor. End result: the bed remained unmade. By talking sweetly to her, Julie convinced the child with patience, love and understanding to make the bed.

Her other accomplishments at the camp range from coaxing reluctant eaters to the dining hall to the more dramatic and permanent metamorphoses of the silent child turned chatterbox and the aggressive, pugilistic girl who stopped punching by summer's end and who was "quick to apologize if she forgot and hit you".

Julie is a member of the Outing Club at the University of Wisconsin and in her first semester was a member of the Freshman Honor Society. Her goal is to continue her work with emotionally disturbed children on a professional level.

In addition to treating military personnel the Repose provides medical care to many Vietnamese civilians with serious injuries or diseases.

At the presentation ceremony the crew was told: "The wounded can expect the best of care and treatment when they come to the Repose. You have earned an enviable reputation. The Navy Unit Commendation is a well-earned recognition."

Charles River Groups Sets Meeting Date November 16

On Thursday, November 16, 8 P.M., the Charles River Watershed Association, Inc. will hold its "Pattern for Prorgess" annual meeting in the Hunnewell School auditorium in Wellesley on Cameron Street. The school is at the rear of the Public Library which fronts on Routes 16 and 135. The public is invited.

The program will feature portions of the WBZ-TV CountryCIDE film on the Charles River, to be presented by CRWA president F. E. Whitmarsh.

Other meeting participants will be Peter W. Larson, William C. Greene, Charles S. Frary, Jr., Mrs. Arno H. A. Heyn, Vincent N. Merrill, Kenneth H. Wood, Mrs. Robert H. Arnold, Mrs. Henry D. Russell, and Mrs. Joseph B. Fyffe.

At their November meeting in Dedham, the CRWA directors voted to support additional land and river bottom acquisition by the Metropolitan District Commission in the Norumbega section of the Charles River in Auburndale.

These recommended acquisitions are the same as those for which Newton Conservators, Inc. recently announced support. The land area includes the two wooded hills near the center of the former Norumbega Park. The hills are bounded on the north by land the MDC already intends to acquire; on the east by a line running from the end of Woodbine Street northwesterly toward the Charles River; on the south by Commonwealth Avenue (Route 30) and the Lombard Animal Hospital property; and on the west by Marriott Hot Shoppes, Inc.

Also recommended by CRWA and the Conservators for MDC acquisition is the Charles River bottom owned by Marriott Hot Shoppes, Inc. from the firm's existing shoreline out to the City and Town line dividing Newton from Weston. Such acquisition would include "The Shoal", or off-shore island, not owned by the Marriott firm.

Two other groups supporting these acquisitions are the Boston Society of Landscape Architects and the Boston Society of Architects Committee on Civic Design.

On October 16 the Newton Conservation Commission voted its approval of these acquisitions. This vote and other Newton Conservation Commission actions have been submitted by Mayor Monte G. Basbas to Benjamin W. Fink, Director of the Metropolitan District Commission's Division of Parks Engineering.

Rites Held For Two Men Killed By Car In Newton

Henry Pillion, 64, and Wallace Olson, 54, both of 12 Eddy St., West Newton, died at Newton - Wellesley Hospital five hours after being hit by an auto operated by a 67-year-old Cambridge man.

Police said the pair got off the bus at Eddy St. and were struck by the automobile as they crossed in front of the bus.

Olson was found lying on the street. Pillion was wedged beneath the car and Newton firemen had to extricate him. Police said that Pillion had been dragged approximately 80 feet under the car.

VIET CONG AGAIN SHELL DAK TO BASE

SAIGON — North Vietnamese forces firing from jungle concealment shelled the U.S. base at Dak To in a series of heavy bombardments that set fire to a Special Forces camp, blew up two ammunition dumps and destroyed two big troop transport planes.

The Communist gunners touched off a huge ammunition dump that was the chief source of supply for 10,000 GIs locked in a bitter two-week battle with North Vietnamese troops in the Central Highlands.

EARLY STORM SNARLS NEW ENGLAND

A SNOW STORM with sneaky twist brought up to two feet of snow to the northeast bringing shiv-er-r-r-r-ing temperatures and massive traffic jams to metropolitan Boston.

At least seven deaths were attributed to the storm.

The Weather Bureau said a sudden backlash from off the ocean sent heavy snow swirling into north-eastern Massachusetts early in the afternoon.

Two feet of snow fell in parts of western New York. Temperatures fell to near zero near the Canadian border in Vermont and New Hampshire.

Temperatures in the low teens were predicted for eastern Massachusetts.

Forecasters, caught by surprise, were unable to say just when it last snowed in November here but admitted it was "one of the worst" early storms in recent years.

Get Those Gifts To Servicemen Off This Week

Newton Residents are advised that large Christmas gift packages for servicemen overseas must be mailed this week to assure arrival on time at many of the far distant places where they are serving.

Packages for Vietnam, according to Postmaster Ephraim Martin, which are prepaid at the surface rate of postage and which exceed 5 pounds in weight, will move to San Francisco by railroad, stored aboard ships and begin the long voyage.

Surface transportation is the most economical method of handling these large packages, though they take longer," said the postmaster.

The sending of 5 pound packages (not in excess) is recommended for economy and more rapid service. These packages, paid at the surface transportation rate, move to the port of embarkation by rail.

Yule Gifts Service List Disappointing

The response to the appeal of the Newton Graphic for the names of servicemen on duty in Vietnam, who will spend Christmas in that war-torn country, was disappointing.

This week the Graphic is printing the names and addresses of servicemen from Newton which were submitted. It is a short list. It contains only 17 names.

The Graphic had suggested the names be sent to the editor so that service personnel who will have to spend the holidays thousands of miles from home might be the recipients of an unexpected gift from someone other than their immediate families and friends.

It was suggested that women's clubs, PTA organizations, civic and veterans

Newton Vietnam Vet Thankful For Gifts

A young Newton veteran of the Vietnam campaign, PFC Daniel R. Pini, Jr., was royally greeted at City Hall recently and presented with a Key to the City of Newton by Mayor Monte G. Basbas.

PFC Pini is a multi-lith operator for the City of Newton and was home on a furlough when he made the visit to the municipal building.

His father, Daniel Pini, Sr., also is an employee of the city and is a custodian at City Hall.

Joining in at the official reception in the Mayor's office were Alderman Paul Burke and City Engineer U. M. Schiavone, and Daniel Pini, Sr.

The young Newton soldier expressed thanks to Mayor Basbas and all the other patriotic local residents who remembered him with cards and gifts while he was in Vietnam.

Mayor Basbas took the occasion of the visit to remind Newton citizens to join in the effort to remember our Newton boys in Vietnam this Christmas. Last year, Mayor Basbas personally mailed an S. S. Pierce food box to each Newton man in Vietnam, and will do so again this year.

City Hall employees made up an 85 lb. box to send Dan Pini; and although it took quite a while to reach him, it was shared with all the men of his unit.

Dan also took the occasion to thank Alderman Paul Burke and Alderman Andrew

A crack-down on all night parking violators was launched this week by the Newton Police Department. Motor vehicles found parked on the street between 2 and 6 a.m. will get a $2 tag.

Electronic Vote Vindicated With Ballot Re-Check

A re-tallying on Monday night of all ballots cast in last week's Newton election appeared to vindicate the electronic age.

The nearly 23,000 votes cast on election day in Newton's first experience with an electronic voting system were re-run through the computer at Boston College to satisfy officials that they were correct, and they essentially were.

What's more the whole process took about two hours as opposed to the more than eight hours on election night. However, it should be noted that such procedures as the transporting the ballots from the polling places to Boston College and then to City Hall were eliminated in the retabulation.

Results remained just about the same with no candidate picking up or losing more than a few votes and no changes in the election winners or losers.

The explanation given for even the few votes changed was that in some cases vot-

Appointment of a program director for Newman House, Newton's unique parent-directed center for students in the city's high and junior high schools, was announced this week.

Yule Appeal Being Made To Aid Needy

The Christmas Service Committee, co-sponsored by the Newton Community Council, Inc. and the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs, provides a means for those "who have" to help those "who have not."

This year an advance appeal is being made for donations of any amount to be sent to "The Christmas Service Committee", Newton Community Council, 950 Watertown street, West Newton.

Every dollar contributed will go 100% to help some needy family or persons. Any person or club contributing funds will be sent an accounting sheet showing total income and disbursements.

This Commitee has been in operation for many years working more or less behind the scenes — but now would like to let the people of Newton know of its work and contribute money for its support.

It may be difficult for many to realize that a $5, $10, or $25 check at Christmas given to some Newton family, who because of illness or bad luck has had its financial resources drained, will make the difference for them between a Happy Christmas and no Christmas at all.

Even in the Garden City of Newton there are hundreds of families who are hit hard by long sickness, desertion or unexpected hardships of many varieties, and need help.

This Christmas Service Committee can be most useful in two ways; (1) by offering a means by which help can be given others and (2), acting

Several programs have taken place this fall at the suggestion of the high schoolers. These include folk Masses on special occasions, informal discussion groups, and an "open door" policy weekdays after school. Social gatherings are regularly scheduled for Friday and Saturday nights.

"There are many things that could be done here," said Mr. Littlefield, "but the impetus for specific programs must come from the young people themselves. A student 'board of directors' has been formed which will direct the general implementation of suggested programs."

Mr. Littlefield was born in Leeds, England, and came to this country as a young boy with his family. He was educated in Providence, R. I., schools and received a bachelor's degree in 1950 from Providence College.

He spent 13 years as a salesman with a computer firm, and since 1965 has been executive director of the Christian Action Movement locally. He is also a candidate for an advanced degree in ecumenical studies at Boston University.

Mr. Littlefield is married to the former Marie Judge of Dorchester, and they have three children, all of whom are attending St. Adrian's School in Brookline.

Lee Loumos Says:

One of the frequent criticisms one hears about government agencies in general and currently about the Poverty War agencies in particular is that too large a slice is spent on bureaucratic administration. With so many demands on our over-strained tax dollar it would be wise to try to operate as efficiently in government as we do in competitive business. But even further, why not learn for such agencies as Red Cross, Newton-Wellesley hospital and other community projects which are heavily manned (or womanned) by volunteer workers. The country is full of capable retired people, many of whom would be very happy to offer their expert services. Wouldn't this be worth a try? Perhaps this could be your second thought while you are only giving once to the Community Fund Drive.

"Don't Overlook Us, Is Fletcher Warning To U.S. Government

Wallace J. Fletcher of 351 Otis street, West Newton, has been reelected president of the Western Metropolitan Boston Regional Opportunity Council, Inc.

The Council was formed by the Community Action agencies of Arlington, Brookline, Brookline, Newton, Waltham and Watertown to develop and seek funds on a regional basis for programs designed to aid the over 20,000 persons in their areas with incomes less than $3,000 a year.

CHAIRMAN — Ollie A. Cohen, Chairman of the Board of King's Department Stores, is chairman of the 3rd annual National Community Service Award Dinner being staged by the New England Friends of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America on Sunday, November 19 at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel.

In his annual report Fletcher told the Council:

"In our Head Start Program we discovered over 100 children who never had been to a dentist. In one community out of 40 children under five years of age 50 per cent had not received polio immunization.

"Much has been accomplished in a very short time. Over 3,000 visits have been made to the homes of those we serve by community aides, teachers, teacher aides, social workers and board members. Living conditions which were undreamed of were uncovered and mechanisms were set in motion to correct these."

Continuing his report Fletcher said:

"In one community we found a house without running water. Another contained no method for heating or cooking except for a wood stove in the kitchen. Another had seven children sleeping in two bedrooms.

"In a group of 67 children almost half of the children showed evidence of tooth decay. Now all are in the care of a dentist chosen by the parent to be the family dentist."

Fletcher told the Council:

"Involvement of our community resources has been complete. Agencies, organizations, churches and other interested groups have responded and cooperated magnificently and with a whole heart.

"Our problems are no less pressing and vital than those of the big cities of our nation. Our plight is being overlooked in the shadows cast by the traumas of our great cities. Only by concerted action involving the total region can we be heard.

were Irwin Benjamin, Isidor Slotnik and Benjamin Ulin.

The Hospital paid tribute to 19 leaders at the meeting. This follows the elevation of nine senior leaders to Honorary Trusteeship and the election of ten new Trustees.

The meeting began with a brunch and featured an address by Dr. Mitchell T. Rabkin, BI General Director, who spoke on "Beth Israel Hospital Looks at the Future of Private Practice."

Irving W. Rabb, general chairman of the event, told the Graphic:

"Rapid changes in medical knowledge and in the techniques of delivering care to the community demand that a major university teaching hospital like the Beth Israel attract to itself the topmost leadership among physician-scientists and the men and women who represent the community.

"As we enter the second half century of the hospital's existence we are fortunate that its destinies will be guided by men of proven leadership quality and by the addition of new Trustees who already have made an enviable mark in community affairs."

Mr. Rabb pointed out the Honorary Trustees, including four former Presidents, have given a combined total of more than 300 years of outstanding service to the hospital. He added "they have played prominent roles in guiding the institution through much of its postwar growth and development.

"Major aspects of their stewardship included important additions to the hospital's patient care, research and teaching capacities in 1950, 1960 and in the current Golden Anniversary Development program.

In addition each was a strong supporter in strengthening the hospital's ties with Harvard Medical School and other institutions engaged in teaching thousands of doctors, nurses and technicians.

Mr. Slotnik served as President from 1961 to 1964.

The profits from each box of candy are divided among the Council, the Towns, and the individual groups. This enables the Greater Boston Council of Camp Fire Girls to provide top leadership recruitment, training programs for staff and volunteers, day and resident camping, and the expenses for a central office.

Along with the satisfaction of giving service to their own organization, the young Camp Fire Saleswomen may earn special citations for themselves and for their groups.

They also provide funds for their own groups; earn Camp Fire honors in Creative Arts and Business; how to meet the public with confidence, poise and to keep accurate records.

The candy is made especially fresh for this annual sale and makes wonderful presents for Thanksgiving and Christmas housegifts.

Is Medicaid A Scandal?

They have sounded the alarm in the town of Cohasset. At a special town meeting last Thursday night members passed a resolution voicing disapproval of the Medicaid program in its present form. The action was taken after the town had to find $15,000 to pay for the program for the next two months.

Thus, Cohasset joined a growing list of cities and towns throughout the Commonwealth which have had to come up with more money to cover the burgeoning costs of Medicaid. And costs will continue to spiral as more people become aware that they are eligible for inclusion in the program.

Sen. William D. Weeks (R-Cohasset), acting on the mandate of the people of Cohasset, will file a bill in the Legislature this week calling for the creation of a study commission to investigate possible abuses of the Medicaid program. Sen. Weeks was quick to point out, however, because it is already so late in the session, action might not come until the next session.

Commenting on the controversial program, the Senator said that during the past month "a number of abuses" involving Medicaid had come to his attention. He said his bill would institute an investigation of the Medicaid program "to see how it's being handled or mishandled."

Weeks said "if the whole thing is approaching a scandal, then it's more imperative that an investigation be instigated immediately."

The major complaint against the program is that persons with incomes as high as $10,000 are eligible for medical aid. Opponents of the ultra liberal program argue that many who are able to bear the financial burden of family medical and dental expenses are eligible for Medicaid.

We have found disturbing the apparent laxity in checking statements of applicants for Medicaid on the part of the Welfare Departments of various cities and towns. We believe that is what Sen. Weeks was referring to when he spoke of "abuses" that had come to his attention.

Another disturbing element of the Medicaid program is the "personal property exemption" granted to applicants. For instance, a man with a wife, and four children on the Medicaid program, is entitled to have a bank savings account of $3400!

Also, the same family could live in a home valued at $50,000 and it could be mortgage free. "No lien or encumbrances are required."

In order for a man with a wife and four children to be eligible for Medicaid he must have a net income of less than $525 monthly. This is not his gross income. Net income means income after employment expenses such as taxes, social security deductions, union dues, etc. It has been claimed that the "etc." covers shocking exemptions.

We believe that children in need of medical aid or dental care should get it. But we do not believe the public should be expected to pay the medical or dental bills of children whose parents can afford the cost.

The Legislature should act promptly on Sen. Weeks' bill. The study commission should be created now — not next year.

A Sword Of Damocles

It isn't often that a newly-appointed Massachusetts jobholder is given the kind of tender, loving care that Gov. Volpe has been extending Leo J. Cusick, the latest general manager of the MBTA. Gov. Volpe is genuinely solicitous of Mr. Cusick. He knows the MBTA is in trouble. He knows that something must be done to put mass transportation rolling on a truly expanding basis. Else, the Governor is aware, there may never be another time.

Our new man at MBTA headquarters is also aware of the transportation emergency. He knows the task is a gargantuan one. He knows that time is running out. He know that the time for experiment is past. He knows that it is now or never.

So, it made good sense that Volpe met with Cusick before the latter was appointed. It made even more sense for the Governor and Cusick to meet after the latter became general manager. (The Chief Executive has even taken to riding the subway with Mr. Cusick!)

To a large degree, the responsibility is Cusick's. And, perhaps, to a larger political degree, the responsibility is now Volpe's, too. For good or bad, the Governor's office and the MBTA are intertwined.

In this connection, it was no show of largesse that the system's Board of Directors transferred to the new general manager broad and implicit powers. It might very well be that now, today, he is the most powerful transportation figure in the United States.

It is our belief that Volpe seeks to give Cusick every imaginable transportation tool to do the job that must be done. It is our belief that Volpe dearly seeks to insulate the general manager from the slightest, hobbling political interference.

Yet, a weighty, politically encrusted design hangs over Cusick's head. This design is the Board of Directors itself. It is a political board. It will remain, however well intentioned, a political board.

It is our opinion that Mr. Cusick does not need this board. The Governor does not need this board. In fact, the point might well be raised that neither Cusick nor the Governor can afford this board or any other board of political derivation on the MBTA.

The hour is late. The time is now. If Mr. Cusick must answer to someone for his actions — and, of course, he must — let Gov. Volpe find the "no-politics" solution.

LETTER

Hits League Members

Editor of the Graphic:

As a member of the League of Women Voters for many years and a past Board member (in Pittsburgh, Pa.) I find myself, for the first time, deeply disturbed and embarrassed by the action of some League members.

I refer to the ad which appeared in this newspaper in which members of the League endorsed a candidate. I know full well that this is the privilege of any non-Board member and I have no quarrel with members working for and supporting candidates for office. What I do question is the propriety of these members who use the name of the League in their political activities. This seems to imply League acquiescence to the action of these members.

This is decidedly not the case. I hope no one will be misled by these women, who, in my opinion, have demeaned the League, their candidate and themselves.

Mayor Basbas And His Wife Are In Greece

Monte G. Basbas, who won re-election as Newton's Mayor last week, is vacationing in Athens, Greece, this week. He and his wife, Audrey, left last Friday for a 10-day vacation there.

During their vacation in the sunny clime, the Mayor and his wife will be the guests of the Mayor of Athens.

It is the first trip to Europe for Basbas and the longest vacation he and his wife have taken in some time. The only other overseas trip for Basbas was during World War II when he went to the Pacific area as a soldier.

The couple is expected back in Newton the day before Thanksgiving.

Political Highlights

Donahue, who was defeated for the gubernatorial endorsement at last year's Democratic State Convention, is being urged by his friends to make another run for the Governorship.

If he decides to do so, Harrington will stand aside and bide his time, presumably moving up into the Senate presidency if Donahue vacates it.

Shouki Donahue, who would have great vote-pulling power in western Massachusetts, decide against another bid for the Governorship, Harrington almost certainly would step into the field.

Still another gubernatorial prospect is former Boston Development Administrator Edward J. Logue, who made a good showing in the Hub's preliminary mayoralty election even though he did not qualify for the final run-off. Logue's political plans probably will be shaped by developments in the next two years. The lure of high elective office has not lost its appeal to him.

While Mayor-elect White has not said he will be a candidate for Governor in 1970 and presumably will not reveal his plans for a long time to come, most sound political experts believe it will be then or never for him.

They point out that the popularity of a Mayor of Boston inevitably drops after his first two or three years in office because of the tough and controversial problems he must handle.

This is a political fact of life, they believe, which Kevin White must and will accept as he ponders and charts his future course.

Kenneth O'Donnell, who definitely will run for Governor in 1970, considered the possibility of becoming a candidate for Mayor of Boston.

The question O'Donnell weighed was whether he would have a better chance of winning the Governorship as Mayor of Boston or as a private citizen.

He decided to remain out of the Hub's mayoralty race and to aim directly for 1970.

Bellotti was defeated for Attorney General in 1966 and for Governor in 1964.

His political ambitions, however, are still very much alive. He is convinced that he could win the Governorship under more favorable circumstances than he encountered in 1966 or 1964.

Bellotti has demonstrated that he has tremendous strength in a Democratic primary. He also has an army of followers who would march into battle for him in any election contest he enters.

His political stock was boosted by the recent article in the Saturday Evening Post which reported that he refused to accept a $100,000 contribution from the crime syndicate in 1964 and that the "mob" retaliated by spreading the rumor that he had accepted "bad money" to finance his campaign.

This undoubtedly will be a talking point for Bellotti in future campaigns, especially since the magazine story was based on FBI records.

Ironically, White supported Bellotti for the Governorship in 1964, but relations between the two have cooled since then.

At this point Mayor-elect White, who for the next three years will be the most prominent Democrat in Massachusetts except for Senator Edward M. Kennedy, must be rated as the favorite to gain the Democratic nomination for Governor in 1970.

But it will not be his for the asking; nor will it be handed to him on a platter because he is Mayor of Boston. He will have to fight to get it.

Whether there will be a Democratic State Convention in 1970 is uncertain at this time.

Governor Volpe, temporarily at least, blocked a move by the Democratic-controlled State Legilature to repeal the existing law which provides that State tickets shall be endorsed by pre-primary conventions.

The Governor's position was understandable since the convention system of picking statewide candidates has worked well for the Republicans but not the Democrats. It also has worked well for him since he has gained the convention nod four times, twice after contests.

However, a move is now underway to obtain enough signatures on an initiative petition to place the question of retaining or scrapping the pre-primary convention on next year's Presidential ballot.

Given the opportunity, the voters might well abolish the convention.

Whatever happens, whether there is a pre-primary convention or not in 1970, there almost surely will be a primary fight for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

O'Donnell is one of the sharpest critics of the convention system. Bellotti carried his fight for the gubernatorial nomination into the 1964 primary after losing at the convention. So the Democratic tradition of primary battles is likely to be upheld in 1970.

Right now, of course, White is confronted with more urgent and pressing problems than any long-range concern about the political happenings in 1970.

One of his immediate worries is whether the Legislature will provide the necessary money to enable the State to take over local welfare costs next July 1.

This would mean a saving of $8.5 million for Boston in 1968 and one of $17 million for the capital city in 1969.

White is counting heavily on this relief to enable him to carry out various phases of his program without increasing Boston's already high tax rate.

There is no definite assurance yet that this expected help from the State will materialize for Boston and other cities with big welfare bills which will go even higher because of Medicare.

A bill stipulating that the State next July 1 will assume the welfare costs now paid by the cities and towns was enacted by the Legislature and signed into law by Governor Volpe.

That law will be meaningless unless the Legislature provides necessary funds to cover the welfare expenses.

Up to now it has not done so, and there is growing doubt that it will do so.

Governor Volpe recommended an increase in the State income tax to produce the necessary revenue to fund the welfare law but at the same time indicated he would accept any reasonable substitute plan.

Many legislators are cool to the proposed income tax hike and are equally unenthusiastic about suggestions that the sales tax either be broadened or increased to yield the money to make possible the welfare take-over.

If the welfare law is not funded this year, the possibility that the income tax will be boosted or the sales tax expanded in 1968—an election year—is regarded as somewhat remote although the limited sales tax was finally approved in an election year. That, however, was after a 13-months battle on Beacon Hill.

To compound the problem from White's standpoint, he intends to file other bills seeking to have the Commonwealth ake over expenses now being paid by Boston. How far those measures will get while the welfare issue is unsettled, is a big question.

Boston Mayors from John F. Collins back to the late Maurice J. Tobin and James M. Curley have discovered that obtaining financial help from the State is not an easy undertaking.

The same discovery may await White even though he does have cordial personal relations with many law-makers.

Volpe Aided Kevin White

Political observers were somewhat surprised that Governor Volpe showed up at Secretary of State White's campaign headquarters on election night.

Persons close to Volpe had been quietly working in East Boston and the North End to shift Italo-American voters from Mrs. Louise Day Hicks to White. They succeeded in cutting the vote for Mrs. Hicks well below what it was expected she would get in those areas.

Volpe's appearance at the White victory celebration amounted to a tacit statement that he had helped to make it possible.

Louise Day Hicks To Stay in Politics

Mrs. Hicks has been telling her supporters, according to persons close to her, that she will remain in politics and will seek public office again either next year or in 1969.

She has refused to be pinned down as to the office on which she might set her sights, making it plain that she has made no decision in that respect, but she has said that at this time she is eliminating no possibilities.

White To Press For New Stadium

While Mayor-elect White is not as much a sports buff as was his father, the late Joseph C. White, he is expected to throw his weight behind the move to have a new sports stadium built in the South Station area.

A distinct possibility exists that the Patriots may leave Boston if definite steps are not taken this year which will lead to the construction of a stadium.

This has been a poor financial year for the Patriots because of a variety of circumstances, including a losing record and the need for shifting the locale of early season games because the Red Sox were in the World Series.

groups might contact the editor of the Graphic for the list of names so that the servicemen could be included in any Christmas gift program undertaken by the various groups.

However, the response there was disheartening. Only one inquiry was made of the Graphic editor.

The Graphic thought it would help the morale of servicemen in Vietnam if, during the Christmas season, they found they were remembered by others at home. It was felt that the gesture would be appreciated by those who are manning the farthest outposts in the battle against communism.

Newton Woman Director At Belmont Bilingual School

Mrs. James L. Houghteling Jr., 258 Mill street, Newtonville, is directing the Ecole Bilingue of Belmont, a private non-profit bilingual school for nursery age children through the 4th grade.

In conjunction with their regular curricula the children in all age groups quickly acquire proficiency in a second language. Audio-visual methods have been introduced this fall to augment the more classical methods of language instruction. 19 Newton children are enrolled at the school and the total enrollment is now about 80 children.

Another innovation for the Ecole Bilingue this year is the introduction of French classes for adults, employing Audio-visual techniques which were developed at the Language Research Center at the Ecole Normale Superieure, St Cloud, France.

These classes will be open to a limited number of adults who wish to acquire a facility in speaking and understanding "every day" conversation. Tutoring services are also arranged by the school. Further information may be obtained from the school which is located at 380 Concord avenue, Belmont, telephone # 484-6222.

Mrs. Houghteling is the mother of three sons and a daughter. Her eldest son Larry, is a San Francisco Chronicle reporter. Peter, a Newton High School graduate of 1963 and of Harvard class of 1967, is now a Peace Corps volunteer in El Salvador. Bob is a senior and Nan, a sophomore at Newton High School from which Mrs. Houghteling graduated in 1937.

The Houghtelings lived in France for over three years while Mr. Houghteling, now a law professor at Boston College, worked in the Marshall Plan Headquarters in Paris. Their two elder children learned to read and write first in French, at a school near Paris which is now affiliated with Meadowbrook Jr. High. Their two younger children were born in Paris.

Before the Second World War, Mr. Houghteling had spent two summers in France as a participant and then assistant leader for the Experiment in International Living. During the war he served in the O.S.S. in France. "From all these experiences we feel closely related to France," Mrs. Houghteling says.

"When we camped in France, a few summers ago, we were welcomed as American "cousins." So when the Ecole Bilingue asked me to be its director this year, I was delighted to help increased French-American understanding. From our family's experience I am convinced that a bilingual education prepares children to appreciate cultural diversity. Peter now speaks Spanish and Bob, Russian, both their third languages because they were first completely bilingual. We need so desperately to close the understanding gap in the world and certainly an effective way is to be able to communicate."

ers did not punch holes clear through the punch-card ballots with the stylus provided.

These sometimes were recorded in the computer as blanks in the first count and as votes in the second tally.

The decision to count all the ballots again came after it was learned that an informal recount last week gave Alderman William P. Matthews 460 more votes than he received in the original tally announced on election night.

But a question on the vote in this contest still remains though there is no doubt that Matthews was re-elected by a decisive margin.

The original results announced at City Hall on election night gave Matthews a total of 1405 votes and 818 to his opponent for Ward 4 alderman Nicolo Nardone. The retabulation gave Matthews 1865 votes and Nardone 404.

The explanation given Monday night by Executive Secretary of the Election Commission Alan Licarie was that blank votes in Ward 5 remained in the computer and were somehow recorded with Nardone's vote in Precinct 2 and 4.

However, that explanation would not account for Matthews picking up votes in the recount when the error was detected. Officials, still not really sure of exactly what did happen, feel there must have been an error in listing or reading off Matthews' vote on election night.

A re-reading of the computer tally sheets from election night revealed entirely different figures for Matthews in Precincts 2 and 4 than were announced at City Hall, so that there was obviously a human error involved as well as the mechanical one in the case of Nardone's vote.

As Licarie said, however, that is why results must be considered unofficial until they are completely audited.

Berklee Concert Captures Students At Northeastern

Lawrence Berk of Newton, president of the Berklee School of Music, has inaugurated a new series of college concerts that schools throughout Boston are clamoring for.

Northeastern University was the scene of the first of the "Music At Noon" series as Berklee students led by faculty member Phil Watson swung for an hour.

Wilson, a fine trombonist, was formerly a soloist and arranger for the Dorsey Brothers Orchestra and for Woody Herman's Herds. He also arranged for the band of drummer Buddy Rich.

Prof. Wilson, who now heads Berklee's Trombone Dept., has organized a 10-piece student trombone ensemble and an 18-piece jazz group. It reportedly is the only permanently organized unit of its kind in the nation.

At Northeastern all the music played by the group was either composed or arranged by Berklee students.

The Berks have been residents of Newton for 18 years.

8 States Ban Studded Tires With Fine, Jail

Massachusetts Division of the American Automobile Association today issued a warning to motorists planning trips to Florida or the southwestern states to leave their stud tires at home or risk fines, jail sentences, and having their cars impounded.

"In some southern states, penalties for using stud tires can be tough," said Richard W. Hoover, Public Relations Director for AAA's Mass. Division. He gave some examples:

Georgia has a fine up to $1,000 and/or a year in jail or the "county public works camp."

Virginia has a $5-$15 fine and may impound the car.

Texas has a fine up to $200 plus court costs.

"Studded tires—the snow tires with little metal cleats in the tread for increased traction on ice—are now permitted in 42 states and the District of Columbia," Hoover said.

The eight states which do not allow stud tires are: Arizona (fine determined by court), Georgia, Louisiana (up to $100 fine and/or jail for 30 days), for 30 days), Mississippi (up to $100 fine and/or 10 days in jail), Oklahoma (up to $10 fine plus court costs), South Carolina ($25-$100 fine plus damages to the highway), Texas, and Virginia.

According to the AAA official, acceptance of studded snow tires in the United States has been very rapid. In 1964, only two states (New Hampshire and Ohio) permitted their use. Last winter 33 states allowed them; this winter 44.

Massachusetts has permitted use of stud tires since early 1965, under an administrative ruling by the Registry of Motor Vehicles, after the AAA sought clarification of an ambiguous state law.

The Massachusetts law was worded in such a way that AAA's National Legal Dept. in Washington, D. C., believed motorists might get into trouble if they bought or used stud tires. So the Registry issued a ruling which settled the question once and for all.

"Of the 42 states which permit stud tires, 13 have limited periods of use and Hawaii declares them illegal in Honolulu," Hoover said. He listed use limits at follows.

California, Illinois, Indiana (Oct. 1 to May 1); Iowa, West Virginia (Nov. 1 to April 1); Kansas, New Jersey (Nov. 1 to April 15); Michigan (Nov. 1 to May 1); Minnesota, North Dakota (Oct. 15 to April 15); Oregon (Oct. 1 to May 31); Rhode Island (Oct. 31 to April 1); Winconsin (Oct. 15 to April 1).

Newtonite Has Official Post For GOP Event

Norman Holtz of Newton, president of Labor Relations Associates, is serving as chairman of the Labor and Employment Subcommittee for this weeken's Republican State Convention in Worcester.

The two-day G.O.P. conclave begins on Friday, and is devoted entirelv to the issues which confront the Commonwealth.

Newton residents serving on Holtz's subcommittee iinclude attorneys Stanley S. Lewenberg and Anthony J. Medaglia Jr.

"The purpose of the meetings," according to Holtz, "is to establish a new platform for the party, and secure the views of the rank-and-file party members and the general public on major issues facing the state."

Sea Sconts Kick Off Fund Drive Tomorrow

A rebuilding fund drive will be kicked off by the Norumbega Council of the Sea Scouts tomorrow night as the Newton youths seek funds to repair their fire damaged headquarters.

Last Oct. 9 a fire of undetermined origin damaged their quarters at 960 Watertown st., West Newton. The total damage came to $6000 while there was only $3500 insurance to cover the loss.

Skipper Irwin W. Beal Jr. has organized the crew in preparation for their campaign. They will sell candy and auto safety flares in an effort to raise $1500.

Lions Club member, Irving R. Stewart, assistant treasurer of the Garden City Trust Co., 232 Boylston st., Chestnut Hill, has volunteered to act as treasurer of donations Newton citizens send to him at that address.

The Newton Lions Club sponsors Ship 13, paying some $900 yearly for utilities and maintenance. Recently, the members of the Sea Scout troop showed their appreciation for the aid by assisting the Lions Club with their annual light bulb sale.

Dr. John T. Evans, of Newtonville, who served as skipper for 12 years and is now the liaison between the ship and the Lions Club, did not know of any federal aid available for the Sea Scouts. He said the allotment from the Community Chest does not meet the specailized kinds of services required by a seagoing troop with a membership of between 30 and 40 youths.

Boys may enter the troop at age 14 and continue through high school. Many go on to make the Navy and the Maritime service their careers.

Low County Levy Will Aid '68 Tax

Because of an over-estimate last Spring, Newton taxpayers received an unexpected "bonus" recently when the city's Middlesex County tax bill was presented. It was only $8868 higher than last year and a surprising $84,734 less than was estimated.

Director of Finance Arthur A. Marr said that the over-estimate, calculated into this year's tax rate of $76.20, will help in holding down next year's rate.

Some $1,332,097 was due to the county yesterday. Last year's bill was $1,323,229. The Cherry Sheet estimate for this year which was made last spring was $1,416,832 but the actual bill received was over $84,000 less.

Marr said that one reason for the minimal increase in county taxes this year is that most of the heavy spending by the county last year was paid for in one lump sum instead of borrowing.

Marr recalled that county officials said last year there would be a slight reduction in spending this year.

Meanwhile, the city is bracing for a new round of negotiations with various groups, including police, firemen, city hall employees and city laborers. The School Committee has already announced a tentative budget increase of $1,999,000 but that figure does not include any of the expected teacher pay increases.

Under the law, communities are unable to set contracts for more than one year.

Headlights And Highlights From Newton High School

By: Kate Solomon

Newton High prides itself in being an active, concerned part of Newton society. Speakers come to the school to discuss crucial issues. Music artists sponsor music assemblies. Field trips are made to industrial centers, to biologically rich areas, to museums, to appropriate movies.

NHSers participate in tutoring programs and in hospital volunteer work. Newton High is not a dormant, lazy school community but rather a bustling, ingenious school where creative activities and endeavors are sought every day.

The Viet Nam crisis is one area with which both students and teachers are actively concerned. The Newtonite, Newton High's bi-monthly newspaper, is planned and written exclusively by the students. Last week's issue contained complete coverage of the Washington and the Wakefield demonstrations, along with a commentary on demonstrations in general.

Bob Smith, Newtonite photographer, was at both of the demonstrations and supplied the paper with nine pictures. One of his photos showed a stuffed dummy of North Vietnamese president, Ho Chi Minh hanging from a tree. Another was a sign at the Wakefield rally which said, "Let's fight to win! If we bombed Dresden and Nagasaki—Why not Hanoi?" Those of the Washington March showed such sights as a military policeman with a propped gun, signs illustrating the horrors of war, and wire fences.

Marsha Howland, feature assistant for the newspaper interviewed Paul Christopher Jr. Her article consisted of comments on the purpose of the rally, its overall efficacy and Paul's own personal life.

The paper also featured a personal account of the two rallies. David Rome and Jeff Crosby wrote about the Washington demonstration. "On October 21, we were at the National Mobilization in Washington, D.C. as part of a group of eighteen Newton students," the article started out.

Mike Fruitman's article on the Wakefield rally began with, "It was Sunday, October 29. We left Route 128 . . ." The commentary on demonstrations was written by Sam Scheffler.

Approximately one hundred ninety-five Newton teachers have recently signed a petition protesting the war in Vietnam. The teachers plan to send their letter to President Johnson, Messrs. Goldberg, Humphrey, Brooke, Kennedy, O'Neill, and Fishman.

The petition reads:

"To the President of the United States of America:

"We the undersigned teachers and staff of the Newton Public Schools call for an immediate end to the bombing of North Vietnam, to provide a climate for negotiated settlement with the North Vietnamese government and with the National Liberation Front.

The war is not only destroying, physically and morally, the country it is supposed to be saving, but it is conditioning Asians to suspect American motives and acts and the conduct of the war negates the very humanistic values we try to encourage among our students."

Student Council

The Student Council, feeling mealtime is the easiest and best time to be thankful for the existance of Newton High, is sponsoring a breakfast on Thanksgiving morning. The breakfast, which will be held from 7:30-9:30, precedes the annual Newton- Brookline game. The activities committee, headed by Kathy Ham and Laura Mersky, is planning a motorcade to Brookline before the football rivalry begins.

The Film Commission of the Council is planning to sponsor a recent movie sometime in November or December. The movie, which will be one out of four or five during the year, will probably be either The Ipcress File, Psycho, Our Man Flint, Operation Crossbow, or Cincinnati Kid.

The Civics Commission, headed by Marsha Howland, is launching a clean-up campaign. They will put up numerous posters urging students to use the barrels.

The Civics Committee is also planning to reorganize the Orange Shield. At the present time, the members of the Orange Shield, all boys, are associated only with cafeteria duty. They must keep the Cafeteria clean, putting away all trays and random scraps students leave around and also must maintain order. Their only uniform is an orange band they wear around their arm. They all volunteered.

The new innovations in the Orange Shield consist mainly of extending more responsibilities to the members and allowing girls as well as boys to volunteer.

In the future, the Orange Shield will serve as official student chaperones at activites such as dances, and as guides during the school day. The Student Council hopes to supply the members with blazers for uniforms.

The S.C.R.B. (Student Curriculum Review Board) is planning two new changes. They hope in the future to have students be able to audit courses for one credit. Right now, a regular major course receives five credits toward graduation and minors get either one or two and a half.

The second change desired is to do away with library fines. Overnight books cost the student 25 cents if he doesn't return it first thing in the morning and 50 cents if it is not returned by 4 o'clock.

The Youth Center

The Youth Center dance, according to Joanne Glickman, recording secretary, was a "huge success." "Over 500 kids attended," she added, "and the committee made over $200 profit.

The Youth Center Committee, because of the dance's apparent success, decided to keep the Youth Center open every Friday night and will sponsor a dance once a month. The center will be closed on Saturdays.

"This is a passive year for the Youth Center," Joanne said. "We want to reorganize the center for next year and for the future permanent quarters.

History Seminar

Newton High students are required to take at least two history courses before they graduate. However, students will no longer have to spend four long periods in their history classes. Or rather Mrs. Sally Martin's three Problems of Democracy classes (around 75 or 80 students) will be excused from classes during the fourth term.

Instead of attending classes, the students will be divided into small seminar groups which will meet once a week (outside of school). The groups will discuss various modern problems and the individual members will be required to do outside research from time to time.

The purpose of the seminar is to avoid the traditional slackening of senior interest at the end of the year. The three classes will hopefully finish their senior year enthusiastic and excited about history.

INDIAN ARTIST—Ali Akbar Khan, world-renowned Indian sarod player, who will give a concert at Symphony Hall on Wednesday, Nov. 29 at 8:30 p.m.

Master Of The Sarod Hub Concert Nov. 29

The world-famous Indian sarod player, Ustad Ali Akbar Khan, will perform on Wednesday, November 29, 8:30 p.m., at Symphony Hall. This will be Khan's last performance in this country before his return to India.

Carrying on his gharana or ancestral tradition of Tansen, a musical genius and court musician of Akbar, Mogul Emperor of the 16th century, Ali Akbar Khan practiced the delicate and demanding sarod eighteen hours a day for fifteen years. His tutor was his father, Dr. Allauddin Khan, acknowledged as the greatest figure of North Indian Music in this century.

Brought to the United States twelve years ago by Yehudi Menuhin to perform at the Modern Museum of Art in New York, Ustad (a Persian word meaning "master musician") Khan has become internationally recognized as the master of the sarod. He has toured extensively in Asia, Africa, Europe, Australia, Canada, and the United States. Included among the many festivals in which he has participated are Bath, Edinburgh, Newport, the East-West Encounter in Tokyo, and most recently, Expo 67.

Ali Akbar Khan's reputation as a composer, recording artist and teacher is equally impressive. He has conducted seminars at McGill University and the University of Montreal and for the past three years has headed the music faculty at the American Society for Eastern Arts in Berkeley, California.

Mr. Khan has twice received the President of India Award for his artistic merit and his many contributions to the field of music, including the founding of the Ali Akbar Khan College of Music in Calcutta and the award-winning music composition for Tapan Sinha's celebrated film of Tagore's "Hungry Stones".

Ustad Khan will be accompanied by Pandit Mahapurush Misra on the tabla and Ashish Khan on the tamboura. Pandit Misra is now recognized as one of the top tabla players in India and he accompanied Mr. Khan on his 1966 and 1967 international and United States tours.

Ashish Khan, the eldest son of Ali Akbar, is a rising young sarod player and one of the youngest music directors and composers in Indian films. The program will include sarod solos, a tabla solo, and sarod, tabla and tamboura ensembles.

These artists have been brought to the United States as part of the American Society for Eastern Arts' program to encourage the study and appreciation of the Asian performing arts. This past summer they all taught at the ASEA Summer School and are now appearing on a national tour.

Horace Mann PTA To Open Holiday Fair On Saturday

The Horace Mann School PTA will launch the holiday shopping season with a huge Holiday Shoppers Fair, this Saturday, that amounts to four fairs in one: a book fair, a baked goods sale, a rummage sale and a holiday bazaar.

The colorful smorgasbord of holiday decorations, novel gift items, candies, books and new and used rummage, will be on sale from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. in the Horance Mann School, Watertown st. at Albemarle in Newtonville. The fair will include games and prizes for the children.

The book fair will feature more than 200 titles ranging from children's classics, picture books and adventure stories, to cookbooks, science books and current best sellers. The selections were made by Mrs. William Ullrick, school librarian.

Items for sale will include a large assortment of centerpieces, plants, Christmas stockings and stocking stuffers, hand-made jewelry, toys, and aprons, plus white elephants and new and used rummage.

Proceeds from the book fair will be used for the school library. Other profits from the fair will be used to provide scholarships, creative arts programs, field trips and other forms of program enrichment for the Horace Mann elementary school children.

Mrs. George Devaney is chairman of the PTA committee responsible for planning and organizing the event. The book fair was planned by Mrs. George Graca and Mrs. Ullrick. Mrs. Edwin Gordy is in charge of baked goods. Children's games and prizes are being arranged by Mrs. Marcus Karel and Mrs. Robert Deagle.

Launched by the Saturn V booster rocket, the spacecraft circled the earth twice at an altitude of 100 miles. As it plunged back to the earth and passed the 400,000-footmark, the Apollo reached speeds up to 24,000 miles an hour.

Lenson served aboard the ship which is named after the brother of the late President John F. Kennedy.

New Complex Completed For Retarded Boys

The Templeton Complex, a new unit of the Fernald School, the first state facility to provide modern, cottage-type living for retarded boys, has been completed recently in Templeton, Mass.

The new $3,156,000 unit is under the supervision of Malcolm J. Farrell, M.D. superintendent at the Fernald State School.

The administration building and six dormitory units accomodating 288 retarded boys are part of a five-year, $73,-241,000 construction plan of the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health to help retarded persons in the state.

In recent years, the concept of care for able-bodied retarded persons emphasizes providing a way of life which approximates as nearly as possible community living conditions.

"Small residential units provide a home-like atmosphere for retarded boys", Dr. Farrell said. "Close relationship between employees and patients results in better training and therapeutic influence.

"Employees are also able to exercise more supervision and get to know patients personally, which ultimately results in better rehabilitation programs".

Each of the six dormitory buildings accommodate 48 boys in two 24-bed wards and includes living space for daytime activity. The administration building, known as Monadnock Hall, houses a dining room, kitchen, recreation hall, central supply room for clothing and linens, a mending room for maintenance of clothing, barber shop, and crafts shop.

According to Henry K. Weidlich, school colony superintendent, the new complex replaces outmoded living accommodations and brings widely separated groups within the colony into a community setting where the boys are able conveniently to attend sepcial programs, movies and chapel.

Boys who do not live in the new facility are housed in nearby Narragansett House, thus bringing together all residents in a central location, he said.

Templeton Colony comprises about 350 retarded youths 17 years of age and over. Patients, or boys as they are called, are able to earn up to $1 a day on the farm and may use their earnings in any way they wish.

The Colony farm has 553 acres under cultivation in a regular gardening program which produces vegetables for the Colony's use and feed for the herd of 150 Holstein cows. A daily supply of 4,500 quarts of milk is produced in a modern dairy plant and shipped to other state institutions.

Christian Science Church Sets Thanksgiving Service

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Newton in Newtonville, will hold a thanksgiving service, open to the community, in the church edifice at 391 Walnut street, Thursday, November 23rd at 10:45 a.m. Friends, neighbors, and the public are invited.

This service is a traditional one in Christian Science churches throughout most of the world. Branch churches in South America, Europe, Asia, and the Near East will observe the American Thanksgiving Day, November 23.

A specially prepared "Thanksgiving" lesson-sermon will be read at all these services. It will include passages from the Bible and the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy.

At the close of the lesson, the meeting will be opened for expressions of thanksgiving and gratitude from the congregation, for divine healing, comfort, and guidance.

Keynote for the service will be a Golden Text from Psalms: "O Lord, open thou my lips; and my mouth shall shew forth thy praise."

Related readings from the Christian Science textbook will include this passage: "Are we really grateful for the good already received? Then we shall avail ourselves of the blessings we have, and thus be fitted to receive more. Gratitude is much more than a verbal expression of thanks. Action expresses more gratitude than speech" (Science and Health, p. 3).

The congregation will join in hymns, accompanied by Mrs. Shirley R. MacCloskey, organist. The church soloist, Mrs. Marian H. Haynes, will sing "I will extol Thee, O Lord," by Samuel Liddle.

Mr. L. Bradford King, Jr., First Reader, and Mrs. Elizabeth B. Trask, Second Reader, will conduct the service.

In accordance with long-standing practice, no collection will be taken at this special service. The public is cordially invited to attend this Thanksgiving Service.

Great Defense But . . .

Waltham Defeats Newton By Two Points, 8-6

A run for the two-point conversion by Waltham quarterback Chuck Lee following a four-yard touchdown pass from Lee to Mike Brescia was the narrow margin of victory as the Hawks edged out defense-minded Newton High, 8-6, at Dickinson Stadium Saturday.

The loss, giving the Tigers a 3-5 record with one contest remaining, did not overshadow the tremendous defensive effort turned in by Newton. Newton has allowed only 15 points in the last four games.

The respect which the Tiger defensive backfield of Peter Manson, Bill Thurston, Reggie Benn and Ron Arcese has received was evident as Lee attempted only three passes. Newton's defensive line, sparked by performances by Robbie Cohen, Joe Picariello and Mike Mannix was equally outstanding. Mike Quinn, who had averaged 177 yards a game, was held to 76 yards on 16 carries.

Waltham scored the winner after taking the second half kickoff at their 42 yard line. With Quinn and Lee grinding out the yardage, the Hawks moved down to the Newton 4 yard line. On second down from the four, Lee made his only completion of the day to fullback Brescia in the end zone at 5:08.

Lee faked the one point conversion and headed around left end, with Benn the only defender with a shot at Lee. Reggie, however, had to play half way in order to defend against the pass-option which Lee had. Benn recovered too late and Lee dived over the goal line.

The Tiger's touchdown was set up by Bill Thurston's recovery of a Brescia fumble with 40 seconds remaining in the third period. On the first down play from Waltham's 40, the Hawk's massive tackle, Charlie Bonica, committed a facemask violation moving the ball to the 25.

On second down from the 23, quarterback Benn ran in his exciting, but risky, style down to the 10 as the third period came to a close. Bill Gardner next moved the ball down to the five. When a Newton back lined up wrong, Benn changed the play at the line of scrimmage. Calling his own number, he sneaked up the middle into the endzone. Faced with the necessity of going for the two points, Benn rolled out to his right but saw his pass fall incomplete.

With 5:50 remaining in the game, the Tigers received possession following a Waltham punt which went into the endzone. Garner, Cohen and Benn combined for a first down at the Hawks 30. With a third and seven from the 33, Benn hit Thurston with a 14 yard pass and a first down.

Three plays got no yardage and once again Benn was faced with a big third down play. Benn spotted Thurston open and teamed up for a 16 yard gain and another first down at the Hawk's 22-yard line.

After Gardner gained one yard, Cohen, while running around right end, slipped on the chewed up turf and received no yardage. On third down, Benn's pass sailed over Gardner's head into the eager arms of Waltham's Joe Landry and Newton's chances were killed.

Rug Display At Newton Library

Newton Free Library at 414 Centre street is exhibiting the opulence of authentic Persian rugs in a display this week loaned by a Boston rug firm.

Magnificent examples of the weaver's art include the hand-knotted rugs of thirteen different areas: primitive octagons of the nomads of Afghan; the floral artistry of the Sarouk; combination of sharp colors and pastel background of the Kazvin; Russian-made and costly Shirvan; durable, varied Bidjar; finely woven pastel Kerman; the velvet-textured Bashan; as well as floral Hanadan, coarsely woven Karaja; strong, harsh Herez, and other traditional Persian designs.

A unique and popular feature of the exhibit is a large loom on which there is a half-finished Kazavin rug, with the weaving draft (or design) and tools of the weaver as companion pieces.

On each rug is a notation telling the rug's name and something of the important qualities or features.

The Library staff has assembled books in several areas to complement the rugs: books on Persian and Oriental rugs, on interior decoration, on Iran, the middle East, and books on modern rug-making. The unusual exhibit will remain on view through November.

Archibald Henderson, who served as Commandant of the Marine Corps for over 38 years, left Washington to command a regiment of Marines in the field during the campaign against the Creek Indians, in 1836.

Rezzuti Stands Out . . .

Lions Back On Beam; Whip Melrose, 35-16

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

The Newton South football team got back on the beam last weekend as they bombed Melrose, 35-16. The Lions returned to their winning ways after two successive defeats, in running up their biggest score of the year.

Junior quarterback Tommy Rezzuti was the star for the Lions, throwing for two touchdowns, four conversion passes, running for one touchdown, and kicking a twenty - yard field goal, accounting for nearly all South's points.

The Lions drew first blood as Rezzuti opened the scoring, zipping 19 yards around right end. The PAT pass went to Dorie Gilbert. The score at the end of the first period was Newton 8 Melrose 0.

In the second period the Lions went ahead, 16-0, on a 2 yard run by junior Nick Parnell. The conversion went to Gilbert again. Melrose then scored, making the score read 16-8 at the end of the half.

The Lions' third tally of the day came on a 4 yard pass from Rezzuti to halfback George Tsuimus. Fullback Dan Mendelson snared the PAT pass and the Lions led 24-8.

In the fourth quarter, end George McKenny snatched a Rezzuti aerial and sailed the 30 remaining yards for the fourth South touchdown. Jim Chesarone grabbed the extra point pass. Melrose then registered their second touchdown. Rezzuti ended the scoring shortly thereafter with his field goal.

Final score: Newton South 35-Melrose 16.

The victory raises South's record to 6-2.

The Lions are idle this weekend. They will conclude their season on Thanksgiving Day, November 23, vs. Oliver Ames.

Player - Captain - Coach Bob Hahn of the varsity tallied the first Lion goal mid-way through the opening period to give the varsity a 1-0 lead.

Mr. McLaren tied the game for the faculty in the second period as he split the Lion defense nicely.

The varsity got their winning goal in the third period from goalie Dave Burmon who was on the wing because of an injured hand.

'Sky Fantasia' At Museum Of Science Daily

Sky Fantasia, a sparkling production with an all-star cast of 9,000, opened this week as the first program in the recently renovated Hayden Planetarium at Boston's Museum of Science

The Planetarium was closed temporarily in September, after nine years of constant use and 9,500 showings, to overhaul and update its complex Korkosz projector, which beams the stars onto its domed ceiling. At the same time, alterations and changes were made in its theatre and controls.

Some 95 twinkling first-magnitude stars, brighter than ever before, plus a supporting chart cast of almost 9,000 other stars ranging down to sixth magnitude, present a magnificent spectacle in the new production, which takes viewers on a global trip to see night time skies above foreign lands.

A frighteningly realistic tornado and thunderstorm add excitement to the program, which also features the midnight sun, North Pole stars, and a solar halo display.

Sky Fantasia may be seen daily, including Sunday, and Friday nights. It continues through November 26.

Sen. Ribicoff To Speak At Sidney Hill Country Club

The founders of Solomon Schecter Day School will be honored Wednesday evening, Dec. 13, at Sidney Hill Country Club by U.S. Senator Abraham Ribicoff and a group of Jewish community leaders.

The tribute is the highlight of a $100,000 fund drive of the six year old Conservative day school.

Irving R. Shapiro, a textile industry executive, is heading the fund drive and the Dec. 13 observance. A committee of 100 has been formed to aid him.

Shapiro, speaking at the first organization meeting of the campaign, told his fellow volunteers:

"We are tremendously pleased and honored that Senator Ribicoff has agreed to participate in our salute to the leaders who have spearheaded the growth of the Solomon Schecter Day School in our community. As a dedicated Jewish lay leader and as a former United States Commissioner of Health, Education and Welfare, Senator Ribicoff has steadfastly sought excellence in education at all levels and for all segments of the population.

"I am certain that representatives of every Conservative congregation, as well as hundreds of other community-minded people will be present on the historic occasion of the Founders Dinner. This event will mark the first public recognition of those who have helped bring the Solomon Schecter Day School to an institution with a reputation for superior quality education."

Mr. Shapiro said that all contributors who donate $1,000 to the Development Campaign prior to the dinner will receive Founder's Plaques.

He added that each of the 28 Conservative Congregations in the metropolitan area has accepted a campaign quota to insure attainment of the hundred thousand dollar goal. A team of four persons, including the Rabbi, Congregational President and Men's and Women's chairmen will head the drive in each religious institution.

A motion picture film entitled "Solomon's Children" which depicts children at the Solomon Schecter Day School engaged in English classes, Hebrew instruction and extra-curricular activities, was shown to the campaign committee members at the organization meeting. To the President of the United States of America:

We the undersigned teachers and staff of the Newton Public Schools call for an immediate end to the bombing of North Vietnam to provide a climate for a negotiated settlement with the North Vietnamese government and with the National Liberation Front.

The war is not only destroying, physically and morally, the country it is supposed to be saving, but it is conditioning Asians to suspect American motives and acts. And the conduct of the war negates the very humanistic values we try to encourageamong our students.

Headlights and Highlights From Newton South High

By JAMES SHULMAN

Linda Gershman, production manager, believes that the fall production has two purposes. "In the past, the fall play was put on primarily to make money for the spring musical. This year, because of the tremendous enthusiasm of the students, the play will not only make money for the musical, but will be a major school activity."

The Forms of Art class of Newton South recently returned from a trip to Expo '67. The purpose of the trip was to observe "diverse art forms" at the exhibits.

Of the many pavillions that the students visited, some of the most intriging were: The Czechoslavakian pavillion, where the first floor consisted of the country's art—beautiful glass objects and an enormous cut-wood house of history in which all the figures moved. This was the only country which attempted to display its products and technological advances in a modern and artistic form.

The Habitat, a new architectural idea in low-cost housing which was previewed at Expo. The whole structure consisted of prefabricated concrete blocks piled on top of each other abstractly. They formed a sort of pyramid with each tenant's terrace on his neighbor's roof.

And finally Labyrinthe, a co-operative exhibit in which the audience participated. It was a forty-five minute exhibit of light shows and three-dimensional movies. The provocative films were about the confusion and mortality of life, and man's eternal hope. Labyrinthe was definitely one of the more artistic and thought-provoking exhibits of the Fair.

The teachers who accompanied the students on this trip are: Mr. Samuel Busselle, Mr. Legare Cuyler, and Suzan Heller, a Harvard apprentice.

In recent auditions at Lexington High School, the District Band, Orchestra, and Choruses selected nine Newton South High students to be a part of well qualified group of musicians.

The Northeastern District of the Massachusetts Music Educators Association announced the names of Jeff Brown, clarinet, Howard Gillis, baritone horn (first chair), and Michael Hecht, clarinet as selectees for the Band. Ann Drinan, viola (first chair), Vicki Citron, violin II, Daniel Starr, violin, and Marjorie Weinert, violin I, were chosen for the orchestra. Beverly Bruce, alto, Linda Klein, alto, and Ruth MacCloskey, soprano, were selected for the Chorus.

Beverly Bruce, Ann Drinan, Howard Gillis, Michael Hecht, Ruth MacCloskey, Daniel Starr and Marjorie Weinert were also selected for the State level of Band, Orchestra and Chorus.

Their teachers at South High are David Levenson, Director of Orchestra, and David M. Arner, Director of Band and of the Chorus.

After two - and- one - half months of careful guidance, the Sophomore Class of Newton South High School has come into its own, with high expectations for a prosperous and successful year.

The Associates Council of Newton South helped the Sophomores organize, and start planning for the future, where they will be on there own, with no one watching their every move. The Council sponsored the Sophomore election, where a new type of voting took place.

Prior to the election, registration slips were passed around. Sophomores put their name and home room on the slip, and handed it in, at the cafeteria if they wanted to register to vote during the election. And only those students who registered could vote. The change in policy, of registering to vote was done so that those students who wanted to vote could vote, and that those students who did not want to vote, or those who did not care about voting, would not have to.

When it came time for voting, there were two unusual outcome to the election. One was that there were TWO ties in two separate races, and that no matter how the ties break the entire Sophomore government comes from Meadowbrook Junior High School.

The results of the election are: Louis Miller, President; Lynn Brayman, Vice-president; David Feldman tied with David Snyder for treasurer, Dewie Weiner, Secretary; and only one of the two Member-at-Large posts were decided, Richard Shamban; and Russ Gerard and Neil Linsky tied for the other post of Member-at Large.

The ties brought up a situation at South that had never been thought of before, how to resolve the two ties? The question went to the Associates council to be solved.

There were two motions brought up at the meeting, let the whole Sophomore class break the ties, or let the Sophomore Class Committee settle the ties. Neither of these two were chosen, but what finally was decided upon was to let just the registered voters break the ties.

At the moment the Sophomores have not voted on the ties, and are working together on the idea of a Computer Dance, much like the one last year's Sophomores held. Also, in the planning is an informal activity before the December vacation.

President Louis Miller said that he is also working with the Junior and Senior class on the project of a "Winter Weekend" in January. And the Sophomore class is thinking about adopting and supporting an orphan.

Louis said "everything is available to all Sophomores and everyone should participate because it is their class!"

Newton South's first production of the year, Dark Of The Moon, is in its final stages of preparation for the gala opening night, and weekend, November 16, 17, and 18 at 8:00 p.m.

Mr. Chamberlain, director of the play, said "Dark of the Moon is a play that's different. It's funny and yet it's horrible. And it's a very mature play."

New Benefits Began Nov. 12 For Unemployed

A new maximum weekly unemployment benefit rate of $54 will become effective on all new claims filed after November 12, 1967, according to J. William Belanger, Director of the Massachusetts Division of Employment Security. The present weekly maximum rate is $50.

On the same date, the minimum base year earnings required to qualify for any benefits will be raised from $700 to $800. The base period is the 52 weeks prior to the filing of a claim.

The changes are a result of amendments to the Massachusetts Employment Security Law recently enacted by the Legislature.

Mr. Belanger said the effect of the new law is to add four new weekly rates of $51, $52, $53, and 54. Proportionately higher earnings will be required to qualify for the higher rates.

To qualify for the new weekly rates the claimant must have average weekly earnings in high quarter as listed:

for $51, earnings of $121-125;
for $52, earnings of $125-128;
for $53, earnings of $128-131;
for $54, earnings of $131 - or over.

Claims for unemployment insurance filed prior to the effective date for the new rates will not be changed because of the new legislation. The new minimum earning requirements also will not affect any claims filed prior to November 12, 1967 for such change.

As a result of the same legislation, a second increase in both the weekly benefit rate and the qualifying earnings will become effective in 1968.

Costly Fires

NEW YORK — There were 12 fires in the United States in 1966 which caused $2.5 million or more each in insured property damage, according to the Insurance Information Institute. There were sixteen such fires in the United States in 1965.

Hickory Farms Pays Mail Costs On GI Packages

Hickory Farms at Shoppers' World will be pleased to pay the postage on food packages purchased at their shop destined for men overseas. They will send Vietnam packages to the Port of Embarkation at San Francisco and gifts for servicemen in the European area to New York City's APO and FPO addresses.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Blumberg of Needham, proprietors of Hickory Farms at Shoppers' World, offer to pay these charges as a public service because they believe, "A food gift package, especially at Christmas time, will help the morale of lonely men on the front lines. We hope to encourage more people to send gifts to our fighting men. It's such a welcome taste relief from the standard military menu to get a food gift package."

They urge all those who would send gifts overseas to do so right away. Once the package is received at the Port of Embarkation, it is airlifted on a space available basis.

"We can't do as much for our fighting men as we would like to," said the Blumbers, "but at least we can pay these postage charges."

Newton-Everett Playoff For Jr. Midget Champs

The Newton Patriots meet Everett this Sunday in the playoff game for the State Championship of the Junior Midget Division, Pop Warner Football League. Kickoff time is 1 p.m. at the Newton Highlands playground.

This is the first annual playoff game for the State Championship of the Junior Midget Division. A large crowd is expected. A marching band and the Patriots Corps of cheer leaders will add to the excitement of the big game for the state title.

The Newton team finished the season with a perfect record of eight wins and no losses, winning the championship of the Southern Conference. The powerful Everett Club is the Northern Conference champion.

The Patriots, a relatively small and young team, had no trouble disposing of larger, more experienced opponents during the regular season. In eight games Newton rolled up a total of 152 points against only 24 for their opponents.

The Newton team, playing fast and deceptive football all year long, was never hard pressed by any of its opponents. In five of the eight games the Patriot defense held the opposition scoreless.

The Patriot offense operates principally from a slot-T formation and uses a variety of professional style running and pass patterns. Newton uses a scrambling or sliding defense with blitzes, double blitzes and special pass and punt formations.

Star of the Newton team is triple-threat halfback Peter Percy, who is the leading scorer and leading ground gainer of the Southern Conference. Percy not only runs, passes and punts, but is the team's best pass receiver and a standout in the defensive platoon.

Patriot quarterback, Bobby Kinsella, is one of the best passers in the South Conference. In one game, against Watertown, he passed for three touchdowns. Against Wayland and Randolph he threw TD passes of 40 and 45 yards respectively to Percy.

Among the other key players in the Newton attack are John Visakis, who has several long runs to his credit; Tod Reynolds who alternates as fullback and line backer; and safety Dan Ahern who has intercepted five opponents' passes, returning three for long yardage.

The Patriots are in top physical condition for the big game. They have gone through the entire season without an injury, which Coach Nick Pasquarosa attributes to the extensive program of physical conditioning which began in mid-August when the team began its pre-season workouts.

In 1965 the Patriots were unofficial State Champions. Last year with a record of seven wins and one defeat, they were runner-up. Newton's record in 1967 was as follows:

20-0, against Belmont; 26-12, East Cambridge; 32-0, Watertown; 20-0, Brookline; 20-6, South Boston; 12-0, Wayland; 8-0, Arlington; and 14-6 Randolph.

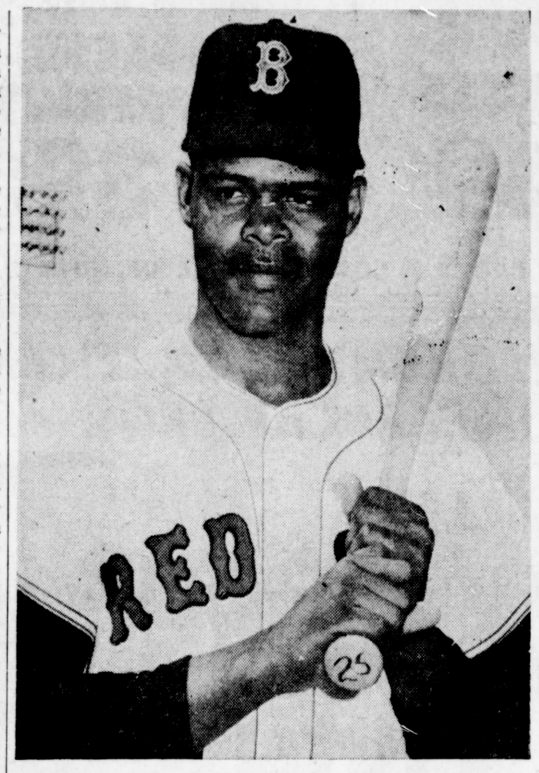
Year Of "Cardiac Kids" Memorable to Reggie Smith

By FRANK WALL

The winter season may be shortly upon us but the fans of this area will never forget the performance of the Boston Red Sox this season. Certainly one of the stars was Carl Reginald Smith, better known as Reggie.



CARDIAC KID — Reggie Smith, centerfielder extraordinaire for Boston's Bosox the 1967 'Cardiac Kids,' met Sports Editor Frank Wall for an interview, exclusive to this area.

Reggie resides in Norwood and will spend the winter here. He is a humble man who likes the quiet, easy town life. We found him to be a gentleman who doesn't like to boast. About his feats on the diamond. Just a plain "good guy." who loves baseball. We are sure our readers will be interested in some of the questions popped at Reggie during our interview with him.

Q. How did you enjoy playing for the Red Sox this year?

A. Very much, regardless if we won or lost. They were just a bunch of great fellas and I enjoyed every minute of it.

Q. What was your biggest thrill during the season?

A. Well, of course, playing in the World Series was simply terrific but I will never forget that last game when we beat Minnesota for the right just to be in the series. Playing an entire season for a major league baseball team was a thrill, and some of those moments during the season which eventually led to the pennant. For instance, after bowing to Cleveland in the last week and most of the fans giving up, we bounced back to win. I guess every time I stepped on a major league field was a thrill for me.

Q. Who was the toughest pitcher you faced?

A. Well, overall I'd have to say without a doubt Bob Gibson. In our league I thought Sam McDowell of the Indians gave me the most trouble.

Q. How was Dick Williams as a manager?

A. He was tops. He had one thing in mind at all times and that was to win. When we went to spring training he said "I am the chief and you are the Indians." Meaning that he was the boss, at all times. He took the captaincy away from Carl because he thought it was his job to run the team and didn't want to put any extra burden on any of his ball players. As I said, his biggest quality was wanting to win.

Q. Was there any real feud between the Sox and the Cards?

A. Most of that's untrue. Both teams had one thing in common and that is that they wanted to win.

Q. What was your favorite ball park to play in?

A. I had the best luck in California and Detroit.

Q. What the big reason the Sox won the pennant?

A. I can point out three reasons. First, we played fundamental baseball — just basic baseball, hitting behind the runner, taking that extra base, laying down good bunts, etc. Second, we had a good attitude. We didn't have the losers' complex. We all wanted to win and knew we could. Third was probably the most important, just plain old great team spirit with everyone pulling for everyone else.

Q. Was that last week of the season really pressure filled?

A. You better believe it, but I think that the pressure was also on the other teams as well and I believe we weathered it pretty well, especially with most of the players having to play under these conditions for the first time.

Q. What is the big difference between minor and major league baseball?

A. It is the "biggest difference" in the world. The entire atmosphere is changed with much better baseball. In the major league one season doesn't make you an established star, whereas in the minors you can kick around for years being mediocre. Also the pitching is much better in the big time.

Q. Who was the best all-around player you faced?

A. Well, I have to start on our team and name Carl and Scottie and, of course, there's Frank Robinson, Harmon Killebrew and Brooks Robinson.

Q. Any one give you a great deal of help in your climb to the majors?

A. I'd have to say that "Pops" (Eddie Popowski) was my biggest aide. He always let me know where I stood, and Bobbie Doerr was also a fine influence on me.

Q. Is "Yaz" a team player all the way?

A. The team came first with him. He was never trying for the home run in my opinion and just wanted to get on base and help the club.

Q. Any personnal friends on other clubs?

A. Sure I had friends, many real close ones, but we all know that once that opening pitch is fired we are all out to win. When you're on that baseball field you have to worry about your own team and can't feel sorry for any other player. Off the field we mix and are great friends, but any athlete will tell you on the field it's all business.

Q. Do you think Elston Howard helped the Sox-

A. Ellie was a great help to our pitchers with his great baseball knowledge. He also helped us with his bat on occasion. He was one of the most liked and respected players on our team. In my life the two people in baseball I have the most respect for are Elston Howard and Ernie Banks.

Q. Was it a sad Sod team after the final series game?

A. We didn't go away smiling, but we all realized we did our best and never gave up. We felt that we had brought a pennant to the great field of Boston and that was number one. I sure would like to have another crack at the world series next year.

Q. How about next year?

A. Well, of course you know that this year Carl was simply fantastic and asking him to duplicate the feat is quite a chore. I believe that we all have to do a little better and take some of that pressure off Carl.

Q. Ever meet Ted Williams?

A. Yes, in spring training and that was one of my biggest thrills in baseball. Ted taught me plenty about batting and some of his hints have helped me a lot I and all of the players on the Sox benefitted from his great baseball knowledge. And to top that off he is a real regular guy on and off the field.

Q. Any help from the minors for the Sox next year?

A. I believe that the only one is possibly Ken Brett, who got a little taste this year. It's hard to break into a lineup like ours.

Q. Where did you go to high school?

A. In Los Angeles, Centenial High, where I met my wife.

Q. Did you play any other sports beside baseball?

A. In high school I was a pretty fair football player and made All-League back two years in a row. I could have attended college on a football scholarship but I liked baseball number one and thought that my overall future and longevity in baseball was the most important factor.

Q. How do you like living in Norwood?

A. I like the town very much and as long as I am with Boston I hope to remain here. The people have been simply great and have been terrific to my wife, especially when I was on the road. I like the simple easy living life of a small town. The only problem if you call it one, is being haunted by autograph hunters, but that is part of my life and I have learned to accept it?

Q. What are you doing for the winter?

A. I am going to school for sales representatives in Providence for Elliott Buick. I hope to continue my schooling, I realize that the life of a baseball player isn't that long. We all must look ahead.

Q. Did you come from a big family?

A. I was the seventh of eight children. One of my sisters resides in Chicago, but my six brothers live in California. I have a brother Marvin 16 years old who is a bright prospect in baseball, but I am going to advise him to go on to college two years before he signs, because as I said education is ever so important.

Q. What do you think of Little League baseball?

A. I think it's great as it gets a boy ready to learn the fundamentals of the game. They get accustomed to facing competition and it is a big step for the future. I sure believe that they meet other boys and learn to get along, which is an important factor. By the way, I played Little League baseball in California.

Q. Any hobbies?

A. I have two quarter horses in California and am very interested in having my own stable. I plan to ship the horses to this area shortly.

Q. What is a quarter horse?

A. Sort of a rodeo horse which is mostly a style horse.

Q. Any other hobbies?

A. I also like records and have many albums. One of my favorite is Frank Sinatra.

Q. Is your wife a baseball fan?

A. She goes to as many games as she can and is a real avid fan. I have learned one thing that is important and that is to leave the game at the park. If you come home and feel sorry for yourself after a bad game or losing, it can hurt your home life. I love baseball but when the game is over I leave it at the park.

Q. Any advise to youngsters?

A. Play baseball if you like, but if you play any sports I suggest that you also concentrate on the books. Sports are great but all youngsters must remember that every boy must study so that he will have a better life in the future.

Respectfully represents Mary D. The land in said Newton with the buildings thereon now numbered 67 Beaumont Avenue, being shown as Lots 33 and 34 Beaumont Avenue on a plan made by Ernest W. Said Lot 33 containing 8,420 square feet, and said Lot 34 containing 8,970 square feet, according to said plan.

That the record title to said lots of land is clouded by a mortgage given by James F. Gallagher & Mary D. Gallagher, Mary L. Wallpapering Accident Costs Man His Hand

A Brighton man lost his hand last week in a bizarre accident while he was removing wallpaper in a Newton home.

Clarence Taylor, 43, of 2 Crest Hill rd., was removing wallpaper with a steam machine in a third-floor room of a home at 194 Commonwealth ave., Chestnut Hill.

The flame that heated the boiler of the machine apparently used up the oxygen in the room. Taylor lost consciousness and collapsed to the floor with his hand resting against the boiler.

He was discovered by Peter Pappas of 200 Commonwealth ave. who summoned the police. Taylor was taken to the Newton - Welesley Hospital by Police Sgt. Martin Greeley and Patrolmen Ralph Rich, Peter Wallace and John Quinn.

Taylor was listed as in "fair condition."

City Solvent After Paying Loan Debt

City Treasurer Theodore Scafidi announced this week that Newton "is still solvent" after paying off $10.2 million borrowed in lieu of taxes.

He said that only $2.8 million in taxes are still to be collected after some $21 million poured into the city coffers. He said that the collection was very good this year, noting that some people didn't wait until the last minute to pay up. He added that the work load in his office was eased by the early payment of taxes by four Newton banks.

The money collected will run the city through February, Scafidi predicted and then the whole process will begin again in March when the city will be forced to borrow again.

The city paid about $130,000 in interest on the money borrowed this year. City loans, usually for substantial amounts are borrowed on a short term, low-interest basis.

Scafidi said the city probably will borrow as much next year, in lieu of taxes, and probably more. He said that the rising costs of almost everything makes it almost positive that the city will have to borrow more money in 1968 than it did this year.

Next year, Scafidi said, his office will conduct an educational campaign to get taxpayers to pay before the deadline so his office can spread out the work.

The treasurer expressed the hope that next year more than four banks will break with tradition and pay the tax bills early.

Emeritis Status At Harvard For Local Physician

Dr. Randolph K. Byers, a native of Newton, was awarded emeritus status in the Faculty of Medicine at Harvard University this summer according to Dr. Robert H. Ebert, Dean of the Harvard Medical School.

Dr. Byers, who retired from the Faculty of Medicine in 1963, was cited by Dr. Ebert for his "extraordinarily productive career . . . and for his remarkably loyal service to the Medical School in teaching and in the development of its new Department of Neurology at the Children's Hospital Medical Center." His association with the University covered a period of over 40 years.

Dr. Byers, received the M.D. degree from Harvard in 1921. Shortly thereafter he started his association with The Children's Hospital and the Harvard Medical School. Throughout the period from 1925 to 1950 he played an important role in the teaching of pediatrics and neurology to medical students, interns, residents and fellows. A number of the latter now hold similar positions in other medical schools.

Synagogues Plan To Renovate

The Associated Synagogues of Massachusetts will unveil plans for its building renovation program at a cocktail reception on Thursday, November 28, at 4:30 p.m. Initial plans call for the remodeling of three of its six floors at 177 Tremont Street in Boston, it was disclosed by President, Hirsh Sharf.

The urgent needs for this building, which is the central address for the Jewish religious community of Greater Boston, include a self-service elevator, air - conditioning, main assembly hall, improved office space and consultation rooms. Architect's drawings have been presented for a lecture hall, courtroom for the Beth Din (Rabbinic Court) and Board Room. The goal set for the building development program is $250,000. Mr. Nathan Pearlman, Chairman; and Mr. Frank Brezniak, Co-Chairman, have been appointed to head a large Committee planning the November 28th affair.

The building of the Associated Synagogues, conveniently located opposite the Boston Common, is used daily by countless individuals and organizations. The Saval Chapel and Rabinovitz Library and Reading Room on the ground floor are always open for prayer, quiet meditation and study. Persons seeking guidance and counsel on personal matters or who have questions involving Jewish law or the Jewish community are received and assisted. Disputes are adjudicated at the Court and offices of the Beth Din in an atmosphere of privacy and dignity. Many organizations, both Rabbinic and lay, find it a convenient location for their deliberations.

In cooperation with the Mass. Board of Rabbis and the Vaad Harabonim and its constituent congregations, the Associated Synagogues looks forward to a successful campaign to renovate its headquarters so that it can better serve the entire community and provide more useful and attractive facilities to all.

GEORGE ROBERTS

Jewish Hospital Events Headed By Geo. Roberts

George Roberts of Newton will preside Nov. 26 when the Men's Associates of Jewish War Memorial Hospital hold its annual installation breakfast at 9:15 at Temple Emeth, Chestnut Hill.

Roberts, the hospital's vice president, has long been active in B'nai B'rith. He also is chairman of the board of trustees of Temple Emanuel and a member of the executive committee of the Rotary Club of Boston.

A theatre company executive, Roberts is chairman of the hospital's 18th annual "Celebrities Night" which will be held Dec. 10 at the Back Bay Theatre.

Newt. Navy Men On Atlantic Duty As Apollo 4 Soars

Two Newton men were with U.S. Navy forces participating in the recovery operation for the unmanned Apollo 4 spacecraft.

Seaman Harold J. Travers Jr. of 37 Champa street and Radioman Construction Mechanic Alfred R. DiTullio of 245 River street, are crew members of the USS Sabine.

The Sabine, an oiler, waited on station in the Atlantic as a back-up to the Pacific Recovery Force in the event of an emergency of malfunction resulting in the spacecraft's splashdown in the Atlantic.

The flight, designed to evaluate the Saturn V launch vehicle and test the Apollo's heat shield, subjected the shield to temperatures of 6,000 degrees as the craft re-entered the earth's atmosphere.

NEW YORK — The winter months are the worst for fire losses, according to the Insurance Information Institute. Although other factors are involved, this is mainly the result of heating hazards.

TV's "Hondo" Star Ralph Taeger As Rugged As His Buckskin Hero

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ralph Taeger, like the "Hondo" he plays in the new series, is a man of few words — perhaps because he was born and raised in New England.

The ruggedly handsome Taeger is a newlywed, married only three months to a pretty Boston girl named Lynda.

They live in a modest apartment in Santa Monica, not too far from the ocean. It contains only two bedrooms and a small patio. Lynda rented the apartment furnished, but has added little touches of colonial pieces from antique shops in the east.

It may be the Taegers' natural reserve, or the fact that they are newlyweds, that accounts for the fact that they have few friends, rarely entertain and seldom go out on the town, or even out for dinner.

"Lynda wasn't much of a cook at first," Ralph grins, "but she's learning fast."

Ralph's schedule is rigid and demanding for the new ABC-TV series.

He's up in the morning at 5 for setting-up exercises and a run around the neighborhood to keep in shape. Usually he reports to MGM by 7 a.m. to begin work.

The honeymoon is still upon the couple, fortunately for Ralph. Every morning Lynda is up to fix him a hearty breakfast of steak and eggs before he heads for the studio.

When the company shoots on location on the Mojave desert it's necessary for Ralph to scramble out of bed at 3:30 a.m. — and sometimes that's two or three days a week. Still, Lynda fixes breakfast.

If the call sheet requires Ralph to go to such distant locations as Moab, Utah, Lynda accompanies him.

"We aren't planning on a family soon because of my schedule," Ralph reports. "And we don't keep any pets for the same reason. It wouldn't be fair to an animal to leave it in an apartment all day."

On weekends Ralph and Lynda play tennis at the nearby Riviera Tennis Club, to which they belong. But the beach is out. Lynda is allergic to the sun.

Lynda, however, is an experienced skier and will start her husband on the sport this winter.

Buckskins are Ralph's permanent costume in "Hondo." When he's not working his wardrobe isn't a great deal more fancy; usually blue jeans or tennis togs.

Ralph isn't a collector or a hobbyist. He and Lynda both enjoy classical music on a small phonograph — not stereo or hi-fi.

"We don't believe in ostentation," Ralph explains. "And I don't feel comfortable all dressed up. My life right now is work, eat and sleep. There isn't time for much else."

Taeger is one of the few video cowboys who feels at home on a horse, but not as much as "Gunsmoke's" Jim Arness who raises and rides horses on the weekends.

"I've had enough of being in the saddle by the end of the week," Ralph says. "I need the weekends to recuperate.

"Sure I work long hours and the role is demanding. And it's fun to gripe about it all. But if I weren't doing this I don't know what the hell else I'd be doing for a living. So I'm not complaining."

HONORED — Robert K. Doane of 19 Jenison St., Newtonville, was feted recently for 10 years of service at a dinner held in his honor by fellow employees at RCA in Burlington.

Science Fiction Gains Influence

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)—A Stanford University professor thinks that man's daily life in the future will be more influenced by the visions of the science-fiction writer than the historical analyst.

And, just as Mark and Adam Smith differed in their views of the past, Communist and Western science fiction writers see different futures.

Professor H. Bruce Franklin said Soviet writers take an "almost universally optimistic" view of the future. The American view is one of "profound pessimism."

Americans regard science fiction as offbeat, zany and not quite respectable, said Franklin, author of "Future Perfect: American Science Fiction in the 19th Century."

Franklin said science fiction in Russia is an official form of literature.

"In America, diversity is exalted and the demand is for as many surprises, tricks and innovations as possible," he said.

"In Russia, it is almost a collective fiction, an agreed upon Utopia limited by many taboos, Communism can't be shown as failing, etc.," he said.

Date Set For 74th Annual Hospital Dinner

Participating in the 74th annual dinner meeting of the New England Baptist Hospital to be held on Wed. (Nov. 29) at the hospital on Park Hill avenue will be Aubrey Schurman of Newton Centre.

The featured speaker will be Dr. James L. Poppen of Brookline, Senior Member of the Lahey Clinic and member of the surgical staff of the New England Baptist Hospital. He will discuss, "A Surgical Tour of the Orient."

Albert H. Curtis, 2nd, of Weston, Hospital president, will preside.

Among officials participating will be Harry Atwell, Brookline, Chairman of the Executive Committee; David M. Goodwin, Wellesley, Chairman of the Nominating Committee; Calvert W. Cox, Lexington Clerk; Wallace M. Baxter, Melrose, Treasurer; Dr. Herbert D. Adams, Wellesley, Surgeon-in-Chief; Dr. William B. Stevens, Brookline, Physician-in-Chief; Miss Elinor M. Kirkby, Wareham, Administrator; Mrs. Adriel U. Bird, Boston, President of the Hospital League; Mrs. Edgar Beers, Randolph, President of the Hospital Auxiliary; Harry W. Besse, Boston, Chairman of the Long-Range Planning Committee; and Marshall Dalton, Sharon, N.H.

Others participating will include Lewis M. Foster, Boston; Dr. Ernest R. Caverly, Brookline; Robert K. Wilson, Wellesley Hills; Dr. Kenneth W. Warren, Wellesley; Dr. Russell S. Boles, Wellesley Hills; and Gordon W. Sanders, Arlington Heights.

A Memorial Service will be conducted for two members of the Board of Trustees and four Corporate members who passed away during the past year. Two Board members are Ernest Henderson Sr., of Boston, President of the Sheraton Corp. and Carl J. B. Currie of Cambridge. Four Corporate members are Nelson Blount, Peterboro, N. H.; Rev. Dr. James T. Rider, Roxbury; Maurice E. Witmer, Portsmouth, N.H.; and Edward G. Fitzhenry of Oyster Harbors.

VA Newsetter

Widows of veterans may now qualify for benefits from the Veterans Administration if they were married to the veteran a minimum of one year prior to his death, VA said today.

Previously, VA required that a widow be married to the veteran for at least five years prior to his death in order to classify as an eligible widow.

Recent legislation signed by President Johnson continues to qualify widows in cases where a child is born of the marriage, regardless of time limit.

In order to file a claim for benefits, the widow should provide VA with: (1) a copy of the deceased veteran's discharge; (2) the veteran's death certificate; (3) their marriage certificate and (4) the children's birth certificates.

Further assistance may be obtained at the VA Contact Division, Room E-116, John F. Kennedy Federal Building, Boston and the VA Office, 1200 Main street, Springfield.

No Tipping

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands (UPI)—The Holland-America Line will abolish all tipping aboard its passenger ships beginning next April, it has been announced. The company said crewmen who were partially dependent on tips will be fully compensated.

New-Type Plane To Solve Problem of Airport Trip

By RUTH FEUERSTEIN

CHICAGO (UPI)—An architect says he has an answer to the complaint that the longest and hardest part of a trip often is getting from home to the airport.

Martin B. Schaffer, chairman of the board of an airplane architectural firm, (Avtech), envisions "containerized" passengers transported from nearby their homes to the airplane and then to their destination without ever leaving the seats in which they started out.

Schaffer, who served as project coordinator on construction of O'Hare International Airport in Chicago, says "new airport facilities will be obsolete before they leave the drawing board" unless some drastic changes are made.

"Airlines already have enough equipment in the air and on order to swamp every airport in the country by 1970," he said.

"Getting through traffic to the airport and the handling of passengers and their baggage becomes more of a problem daily," Schaffer said, "but with plans for 500 and 750 passenger planes to go into service in the next few years our airports will become chaotic."

Schaffer emphasized that bigger airports with more buildings are not the answer.

Schaffer's airport of the future has no large terminal buildings but consists mainly of runways for jets and circular landing pads for vertical takeoff planes. These planes are presently in the design stage, Schaffer said, and resemble helicopters except they go faster and are propelled by rotating engines instead of blades.

Schaffer said long, tiring drives out to the airport followed by parking problems, long ticket lines, baggage check-in lines and then the long walk to the boarding area would be eliminated by his new transportation system.

Travel in "Pod"

Schaffer foresees passengers with their baggage boarding a "pod" from gathering points in the area serviced by the airport. Schaffer explained that the "pods" would be car-like compartments running on either monorails, through tunnels like a subway system or on an air cushion.

Several "pods", carrying about 71 passengers each, would be scheduled for a specific flight, Schaffer said, and after picking up the passengers at designated stops, would go directly out to the field.

Instead of seats for passengers, airplanes would consist of a large frame in which the "pod" would be inserted, the way baggage compartments are inserted into a frame now, Schaffer said.

The "pods" could then be detached from the air frame upon landing and carry the passengers away to different points at their destination, he said.

"We've got the technology to build this type of system within the next 15 years," Schaffer said.

Schaffer estimated the cost running in the billions but said the 200 or 300 new airports which will be built anyway within the next decade would cost at least as much.

"If the new airports are built the way the present ones are, they'll be outmoded within a few years," he said. "The system I envision would include a very expensive transportation system but should eliminate the need for large, costly terminal buildings.

"And the system has the added advantage of being a city-wide transportation network for people who are not taking trips."

21 Public Shower Baths Still Operated in Paris

By THOMAS OCHILTREE

PARIS (UPI)—The French produce atom bombs and automobiles, but one service still run by the Paris city government in 1967 is a left-over of a bygone century.

The faded sign outside the door at 33 Rue du St. Merri says, "Bains Douches Publics" or public shower-bath.

In this space age, Paris operate 21 municipal baths because the French still have not universally adopted the bathtub or shower as a necessary part of a dwelling.

Few French citizens believe in the daily bath or shower even if they own the facilities. And many French homes have no bathroom at all. The National Statistics Institute says 819,000 of the capital's 1,170 million dwellings have neither tub, or shower. And of 73,000 new dwellings built since the end of World War II, some 18,000 were erected with no bathrooms.

Many bathroom-less citizens patronize the city's 21 municipal baths. The one at 33 Rue du St. Merri has what one could call neo-Assyrian architecture. An old tricolor flag flaps above the door and a huge mosaic proclaims that Paris "is wave-tossed but doesn't sink."

In the interests of research, I paid 1 franc 20 centimes (20 cents) for a shower. A small bar of soap cost 40 centimes (eight cents) and a towel 2 francs 80 (16 cents). If the towel is returned you are refunded 2 francs.

An attendant shows you to the showers in a long line of little booths. Each has its own door because they are used by both men and women. You have 20 minutes maximum time in the booth. It is rather large, with a little seat for undressing and some broken stumps of tile coat hooks.

There are no faucets. You push a button and get about three seconds of lukewarm water at remarkably strong, and painful, pressure. Since the water flows only when you press the button—an obvious system is to first wet one's self, soap the body with the water off, and then rinse.

The attendant, Paul Valois, 33, said "The people who come here are pretty much regulars. They come about once a week."

Aware of the week-end bathing habits of the citizenry, the city bathhouses stay open only from Thursday afternoon to Sunday afternoon although a few are open Wednesdays.

People who want a little more class can go to one of Paris' hundred private bath houses.

One on the Rue Sevigne has a neat little path bordered with flowers leading to a freshly painted building.

The manager, Pierre Dubois, a jovial man who has run the baths with his wife for a number of years, offers bathtubs with immense brass faucets and gushing hot water as well as showers.

Dubois claims private bath houses are disappearing because "it's not a very profitable business," for one thing. In addition, the number of clients is shrinking. The bureau of statistics says three per cent more Parisians have bathrooms compared with five years ago.

Will bathhouses disappear entirely? The public baths cost Paris 1.11 million francs a year $222,000).

Yet Paris is a city where traditions are strong. After all, the bathtub was introduced into France only in the 16th century by the Italians, after Catherine de Medici married France's King Henri II.

Marry Now and Pay Later Is Big Business in Japan

By SHOTA USHIO

TOKYO (UPI) — Getting married in Japan can, and often is, a curious blend of the old and the new.

It is not uncommon for parents to set up "arranged marriages" which the bride and groom pay for on the installment plan.

Iwao Ozaki, 27, was a carefree bachelor the day he spotted a newspaper advertisement which said: "Marry now, pay later."

That was before his parents had selected his bride, Yoko Honda, a 24-year-old clerk.

"The girl my parents selected was all right with me," said Iwao, who also is a clerk.

Yoko liked the selection too.

Although they come from the same perfecture, they had never met until last summer. They plan to marry Nov. 21. They met in the home of relatives who arranged the marriage.

Government sources indicate that of the 1 million marriages in Japan every year at least a third are arranged by parents with the help of go-betweens.

Young men are considered marriageable at 25 to 30, women at 20 to 25. When they are ready they ask friends or relatives to find them a prospective mate. The go-betweens do the hunting with the help of photographs, vital statistics and other information. They almost always are non-professionals.

They arrange meetings in homes, restaurants or theaters. Final approval of the candidates for marriage is up to the parents.

Iwao is optimistic about the future.

Small Quarters

"Yoko is jolly," he said. "I'm quiet. Different characteristics make a good married life."

He said they will live in a single six-by-12-foot room.

"We know it's too small so we'll be looking for a larger place early next year." he said.

"We just had no time for careful preparation for everything," Yoko nodded in agreement.

Yoko said her family will buy the furniture, a common practice in an arranged marriage.

Iwao, a college graduate, makes $2,000 a year. Yoko makes about half that much. She will continue to work. The rent for that little room is $20 a month.

Iwao said he could borrow $500 from the loan company to get married but he won't borrow that much.

"The loan company charges 9 per cent annual interest" he said.

About $200 of the borrowed money will go for the wedding itself. The couples parents will pay for a four-day honeymoon on a peninsula near Tokyo.

The company that loaned Iwao the money is Japan Wedding Center, started by Yutaka Saito last year.

"I'm mighty happy that over 200 couples have used our service and are now married," Saito said.

I got the idea from America. In America you can borrow money for anything—a car, land, a house, even for a funeral."

Saito said 70 to 80 per cent of his clients have no prospective mates when they come to him but expect to find one after they get the money.

Beat Up Drums Get Treatment In Hospital

CHICAGO (UPI) — Unlike old drummers, old drums rarely die. But some take quite a beating.

Many drums suffer what Bill Crowden calls a "metal breakdown" and other assorted ills. And like a wornout drummer, Crowden explains, drums, too, must be cared for with skill.

Crowden is the proprietor of Drums Unlimited which he describes as a unique "hospital" where drums are repaired.

"When a drum comes in with a cracked head," Crowden explains, "we take a look at the skin and perform plastic surgery. Sometimes we run into extreme cases where the only cure is replacement of the entire head.

"Then there is the drum which comes in all tensed up. The drummer might go to a head-shrinker for this problem, but he brings his instrument to Drums Unlimited for exactly the opposite treatment—loosening of the head to increase vibration."

Insects Invade Home in Winter

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — When winter comes, the insects go — at last.

That's what a lot of people think, but it isn't always true.

There are just as many insects around in winter as in summer. Some of them you can find only if you know where to look. These are the ones that winter over in the soil, in trash or on trees and shrubs in a dormant stage.

There are others, however, that stay active over winter and are easily seen — often in places most homeowners would rather not see them.

This is a select group of insects that know when fall comes it is time to start looking for warmer quarters — the nearest warm building; perhaps your house. These Geigy Chemical Corp. calls the "home invaders."

Although some of these home-invading insects are "biters" that can bother both pets and humans — chiggers, dog ticks, ants and some flies, for example—most are just crawling nuisances that are unsightly in the home. Among those insects that seek a warm home are earwigs, millipeds, clover mites, springtails, box elder bugs and the common roach.

Leaving the window screens on longer than usual is not the answer to barring these home invaders, Geigy says.

The Way In

Most will crawl or fly in through windows and doors left ajar for even a fleeting moment. Even a tiny crack in the wall can be a means of entry. Others hitchhike in as passengers on family pets.

To stop these invaders before they penetrate hearth and home, Geigy suggests a "bug barrier" around the house, using one of the newer insecticides designed to control many varieties of insects.

Youthful Drivers

NEW YORK — In 1966, drivers under the age of 25 represented 19 per cent of the total driving population, but were involved in 32 per cent of all highway accidents, according to the Insurance Information Institute

Catholic Schools Join METCO In Newton Program

The Newton Metropolitan Council for Educational Opportunity Committee met Thurs. evening (Nov. 9) to determine its course of action on several current topics relative to the program in which 75 Roxbury youngsters attend Newton Schools, under auspices of the Title III-funded Metropolitan Council for Educational Opportunity. Mrs. Katherine Jones, Chairman, West Newton, presided at the First Unitarian Society, West Newton.

Membership on the METCO Committee has been expanded this year to include representatives from St. Bernard's and Sacred Heart Schools, Newton. Both are educating children from the Roxbury-South End community. However, their education is sponsored by the Department of Education of the Archdiocese of Boston, whose chairman is the Rt. Rev. Albert Low.

Sister Mary Fernand, a seventh grade teacher, and Sister Martina Marie, who teaches first grade, are from St. Bernard's School of West Newton. Attending their first meeting, they were introduced by METCO Liaison Mrs. Anne Marie Darleo, who noted that host families had recently held a reception for Roxbury parents at St. Bernard's.

Despite disparity of backgrounds, Mrs. Carleo commented, adjustments have been smooth for all concerned. (Not all the youngsters are Catholic.)

Exchanging views with the Sisters at the meeting were Social Workers Mrs. Ellie Rosenblum, Mrs. Anne Buxbaum, Mrs. Sophie Harrison, Mr. Sanford Latner, Mrs. Ann Heinnstadt.

Mrs. Donald Cutler announced availability of Community Lecture Series tickets through Newton METCO, which is a sponsor of the second year evening talks by and about "Black Americans and the Contemporary Scene." Among the speakers: Cecil Moore, Bill Russell, Leroi Jones, Elma Lewis, Noel Day, Preston Wilcox, Bruce Wright and Marcus Mitchell. Single and series tickets are being sold now through Mrs. Cutler (332-6268).

Mrs. Marion Amory was appointed chairman of a committee to investigate possibilities of a METCO - Newton Free Library Display for the month of February. The history of the Negro will be woven into the display as an educational public service by the Metropolitan Council for Educational Opportunity.

1968 Board's No. 1 Problem Is The Budget

The major problem facing the 1968 Newton Board of Aldermen, which will include three new members, will be the municipal budget which is expected to be considerably higher.

A big factor in hiking the budget will be the almost $2 million increase expected in the School Department—and that does not include expected hikes in teacher salaries.

In addition, other municipal bargaining groups are expected to present similar demands. Unfortunately, there is not at this time any foreseen compensating aid to the city from state coffers.

If there is no increase in state aid, and spending continues at the usual pace, one City Hall official estimates Newton's tax rate could rise $15 during the next two years.

The 1968 Board of Aldermen will be without the services of retiring finance committee chairman John P. Nixon. Over the years he was the final watchdog over the budget — the man who trimmed the fat.

The new Aldermen will also experience the feeling of helplessness in facing the School Committee budget which is expected to amount to half of the city's total.

Local Church Group To Hear Dr. J. Scammon

The Newton Highlands Congregational Church Parish hall will be the locale of an interesting talk to be given by Dr. John H. Scammon, Professor of Hebrew and Old Testament of Andover Newton Theological School. The talk, to be illustrated with colored slides, will be presented this Monday (Nov. 20) at 8 p.m. and will be titled, "From Israel to the Philippines By Way of Bangkok and Hong Kong".

Author of many articles in various religious and educational publications, Dr. Scammon's most recent book, "Living With THE PSALMS" was published in 1967 by Judson Press, Valley Forge, Pa.

Several summers of study in Israel and a year as exchange professor in Beirut, Lebanon, as well as his sabbatical year, 1966-67, as visiting professor at the College of Theology, Central Philippine University, have afforded a wealth of material for a most interesting evening.

The public is cordially invited and a social hour and refreshments, following Dr. Scammon's talk, will be hostessed by members of the Business and Professional Women's Group of the church. Mrs. Harold L. Burrill is the president, Miss Doris Hayward vice-president and program chairman, assisted by Miss Marjorie Phelon, Mrs. Ralph W. Kellaway, and Mrs. Robert G. Jennings, hospitality committee.

It's A Levi Family Habit To Become An Eagle Scout

Youngsters who attain the rank of Eagle Scout are not too common among the troops of Boy Scouts. It is a much-coveted, but hard-won distinction.

However, the Levi family of Newton can boast the Eagle medal adorning the husky chests of all the males of the brood; the father, Robert Levi, and two sons, Charles and James.

Charles is the most recent recipient of the high Scouting award. He received it at a Court of Honor of Troop 218, sponsored by the First Baptist Church in Newton. Charles is a Newton High School student.

The Court of Honor, at which Scoutmaster Bernard Cole presided, was held in the Newton Centre Playground House with a large audience of Scouts, their parents and friends.

Council Commissioner Thomas G. Doyle, of Wellesley, Assistant Scoutmasters Melvin Naiman and William Waters, and Troop Committeeman David Granoff, all of Newton Centre, officiated at the presentation of other scout awards.

Cong. Heckler Recovering From Accident Injuries

Cong. Margaret M. Heckler is recovering this week from injuries sustained last Friday when her station wagon ran off the road and rolled over a cliff in Virginia.

Mrs. Heckler, the representative in Congress for this community and a resident of Wellesley, suffered a dislocated hip, a hairline fracture of the pelvis and severe leg cuts and bruises but was reported in good condition at Arlington Community Hospital in Arlington, Va.

Police said that the freshman Congresswoman was driving on Old Dominion dr. near her McLean, Va., home when her car apparently ran onto a soft shoulder and rolled over a steep cliff.

An aide said Mrs. Heckler, who won the Republican seat in Congress during the last Congressional election in 1966, would be released from the hospital on crutches but expected to be back in her office within 10 days.

N.E. Book Show On Exhibit Now At Library Here

The 1966 New England Book Show, a group of outstanding books of 1966, is on exhibit this week at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre Street.

The Bookbuilders of Boston sponsor the show, which includes books by New England publishers — trade, text, special purpose, or private. These books are chosen on the basis of their good design and manufacturing standards.

The Bookbuilders is an organization composed of representatives of the publishing industry of New England, their suppliers of materials, manufacturers, and individuals in related fields, such as design, library work and education.

Its purpose is to foster an interest in better bookmaking and to further this cause by various methods toward the improvement particularly of book design and manufacturing.

The Bookbuilders also lend financial support to students planning to enter the industry, through contributions to annual scholarships awarded both at technical colleges and art schools.

Among this year's jury selections are Philip Kappel's NEW ENGLAND GALLERY (Little Brown); Jules Prown's JOHN SINGLETON COPLEY (Museum of Fine Arts); Allan I. Ludwig's GRAVEN IMAGES: NEW ENGLAND STONECARVING AND ITS SYMBOLS, 1650-1815 (Wesleyan University Press); Barrington Moore's SOCIAL ORIGINS OF DICTATORSHIP AND DEMOCRACY (Beacon Press); Stearns Morse's LUCY CRAWFORD'S HISTORY OF THE WHITE MOUNTAINS (Dartmouth Publications); and Philip Beam's WINSLOW HOMER AT PROUT'S NECK (Little Brown).

These books and others in the show are available at the Newton Free Library, although the Exhibit books themselves do not circulate. The New England Book Show will remain on view through November 26.

Newton Airman Safe In Crash Of Jet Fighters

Air Force Capt. Dean H. Glazier of West Newton parachuted to safety after two jet fighters collided Tuesday over Kingfield, Me., a small community 60 miles north of Lewiston, Me.

Glazier, the pilot, and radar officer Maj. Lawrence H. Uchmanowicz, 38, of Mastic Beach, N.Y., bailed out of their plane which crashed and exploded on the 4900-foot peak of Mt. Abraham. The mountain is four miles southeast of the Sugarloaf and Saddleback Mountains, both well-known ski areas.

Officials said the men came down near West Kinfield rd. and walked to a farm house. They were not injured.

Glazier, son of Mrs. Grace A. Glazier, of 367 Waltham st., West Newton, is married to the former Hazel O'Leary, of Westgate, England. They have a son, Guy, 3, and live at Otis Air Force Base. Glazier is a 10-year veteran of the Air Force.

NEWTON HIGH HIT BY FIRE OF INCENDIARY ORIGIN

A $5,000 FIRE broke out yesterday in the top floor lounge of a three-story building at Newton High School, the fourth fire at the high school this year. No injuries were reported and 500 students were evacuated.

Fire officials said the blaze was of incendiary origin and heavily damaged the lounge. There was water damage throughout the top floor. Three other fires erupted in the Campus-style school last February.

MOTORISTS URGED TO KEEP CARS OUT OF HUB FRIDAY

BOSTON TRAFFIC OFFICIALS urged motorists yesterday to avoid bringing their cars into Boston Friday, the day after Thanksgiving.

John H. O'Neill, city commissioner of traffic and parking, reminded the motoring public that Friday traditionally is known as Boston's busiest shopping day. Consequently, he urged drivers to leave their cars at the fringe terminal parking lots and use public transportation into downtown Boston.

ALGONQUIN GAS GETS OK TO HIKE DIVIDENDS

THE FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION said yesterday it had received an application by Algonquin Gas Transmission Co. of Boston to increase natural gas deliveries to 10 utility customers.

The FPC said the customers were located in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island. Algonquin proposes to increase delivery by November 1968, after spending some $2.2 million for new facilities.

SENATE WON'T LOWER SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS

THE SENATE REFUSED yesterday to trim its proposed record increases in Social Security benefits to match lesser increases approved earlier by the House. By a 58-22 vote, it rejected a Republican plan offered by Sen. Carl Curtis, (R.-Neb.), which would have substituted the House-approved plan.

Under the Senate bill, a 15 per cent benefit increase would be provided along with a jump in the minimum monthly payment from $44 to $70. The House bill provides for a 12.5 per cent increase and a $50 monthly minimum. Sen. Russel B. Long, (D.-La.), said the Curtis amendment ignored the plight of 1.6 million elderly Americans who would be removed from the "depths of poverty" by the Senate measure.

HOUSE GIVES FINAL OKAY TO PEACE CORPS EXTENSION

THE HOUSE GAVE final congressional approval yesterday to a bill extending the Peace Corps through next June. It defeated moves to cut the corps money authorization and a move to keep officials from seeking draft deferments for volunteers serving overseas.

The bill which now goes to the White House after passing 312 to 32, authorizes $116 million for the corps for the fiscal year that began July 1, $6 million more than it got the previous year. The legislation will put the corps level at about 16,000 volunteers serving in 58 countries.

STOCK MARKET STAGES BRILLIANT RECOVERY

THE STOCK MARKET staged a brilliant recovery Tuesday, erasing the previous day's wide declines and sending prices substantially higher. Even widespread hikes in interest rates by major banks and greater likelihood of a tax boost could not dampen enthusiasm and most issues finished at or near their highest levels of the day.

The closely watched Dow Jones average of 30 industrial blue chips, which finished a little more than 4 points lower Monday, turned in its best performance in months, soaring 13.7 to 870.95.

ISRAEL AND JORDAN ENGAGE IN HEAVY FIGHTING

JORDAN SAID IT SHOT DOWN two Israeli jet fighters yesterday in the heaviest fighting between Jordan and Israeli troops since the end of the June 5-10 Middle East war. In Jerusalem, Israeli officials announced the loss of one French-made Mystere fighter in the battle across the Jordan River near the Umm Shart Bridge. The Israelis said they destroyed six Jordanian tanks and "silenced" artillery fire aimed at them.

Each side accused the other of starting the four-hour battle which climaxed five straight days of lesser skirmishes and sporadic shooting across the Jordan River.

'COPTERS RESCUE 140 WOUNDED G.I.'s FROM HILL

HELICOPTERS BRAVING DENSE fire yesterday lifted 140 wounded GIs, some of them delirious, from the side of a Dak To hill littered with bodies of 76 other U.S. paratroopers killed in three days of frustrating battle. Survivors then launched a determined new push to dislodge Red defenders from the crest of Hill 875.

Paratroopers of the 173rd Airborne Brigade, pinned down and sometimes surrounded for three days near the base of the hill, immediately ran into machinegun and mortar fire from North Vietnamese gunners deeply entrenched in bunkers up the slopes. Maj. Gen. William R. Peers said his forces were nearing the summit at sundown but the going was painfully slow.

4 SAILORS SAY DEMONSTRATIONS PROMPTED DESERTIONS

FOUR AMERICAN SAILORS told a Soviet newspaper yesterday that anti-Vietnam demonstrations at home prompted them to desert the U.S. aircraft carrier Intrepid and flee to Moscow.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda printed a lengthy interview with the quartet of young deserters only 12 hours after their surprise appearance on a Moscow television show Monday night to denounce American involvement in Vietnam.

Both Newton Teams Away Thanksgiving

The Newton High School football squads are away this year for the traditional Thanksgiving Day games. Newton High School will travel to Brookline for the 71st annual Turkey Classic, while Newton South journeys down to North Easton to combat Oliver Ames High School in the first meeting of what promises to be a long rivalry. On the basis of season records, Brookline has a big edge over Newton, but in such an ancient, hard fought series anything can happen. South and Oliver Ames promises to be a nip 'n tuck affair as the teams carry 6-2, 5-3 records into the fray.

Newton Goes To Brookline In 71st Meet

Brookline High's balanced offensive attack, featuring the superb passing of quarterback Rich Maloney and the running of backs Bob Patnaude and Dan Swartz, will be formidable opposition for Newton High's hard-nosed defense in the 71st annual Thanksgiving Day game, at Tech Field, Brookline.

The Wealthy Towners, boasting a 6-2 record, are rated only a slight favorite to braek the series deadlock of 32 victories each (there have been six ties) despite showing a large statistical advantage over the Tigers.

Newton, 3-5, has been unable to mount a sustained offen-

South Battles Oliver Ames At No. Easton

The Newton South football Lions will battle it out Thanksgiving Day with Oliver Ames, in North Easton, in the first of what is expected to develop into a classic rivalry.

Two years ago, Hingham dropped South from their schedule, ending the traditional Thanksgiving combat. Last year, the Lions were unable to find a opponent, so while nearly every high school in the state engaged in its traditional game, the Lions sat idle, their season already concluded.

Oliver Ames, also lacking a Thanksgiving Day opponent, answered a post-season Newton South appeal, and the two teams agreed to adding one another to their respective schedules.

Newton South carries a 6-2 record into the finale, with wins over Fitchburg, Cambridge Latin, Stoughton, Boston Tech, Lexington,

Speaker Says Church Must Reform Itself

The president of the United Church of Christ told the annual Seminary Seniors Convocation at Andover Newton Theological School "unless the church reforms itself within the next 10 years, God will not hesitate to drop it in favor of some other agency."

The Rev. Dr. Ben Mohr Herbster of New York City spoke at the convocation held from last Friday through Sunday. Some 80 seniors from seven seminaries related to the United Church attended.

"God is not tied to the Church," Rev. Herbster said, "there have been many times when He has had to go outside the Church to make His will and His name known.

"He will not hesitate to do that again if the Church in our day does not ring more true and is not more faithful to the task of Christianity."

Dr. Herbster told the seniors the Church must make three changes in the next decade if its to survive as "His Church:"

1. The Church must develop an increased understanding of the fact that "faith and action cannot be divorced, that they go hand-in-hand." The church can neither withdraw from the world nor plunge completely into action.

2. Christians must learn how to work more closely with one another across denominational lines.

3. The Church must put new emphasis on its mission to change the world, and less on programs to assure its physical survival.

"The task of the Church," Dr. Herbster said, "is to make a better world, a world of

Low-Income Housing Shortage Seen Here

A sub-committee report declaring "there is a shortage of low income housing in the city of Newton" was unanimously accepted by the Board of Aldermen Monday night.

The report recommended "authorizing the Housing Authority to apply for financial assistance to provide low-cost housing by leasing dwelling units in existing privately-owned structures."

Action on this recommendation was held up because state laws which regulate the powers of the Housing Authority were found to need further study and clarification. However, the board's mood in favor of the report's recommendations was clearly favorable.

It is expected that the existing city ordinance will be changed, hopefully before the end of the year, to allow the Authority to begin to move in the direction of seeking federal funds.

The Newton Housing Authority is now limited to construction of housing for the elderly.

The aldermen approved the recommendation of the submittee to strike out the word "elderly" from the charter of the housing authority.

The sub-committee investigating the need for low-income housing in Newton was formed six months ago when Aldermen Edward C. Uehlein and Paul J. Burke filed a petition requesting the formation of such a committee. Uehlein was named chairman.

In its 15 page report the committee noted that "Your Housing Authority stated that the first steps they would like to take in this di-

Bobby Kennedy May Withdraw His Endorsement of Johnson

Senator Edward M. Kennedy ended speculation as to whether he might run as a stand-in for President Johnson in the Massachusetts Presidential Primary next April if Senator Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota enters the Bay State contest.

Ted declared flatly that he will not be a favorite son candidate for President next year. This is construed as washing out the possibility that he might stage a holding operation for LBJ in his home State.

Actually, it would make no political sense whatever for President Johnson to reqeust him to do so.

Mr. Johnson probably is as strong with the Democratic party in Massachusetts as in any State in the Union.

If he were unable to beat back a challenge by Senator McCarthy in Massachusetts, the storm signals would be flying high for him. He would be forced to consider seriously the advisability of retiring from office because his prospects of achieving reelection next November would be dim, indeed.

President Johnson should have little difficulty in prevailing over McCarthy in Massachusetts or New Hampshire or in most other States.

But his problem will not be as simple as that if McCarthy does decide to run, a decision the Minnesota Senator apparently has not yet officially reached.

McCarthy's only hope of attracting widespread

Headlights and Highlights From Newton High School

By KATE SOLOMON

Newton High is an expanding school. First Newton South was built. Then Murray Road was used. Then, well someday a new Newton High will come into existence.

In any case, along with all its architectural transformations and changes, Newton High School-affiliated publications have also increased in number. There's the NEWTONITE, the school newspaper, there's the NEWTONIAN, the school year book, there's THOUGHTPRINTS, the school literary magazine. And now, new this year, there's the Murray Road NITTY GRITTY PRESS.

THE NITTY GRITTY PRESS is a twenty-eight page magazine. Costing each student thirty cents, it was sold both at Murray Road and at Newton High. The magazine includes short stories, poems, and art work.

Gary Gourgeois, editor in chief of the new magazine, remarked in his opening statement in the publication that THE NITTY GRITTY PRESS was "established in the belief that you (students at Murray Road) want something more comprehensive than the publications currently available to you. Both our format and editorial policy are eminently flexible and they will reflect your personal interests . . . . . In our minds the NITTY GRITTY PRESS is here to serve the reader while simultaneously maintaining a high standard of quality."

Tom Clafton wrote the one fiction story in the magazine. Amy Goodwin, Tom Graves and Marc Hellistein wrote movie reviews.

The five poems were written by Joan Silverman, Kevin Connoly(two), Mitchell Geller and Richard Barron Cohen. Herb Levy wrote about the Floating Opera and Kevin Connolly, Amy Golanny and Peter Walsh did the art work.

Those on the staff of the NITTY GRITTY PRESS are: A. Donath, J. Glass, A. Golanhny, A. Goodwin, T. Graves, M. Hellistein, S. Kisten, H. Levy, C. Norton, P. Reese, V. Sapier, M. Smith, A. Sonis.

NHS Music

The Boston Conservatory of Music has come to Newton High. The Music Club, headed by Cliff Orient, sponsored the assembly, "The Festival of Performing Arts," for its club members and all of Bacon House.

The purpose of the assembly was to present a diverse sampling of the performing arts represented by conservatory departments of music, drama, and dance.

The program began with the chamber orchestra (consisting of strings and piano) playing Torelii Concerto Grosso, Opus 8. The dramatic group then acted a scene from both "Lilliam" and its musical version "Carousel", showing a comparison between musicals and regular plays. The scene was the one when female star is at the carousel with Billy Budd and in the musical she sings "If I Loved You."

The concert closed with five choreographic scenes the first was about a toreador and bull, the second about a young maiden, the third was a negro spiritual the fourth a dance from "Pajama Game" and the last was a Russian Folk Dance.

The officers of the music club besides Cliff are: Charles Levi, vice president; Al Alphlin, treasurer; Patricia Chica, recording secretary and Mary Jo Carr, Marcia Hershkowitz, Judy Wolper, corresponding secretaries.

The club has already sponsored one student concert and will sponsor another one next spring. They will also sponsor a program in which students do all their own composing.

NHS Concert Band

All students who take band either as a minor or a major are part of the Newton High Concert Band. Friday, November 17, the band members, dressed in uniforms, performed at Lincoln Eliot Elementary School. They left the school at 2:00 and arrived at their destination around 2:15 after a short bus ride.

The Concert Band was directed by Mr. Jerry Gardner and Mr. David Hall. The band played "American in Paris," "Folk Song Suite," "Procession of the Nobles," "Valdres," and "The Newton High Victory Song." The program lasted approximately half an hour.

Thanksgiving

Every year at Thanksgiving time, the Newton High football team plays the Brookline team. Every year the game is heavily patrolled with policemen. Sporadically school students have participated in riots.

The Student Council has formulated a joint statement with Brookline High concerning this unnecessary violence at the game. Wednesday, November 15, Mr. Richard Mechem, school principal, and five representatives of Newton High's student body went to Brookline to converse about the behavior at the Newton-Brookline football game.

The statement reads:

"Thursday is the annual Thanksgiving Day Game between Newton and Brookline High Schools. We hope that as usual, both schools will show a lot of interest and be well represented.

"The reason to attend this game is to give the team the support they need, and not to get carried away by the spirit of the event to the point that the day is ruined by violence or vandalism. We hope that a high level of sportsmanship on the part of the spectators will prevail.

"In order to prevent the trouble which has occured before or after the traditional game in past years, student leaders from the two schools have met to express their concern. Police and faculty have been directed to apprehend or identify any trouble makers. In addition, members of the student bodies will be severely punished if they engage in any unsportsmanlike conduct.

"Everyone attending this game is encouraged to respond to this appeal!"

The Student Council, besides helping write the statement, sent invitations to Alumni to participate in the Thanksgiving Day breakfast. The breakfast will be held at Newton High, before the annual game at Brookline, and will last from 7:30-9:30 A.M.

Britain's Crisis

To most Americans the news that Britain had devalued the pound had only limited and vague significance.

To Prime Minister Harold Wilson it was a do-or-die step which could result in the overthrow of the government he heads because of widespread and intense public indignation.

To the average Briton it means a period of sacrifice and hardship, with wages frozen but prices rising.

This is an instance of a leading public figure taking an extremely courageous but highly unpopular step when his nation was confronted with an economic crisis which threatened bankruptcy for it.

Wilson's objective, of course, is to promote international trade for Britain, to encourage exports by offering lower prices in foreign markets and to discourage imports by making them cost more and limiting the purchasing power of his own people.

Whether his strategy will work is uncertain. The initial public reaction indicated that he may not be in office long enough to find out.

If it doesn't, once proud Britain will face financial choas, with its people suffering more than they will from the harsh medicine Prime Minister Wilson is now trying to feed them.

If it does, British products will compete to an even greater extent than at present with those made in this country.

One columnist observed that a bottle of Scotch or a tweed coat made in England will cost slightly less as a result of the devaluation of the pound.

They will, indeed. But the situation is far from that simple.

Four Years Ago

It was just four years ago on Nov. 22, 1963, that the tragic staggering news came out of Dallas that President John K. Kennedy had been assassinated.

For days the stunned people of an entire nation remained virtually in a state of shock, mourning the death of the dynamic young President whose life had been ended by an assassin's bullet.

As in the case of a family tragedy, the people of the United States pulled themselves together after the period of mourning, resumed the every day pace of life, shouldering the burdens and responsibilities they must carry.

While John F. Kennedy's life came to a close that fateful day in Dallas, his memory has not dimmed in the four years which have passed. It burns brightly and vividly.

Thanksgiving, 1967

Traditional, tasty turkey supplants hawks and doves on Thanksgiving this week as Americans pause to remember. In millions of homes throughout the land, families will gather and give thanks in a national expression of gratitude for the blessings of the passing year.

It is unfortunate that the Americans who should enjoy Thanksgiving the most, probably will enjoy it the least. We are thinking of the men who are fighting in Vietnam, manning the battlefront in the war against atheistic Communism.

They are men who are giving their time and their lives, as many have done before them, so that we at home can continue to observe a day of Thanksgiving.

There is one simple prayer that all Americans—whether hawks or doves — should invoke for our sons defending Democracy and freedom:

"The Lord bless thee, and keep thee; the Lord make His face to shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee; the Lord lift up His countenance upon thee, and give thee peace."

Another Medicaid Alarm

Mayor James R. McIntyre, of Quincy, has joined with Sen. William D. Weeks, of Cohasset, in seeking state legislation to set up new criteria for Medicaid benefits, institute proper investigation of Medicaid applications and to halt abuses of the program.

The Mayor, who is also state senator from the first Norfolk District, said "This whole thing is just getting out of hand. It's choking municipal budgets."

McIntyre noted that one of the reasons Medicaid has "gotten out of hand" is that federal statutes bar investigation of applications unless the department has "good cause" to believe information on the application is false or misrepresentative.

At least one out of every 10 families in Quincy receives Medicaid benefits. Because of it, the city is going $150,000 over its welfare budget allotment for the year for Medicaid alone.

Every municipality in the Commonwealth is facing the same problem as that which confronts Quincy. The situation will get worse before it gets better. That is why the action of Sens. Weeks and McIntyre in seeking legislation to curb abuses in the Medicaid program, merits support.

As we have said before — children in need of medical aid or dental care should get it. But the public should not be expected to pay the medical or dental bills of children whose parents can afford the cost.

We are aware that the General Court of Massachusetts already has too much legislation and too little time to act on it, but if the Commonwealth's 351 cities and towns — and the state itself — do not want to go bankrupt, something has to be done about Medicaid abuses. It must be done soon.

We urge legislators of this area to join with Sens. Weeks and McIntyre in creating a study commission to probe abuses in the Medicaid program.

Former Congressman Speaks Out . . .

"Four Presidents Saw Vietnam Of Vital U.S. Interest," Curtis

"How to extricate ourselves from the morass in Vietnam" is uppermost in people's minds. But many people are just against the war and fail to face up to the decision as to what America should actually do to get out. Should we get out on almost any terms? Should we stand fast? If concessions are necessary to reach a settlement, how much can we concede?"

These were questions discussed by former Congressman Laurence Curtis of Newton, in addressing the Newton Kiwanis Club at its meeting at Valle's Steak House in Newton last Wednesday noon. Curtis visited Vietnam on a mission of the Foreign Affairs Committee while in Congress.

Our objective, he said, as recently stated by President Johnson, is to "permit self-determination in South Vietnam"; and this means that communist North Vietnam should not be permitted to gain control of South Vietnam by force, as it seeks to do; and it means that the southward expansion of communism at that point must be contained.

The ex-Congressman remarked that the Geneva Conference of 1954 was supposed to have settled this question; that the demarcation line and the demilitarized zone (the D. M. Z.) were intended to separate the communist north from the non-communist south, and that nearly a million people who did not wish to live under communism fled from the north and took refuge in the south.

"The heart of the present conflict," said Curtis, "is that the communists want to take over South Vietnam, and we don't want them to."

"That is a conflice which is hard to compromise," Curtis declared. And he pointed out that Prof. Edwin O. Reischauer, former Ambassador to Japan, writing in Look Magazine in September said: "It is hard to envisage at this stage a negotiated settlement that is not virtually a surrender by one side or the other'."

Curtis remarked that today some people favor our withdrawal from the war on almost any terms. Others favor more massive use of power to defeat our adversary. Nearly all desire an honorable peace through negotiations. But a settlement may be impossible without concessions and, as has been seen, meaningful concessions may amount to surrender, the ex-Congressman asserted.

"It seems clear," he said, "that the question of making concessions must depend on whether our vital national interests are at stake in Vietnam and would be imperilled by our failure to attain our objectives there. In short, it is a matter of vital national interest that the communists be contained from expanding beyond the demarcation line and gaining control of South Vietnam by force?"

Curtis suggested that before discussing that question a glance at the history of other difficult confrontations might give us insight, and he told of President Lincoln's experience.

"In the fall of 1864, while the Civil War was unpopular, and while a national election was approaching, President Lincoln was urged to confer with negotiators from the South, and did so. Lincoln listened carefully, then took cut a piece of paper and wrote at the top: 'Number one: The Union must be preserved. Number two: slavery must be abolished.' He said: 'Gentlemen, you fill in the rest of it . . . you write that in there, but just leave number one and number two at the top, and I will sign it.' The negotiation failed."

Curtis remarked that some people maintain that it is not a matter of vital national interest that the communists be contained from expanding south and gaining control by force over South Vietnam.

But he pointed out that four Presidents had advised otherwise.

"The possible consequences of the loss are just incalcuable," said President Eisenhower.

President Kennedy said that "Vietnam represents the cornerstone of the free world in Southeast Asia, the Keystone to the arch, the finger in the dike."

President Johnson said in his State of the Union message last January: "We have chosen to fight a limited war in Vietnam in order to prevent a larger war . . . almost certain to follow if the Communists succeed in taking over South Vietnam by force."

And finally the Congressional Resolution, passed almost unanimously in 1964 reads: "The United States regards as vital to its national interest and to world peace the maintenance of international peace and security in Southeast Asia."

"Despite these views of four Presidents and of the Congress, confirmed by leaders of the free nations in the area of Southeast Asia, the dissent continues, and the public is confused," said Curtis.

"We, in America, believe in the right of dissent, but we deplore inflammatory words and actions, which are an abuse of that right. We have nothing but contempt for those who attacked the Pentagon and descrated the Lincoln Memorial," asserted the ex-Congressman. He continued: "General Giap, able commander in North Vietnam, has publicly stated that such actions give his people encouragement. It encourages them to hang on and hope for victory on our home front, just as in 1954 they achieved victory in Paris as much as in Vietnam. Such rabid dissent does not shorten the war. It prolongs it and causes added loss of American lives.

"When we are asking men to fight and die, we have an obligation to support them. That means also supporting the cause for which they are fighting. How would you like to lose a son or brother in Vietnam, and then hear people saying that the whole effort was a mistake."

Curtis observed that one reason for public confusion is that so many distracting questions are raised which do not really answer the fundamental issue, such as the following:

"There was no aggression from the North," say some. Our government answers, "There certainly is now."

"We intervened in a civil war," say some. Our government points out that since the Geneva Agreement of 1954 the intended "temporary" demarcation line between North and South Vietnam has hardened into a division between two de facto political entities.

"It is no more 'civil war' when North Vietnam wages war on South Vietnam than it would be if there were a war between North and South Korea, or East and West Germany.

"Some argue that Ho Chi Minh is first of all a nationalist. Our government points to his long history as an ardent communist organizer, and his tyranny over North Vietnam after he got power there in 1954, including the slaughter of thousands of "dissenters"; that the communism of Mao and Castro were doubted by some; and that many noncommunists in South Vietnam are ardent nationalists; that the late President Diem's intense devotion to nationalism was recognized by all.

"Some dissenters say that our whole policy and alleged vital interest is based on the misconception that "monolithic communism" still exists, although it does not since the breach between Russia and China. Our government answers that it is aware of that fact; and General Gavin recently said that such a fact was taken into account when plans for the Vietnamese war were being prepared. Our government also points to the danger resulting from China's sponsorship of wars of national liberation.

"No wonder the public is confused," said Curtis. "The voices of dissent are more newsworthy and spectacular than the voices of support. They get more publicity. In fact, when President Truman, President Eisenhower, General Omar Bradley and others issued a statement of support, it received very little notice in our papers.

"So, it behooves people to look at the record, and it is helpful to cut through the fog of discussion and focus on the real issue: that is, we face a decision: do we quit; do we retreat; or do we go forward to carry out our stated and limited objectives by such means as are available to us?"

Political Highlights

support as a candidate for President would be to capitalize on the public discontent and dissatisfaction with the war in Vietnam.

This inevitably would cause a deep split within the Democratic party since Democratic leaders who have criticized administration policies would find it difficult to support President Johnson against Senator McCarthy.

Reports from Washington, for example, indicate that Senator Robert F. Kennedy will back away from his earlier endorsement of President Johnson and give moral support to McCarthy if the latter formally announces his candidacy for the Presidency.

There may be some substance to the rumors because Bobby Kennedy hedged when he was asked during a televised interview whether he still intends to back President Johnson for reelection.

When related to his replies to earlier questions, the impression a listener gathered was that the brother of the late President might withdraw his support of LBJ if McCarthy challenges him for the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1968.

Robert Kennedy said, in response to queries, that he did not regard McCarthy as a serious threat who might defeat President Johnson but that he did consider his potential candidacy a serious matter "because I think he will speak the frustrations and unhappiness that exist in the country, which obviously are not all President Johnson's fault but in any case exist and which must be recognized and which exist within the Democratic party and with the Democratic party structure."

Bobby went on to express the belief that McCarthy would have "some following" if he campaigns around the country and enters some of the Presidential primaries.

Asked if he still intends to support President Johnson, Bobby replied that he perhaps would have something further to say if Senator McCarthy announces his candidacy.

"But you won't say it right now?" Bobby was asked.

"Right now I'm supporting President Johnson," he replied.

That was interpreted to mean that he is supporting President Johnson "right now" because McCarthy isn't yet running against him.

Persons close to Bobby Kennedy who, like McCarthy, has opposed administration policies in Vietnam, say that Bobby believes his position would be inconsistent and virtually indefensible if he supported President Johnson against a Democratic anti-war candidate such as Senator McCarthy.

The breach between the President and Bobby Kennedy obviously would widen if McCarthy moves into the Presidential field and Bobby gives him any kind of help.

That also poses a question as to what Senator Ted Kennedy would do in such a turn of events.

While Ted shares some of his brother's misgivings about the war in Vietnam, he has not been as outspoken in his criticism of the Johnson administration.

It seems highly improbable that Ted would directly or indirectly support McCarthy against Mr. Johnson in Massachusetts. In fact, it is much more likely that he would consider it necessary to back the President in the interest of party unity.

It's entirely conceivable that Bobby and Ted Kennedy may adopt different postures in next year's Presidential Primaries if Senator McCarthy finally decides to run against President Johnson.

In view of all the problems he would cause, McCarthy undoubtedly will be urged by party leaders to subdue his Presidential ambitions. Whether he'll listen to their arguments and reasoning is a big question.

Sears Not in Line For Governor Run

Those Republicans who are predicting that Representative John W. Sears of the Back Bay will be their party's nominee for Governor in 1970 are being unrealistic.

Sears flashed into prominence during the excellent fight he waged in Boston's preliminary mayoralty campaign. He polled a creditable vote, attracted substantial Democratic support and made a good showing.

However, the Republican candidate for Governor in 1970, assuming that Governor John A. Volpe does not seek reelection to another term, will be either Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson or Lieutenant Governor Francis W. Sargent.

The two obviously are on a political course which is headed for the 1970 Republican State Convention. Sears would not have the state - wide strength to stand up agaisnt either of them.

Most Republicans are not especially happy about the prospect of such a struggle within their party, but it appears practically inevitable.

An ironical aspect to the situation is that Richardson helped to swing the endorsement to Sargent at the 1966 Republican State Convention when Sargent was involved in a hard fight with Representative Francis W. Hatch.

It's unlikely that there'll be any place for Sears on the Republican State ticket in 1970 unless he stands for one of the offices usually won by Democrats.

Delegates Not in Step With House Members

When the Republican national convention back in 1948 adopted a platform advocating the enactment of a great deal of progressive legislation, the then President Harry Truman called the 80th Congress back into session and submitted to it a number of the proposals the GOP conclave had endorsed.

That was a Republican-controlled conservative Congress. The Speaker of the national House was Joe Martin, then at the peak of his power on Capitol Hill.

It turned out, as Truman undoubtedly knew in advance it would, that a big majority of the GOP Congressmen were not sympathetic to the liberal planks contained in the party platform.

The likelihood is that a majority of the convention delegates were just as unenthusiastic about the platform but assumed that it was something to be adopted and forgotten.

In that particular instance Harry Truman, a staunch Democrat if ever there was one, was not disposed to allow the Republican platform to be buried without a wake and proper services.

Virtually every measure supported by the Republican convention was scuttled by the Republican Congress. This did not surprise Mr. Truman, but it did give him something to talk about in the dogged, uphill Presidential campaign he waged and in which he achieved an upset victory.

Memories of those historic happenings flooded back when Bay State Republicans held an off-year convention and approved a platform calling for a variety of reforms and numerous social welfare advances.

It is interesting to speculate on what would happen if a Democrat were serving as Governor and tested out the Republican legislators by sponsoring some of the planks contained in the platform adopted at the convention in Worcester.

The guessing here is that a majority of the Republican members of the House of Representatives would line up against a number of the convention proposals.

Except for a handful of lawmakers, for example, most of the GOP House members are opposed to a reduction in the size of the body in which they serve. Like their Democratic colleagues, they believe in the law of political self-preservation.

They also point out that there is no assurance whatever that cutting the size of the House from 240 to 180 members would result in better government or accomplish anything except to save the salaries and expenses of 60 legislators.

Some observers also felt that a proposal backed by State Senator John Quinlan of Dover, which would limit legislative sessions to not more than eight months, sounds good in theory but might not work well in actual practice.

With the Democrats in control of both branches of the Legislature, they could bury Republican bills in committees and allow them to die there at the end of eight months.

In urging expensive programs the delegates called for the enactment of new taxes to pay the bills but did not get down to specifics as to just what the new taxes should be.

Romney Lost Fight Before He Started It

Michigan's Governor George Romney waited until he was just about out of the Presidential race to announce himself a candidate for the Presidency.

This may well prove to be a case where Romney lost his fight before he officially started it.

Earlier in the year, Romney loomed as a strong contender for the Republican Presidential nomination, possibly the most powerful in the GOP picture.

He was extremely popular, and his political stock was booming.

Then he began to talk himself into trouble. His popularity waned. His stock dropped.

When he finally declared himself a candidate, his chances of gaining his party's Presidential nomination seemed extremely remote.

He is now rated behind a somewhat shopworn Richard Nixon and a Nelson Rockefeller who insists he isn't running and will not run but who, nevertheless, may wind up with the nomination.

Mike Ward's Death Recalls Many Stories

Michael J. Ward died recently in Florida, and his death marked the passing of another famous figure of the era which ended when the late James M. Curley finally bowed out of politics.

Mike Ward is remembered for many things. He served in the Boston City Council, the Boston School Committee and the House of Representatives.

He got his political schooling from a master of the trade —the fabled James M. Curley. Mike was Curley's secretary when the latter was Mayor of Boston.

Mike developed an ability to mimic Curley's voice to the point where a person on the other end of a telephone line was completely fooled.

This enabled the roguish Ward to get quite a few jobs for his constituents when he was holding office himself. He would call a city department head and in a silver-toned voice tell him: "This is the Mayor. I am sending So-and-So over to you. I want you to put him to work right away."

Or he would telephone the master at Deer Island and give him a list of addresses where he wanted turkeys from the prison poultry farm delivered for Thanksgiving or Christmas. Invariably, the addresses were those of poor families without the means to buy a holiday dinner.

Rumor had it that Mike Ward at the height of his political power had an army of mattress and "ghost" voters who would march into battle behind him on election day.

Mike always piously denied any knowledge of such an operation. He wouldn't even know how to do it, he claimed.

Then something happened which caused political onlookers to sit up in startled attention.

Franklin D. Roosevelt and Al Smith were opponents in the 1932 Presidential Primary in Massachusetts.

James M. Curley was on the Roosevelt slate and spearheaded the drive for FDR in Boston. Mike Ward's support went with Curley's—to Roosevelt.

But Smith won overwhelmingly. The Roosevelt slate was crushed. Curley was unable to deliver Boston to Roosevelt.

When the smoke cleared after that historic battle, Smith had bested Roosevelt in 21 of Boston's 22 wards.

The only part of Boston Roosevelt was able to carry was the Ward 9 section of Roxbury where Mike Ward supposedly had his mattress voters.

That was the year Curley went to the Democratic national convention as a delegate from Puerto Rico.

It was also the year observers learned something about Mike Ward's political muscle.

Henry Norr Elected To Phi Betta Kappa

Henry R. Norr, 143 Hobart Road, Newton Center, a Harvard senior, has been elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic fraternity.

Chosen as one of the "Senior Sixteen," Norr is the third generation of his family to win election to the society.

Norr is a graduate of Phillips Exeter Academy, where he won the Faculty Prize for Academic Excellence. He holds honorary Harvard National and National Merit Scholarships.

Norr is Chairman of the Harvard Policy Committee, official University group elected to represent the students in discussions with the faculty on educational matters. in places like West Germany and Okinawa, military cooks will strive their best to emulate standard Thanksgiving menus. For fighting men in Vietnam, too much can't be expected from the culinary experts.

You can't serve roast turkey very well in muddy jungles and rice paddies. Even if you could, it would be impossible to capture the aroma a typical American home kitchen on the fourth Thursday of November, and it wouldn't be like Thanksgiving back home.

It may be weeks, too, before young airmen, marines and infantrymen will hear the results of the day's game between English and Latin at Harvard Stadium or some other traditional high school football combat in which they would be more interested.

But during the day those boys away from home will find themselves thinking about those games and about home; about the golden glory of the turkey Mom carries into the dining room and about the happy family gatherings that bring a feeling of contentment when someone says — "Here we are all together again."

In homes all over this area and in homes throughout America there'll be many empty places at dinner tables on Thanksgiving, 1967 - just as there were through two World Wars and during a war in a place called Korea.

Yet, even as a little band of men and women close by Plymouth Rock gave thanks to God for survival, nearly 350 years ago, Americans everywhere will look to Him again in 1967 - in gratitude and in trust.

At 4:53 p.m. in a quiet office in Washington the other day - seven minutes before quitting time - a proclamation prosaically numbered 3819 came in from the President's office. It was duly stamped and sent for filing in the Office of the Federal Register.

The Proclamation was a sort of routine thing. It merely announced in accordance with the law that Thursday, November 23, 1967, would be observed in every part of the United States as Thanksgiving Day.

In spirit and concept Presidential Proclamation No. 3819 wasn't much different than the proclamation penned with a feather quill by a young governor named Winthrop back in 1621. It was quite the same as that to which a harried Lincoln affixed his signature back in 1863.

In 1621 the little group of men and women who sat down at festive, bounty-laden tables knew a world that was small, bounded by dangers known and unknown. The winter before they had reverently buried nearly half their number - victims of a seemingly harsh, implacable land. Now they wanted to thank God for the blessings He had bestowed on them during a long summer of labor and devotion.

In 1863, Abraham Lincoln, beset by a bloody strife which had set brother against brother, was nearly two years away from peace in a war to which no one could foresee an end. He listened to the persistent voice of the editor of a tightly circulated women's journal to follow the example of the 33-year-old Winthrop and give thanks to God for his blessings.

In 1967, Lyndon Johnson, head of the most prosperous nation ever built on this planet, joined Winthrop and Lincoln in affixing their names to proclamations which only underscore the wishes of a God-fearing people. Lincoln still awaited the decision of many battles yet to precede Appotomax and peace when he listened and agreed with Editor Sarah Hale.

Ahead of Johnson is the final solution of the most inexplicable war in which this nation has ever engaged. Like Lincoln and Winthrop before him, he finds himself unable to divine the future.

Thanksgiving Day is in many ways the most unique and one of the most eagerly anticipated of all American holidays.

Historians tell us that John Winthrop was not its originator. They say that, dating back long before man kept written records or built traditions, peoples of all cultures in many parts of the world observed days of gratitude to God or to deities they beleived controlled their destinies. The historians are wrong.

Thanksgiving Day, as we know it, is as American as Plymouth Rock.

Somewhere, no doubt, some individuals and some groups will find a way to draw attention to themselves and causes they espouse on this Thanksgiving, 1967. There were no pickets at John Winthrop's Thanksgiving. The Indians sat at the tables, and they seemed to understand the meaning of the prayers.

They spoke to Him, too.

That first Thanksgiving offered some lessons for the nation for which those Pilgrims planted the seeds - and for a world too often prone to forget its Creator.

Thanksgiving, 1967, will be celebrated in this community with much the same spirit and feeling those founding Pilgrim fathers knew.

It will be a day of family get - togethers and reunions, a day of good food and good talk, a day of savoring the aromas which waft out from the kitchen where the plump turkey is baking.

Many college students away since September will be home to renew old friendships

Football fans will sharpen their appetites for the Thanksgiving turkey by attending one of the traditional holiday morning games.

A large number of persons will visit their churches to kneel quietly in prayers of thanks for all that is theirs in a land of plenty.

In too many homes there will be an empty place at the dinner table and a note of sadness and loneliness, and mothers will brush away a tear as their thoughts go out to sons serving this Thanksgiving Day in far- away Vietnam torn by a strange war or at one of our other military outposts.

Of all the holidays - nationwide, state or local - Thanksgiving stands as a unique day set aside for observance of a spirit of dependence by man on a Being far greater than himself.

That's the way it will be in this community.

bassador. She was graduated from Newton South High School last June where she was winner of the Senior Cup.

An AFS spokesman in France noted that Shelly already "happily adjusted to life with her foster family in the town of La Bouilladisse, 16 miles northwest of Marseilles where she has acquired three 'infant' sisters, parents and two pet dogs."

Shelly attends school six days a week from 8:30 to 5 except on Thursdays when she is dismissed at noon. The school is an hour and a half bus ride from her French home.

Before school opened Shelly had an opportunity to tour the old fortress towns of Southern France with their abundant parks, gardens and cafes.

She says her Newton acquired French is standing her in good stead in meeting the language barrier.

After an initial period of orientation and language adjustment Shelly will handle frequent invitations to describe and show slides of her life and home and school in Newton.

She also will answer questions from curious French adults and students about Americans, their opinion and their government.

During this time abroad it is expected Shelly will develop appreciation of French customs and thinking and form many individual friendships.

Upon return to Newton she will convey her understanding of the French to the people of her own community and school.

Next year Shelly plans to attend the University of Chicago.

Lee Loumos Says:

Last Wednesday's "sneak" snowstorm should not quietly pass into history. The communities of greater Boston were very lucky that there were no fires or medical emergencies of any consequence. Obviously, this will not always be the case, and we cannot afford to be unprepared again. In case of future forecasting deficiency it is necessary that some emergency system of alerting the area be made ready. May I suggest that Civil Defense sirens could sound a special signal which would instruct all motorists to get off the roads as quickly as possible and all others not on emergency business to refrain from using their cars. This would be especially important during peak commuting hours, and would allow fire engines to go about their work relatively unhindered.

Girl Scouts Join Garden Clubs In City Plantings

In cooperation with the Newton Garden Clubs, the Girl Scouts of Bay Path Colonial Council have been assisting in the renovation of plantings along Commonwealth Avenue in Newton from Weston to Brighton.

These areas were created as a memorial in honor of the armed forces, past and present, and contributed to the city in the name of the Newton Tribute Foundation, Inc., after World War II.

Last weekend Troop 568 of Newtonville, Mrs. Kurt Hansen, leader, weeded the plot at the intersection of Walnut and Commonwealth. Girls participating were: Debbie Orzack, Beverly Benn, Vicky Billings, Linda Carmel, Claudia Chernov, Eileen Fitzpatrick, Joan Getty, Barbara Goldsmith, Patty Halloran, Mary Ann Howkins, and Marie Manning.

Cross-Country Title Retained By Bay State

By Lewis Freedman

The Harriers of Brockton High School, successfully defended their New England Cross-Country title in Waterville, Maine, Saturday, November 11, sweeping to the Class A championship and the New England championship two years running.

Brockton tallied a low score of 125 points, best by 97 points over Newington, New Hampshire, in the eighteen team race, plus the top individual finishers not on an entered team, from each of the six states. Brockton copped places 18, 23, 25, 28, and 31 for their winning total.

The other two Massachusetts entrants finished third and fourth. Sharon High with 226 points and Boston College High School with 246 points, followed Brockton in giving Massachusetts the best team representation among the six states.

The top Massachusetts finisher in the 136 man race was Jim Finlay, Swampscott High, who although his team did not qualify, qualified on his own in placing first in the Massachusetts State Championships. Finlay captured third place in New England. The third place finish ended his streak of ten consecutive victories, including regular season dual meets, his league meet, and the Class B championship, as well as the Massachusetts State Championship.

Dr. Friedman On Research Team In Surgical Field

Drs. Edward W. Friedman of Newton, Howard A. Frank and Peter Lambert are a three-man team from Beth Israel conducting research on a new method for increasing blood flow to organs and tissues. They are co-authors of a paper based on their findings entitled "The Establishment of a New Blood Supply to Ischemic Tissues by the Implantation of an Arterial-Venous Pedicle."

The significance of the research lies in the fact that Dr. Friedman and his associates have expanded the principle of arterial implantation to include a vein and vascular plexus as well, in research with animals. Several investigators have successfully performed arterial implantation of the myocardium or muscular tissue of the heart but little success has been reported when arterial implantation was undertaken in non-cardiac tissue.

By expanding the implantation technique to consist of a stalklike structure or pedicle composed of an artery, vein and pre-formed vessel network, the three-man Beth Israel team met with considerable success in re-vascularizing non-cardiac tissues which had suffered dimunition in blood.

The doctors concluded that implantation of arterial-venous pedicles indicates "such pedicles can remain patent, connect with the vascular bed of the recipient tissue and provide significant blood flow to ischemic tissues."

"Because the experiment presented a few techincal problems, considerable more research has to be done before considering use of pedicle transplant surgery on patients," the doctors stated.

Dr. Friedman, surgeon at Beth Israel Hospital, recently returned from the Conference of the International Surgical Society in Vienna, where he delivered the paper he co-authored. A resident of Newton, Dr. Friedman has been at Beth Israel for 19 years.

Dr. Frank, a native of Boston, has been associated with the Hospital for 28 years. He is Associate Clinical Professor of Surgery at Harvard Medical School. His colleague Dr. Lambert, lives in Brookline. He is a Research Associate in Surgery at Beth Israel Hospital.

Newton Hosts Several Of Community Lecture Series

Several of the Community Lecture Series, a cooperative program sponsored by Newton and Roxbury organizations for the purpose of presenting the true history and current status of black Americans are scheduled for the Newton area.

Cecil Moore, Philadelphia attorney and fiery activist of the often soft-pedaled National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, will head the roster this year of the Community Lecture Series on "Black Americans and the Contemporary Scene."

Moore, who was recently involved in a court injunction against the national NAACP, which attempted to split his powerful North Philadelphia Branch of 12,000 members, will speak in Roxbury on Wednesday, November 29, at 8 p.m. at the Patrick T. Campbell Junior High School, 77 Lawrence avenue. His subject will be "Black Rebellions: A Challenge to Traditional Leadership."

Moore, a candidate for mayor of Philadelphia, in this year's contest, was suspended from the national NAACP Convention held in Boston in July after a busload of his supporters staged a spirited demonstration in front of the Sheraton Boston Hotel where the convention was taking place.

Bill Russell, coach of the Boston Celtics, will be interviewed by Wyatt Tee Walker, former aide to Martin Luther King, Jr., and president of Educational Heritage, Inc., on December 13 at Lewis Junior High School, 131 Walnut avenue, Roxbury.

LeRoie Jones, noted black author and playwright will speak on "The Black Writer in Contemporary America" on January 17, 1968 at the Patrick T. Campbell Junior High School.

On February 21 the Lecture Series will present "An Evening with Elma Lewis" at Temple Shalom, 175 Temple street, West Newton. Miss Lewis, Director of the Elma Lewis School of Fine Arts in Roxbury, will be interviewed by Terry Carter of WBZ-TV.

In April, Noel Day, Preston Wilcox and Bruce Wright will join in a panel presentation on "New Priorities for Black Americans." Noel Day is a partner of the Organization for Social and Technical Innovation (OSTI). Preston Wilcox is Staff Associate of the Educational Affiliate of the Bedford-Stuyvesant D&S Corporation; and Bruce Wright is a lawyer of the Howard and Wright Firm. The program will be presented on April 17 at Patrick T. Campbell Junior High School.

The series will wind up with a visit to the American Museum of Negro History and a tour of the Black Freedom Trail led by J. Marcus Mitchell, curator of the Museum, on Sunday, May 19, at the Charles Street Meeting House, 70 Charles street, Boston.

An important facet of the Series is an informal reception and social hour which will be held after each program. This will give the audience an opportunity to meet and talk with the speaker(s) and each other.

Representing many religions, countries and disciplines, the delegates are seeking some answers to the new challenges brought about by new feminine freedoms.

They will explore, among other topics, the impact of contraceptive culture, female sexuality, and the anatomy of a good marriage and of a good mother-child relationship.

Each topic is introduced and investigated by a team of men and women — in some cases, a husband and wife team — in order to reinforce the additional dimension brought to a profession by male-female communication.

The conference is attended by both men and women to underline the joint responsibility both sexes share in the changes wrought by a contraceptive culture.

Same All Over

VIENNA (UPI) — A problem that exists in the United States and a number of other countries — a shortage of "country doctors" — also plagues the Czechoslovakian medical profession, according to the Czech newspaper Praca.

The newspaper said young Czech doctors these days "would rather go to remotest Africa than work in small villages and towns." They all want to work in the cities, the newspaper stated.

Praca said the fault was young men entering the medical profession "look at the job of doctor as a business, not a vocation."

Newton 25% Off United Fund Goal

Newton community chairmen William and Beverly Carmen report that in the Mass. Bay United Fund drive here only 75 percent of the community goal has been reached. Another $38,907 still remains to be taken in pledges and cash if Newton is to match manay of the other Massachusetts communities who have contributed a full 100 percent of their quotas. The drive has attained its goal for the state as a whole.

The Newton United Fund workers fully expect to receive the total value from individuals who gave to last year's drive but who have not had the opportunity to give this year. Companies, organizations and individuals who wish to give can call headquarters at 969-9290 for a pick-up or mail in their gifts directly to 12 Page road, Newtonville.

"Think twice — you give only once."

60-Cent MBTA Fare Seen For Local Riders

It will cost Newton commuters 60 cents to ride from Riverside station into downtown Boston if the fare increase recommended by MBTA General Manager Leo J. Cusick is approved by the MBTA Advisory Board composed of officials of the cities and towns served by the transit system. The ride now costs 40 cents. Cusick is proposing that the fare for each surface zone be doubled. There are two 10-cent surface zones on the Riverside run.

Roxbury Housing Problems Theme Of Convocation Here

The housing problems in Roxbury will be discussed at the Newton Junior College All-College Convocation to be held at 11:15 a.m., Tuesday, November 28, at the Newton High School Auditorium, when Mrs. Conger will speak on "Desegregating Roxbury."

Mrs. Conger, a resident of Roxbury, graduated from Smith College with high honors, a member of Phi Beta Kappa. She is currently a Ph. D. candidate in Mathematics at M.I.T. and she is teaching at Simmons College.

Mrs. Conger, together with her husband, Dr. S. Beach Conger, an Intern at Boston City Hospital, spent the summer of 1965 in Mississippi, where she taught at Tongaloo, a Negro College, while Dr. Conger worked in Homes County with the Medical Committee for Human Rights. They spent another month there in the summer of 1966.

Two years ago, in response to a plea from the Boston Housing Authority, they moved into a Negro Housing Project in Roxbury, where they lived until three months ago. They are currently living in a predominantly Negro neighborhood near the Grove Hall section of Roxbury.

Dr. Conger has been working for 2 years as one of the Incorporators of the Roxbury Health Services Committee, which was awarded in June a $1.5 million grant for the construction of a Comprehensive Health Center.

Mrs. Conger is a member of the Board of Directors of Action for Boston Community Development (ABCD) as an elected representative of her area. She has also been elected Secretary of the Roxbury Area Planning Action Council, serves on the Local Poverty Board, and with her husband, is a member of several other Roxbury groups.

This program is free of charge and open to the public.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The best way to use an aerosol is to follow the directions on the label.

Some aerosols need a good shaking before depressing the valve, and others do not. Some are held upright, others not. All depend on the product, so follow directions, advises the aerosol industry.

Newton -

sive attack with its inexperienced team. The Tigers have scored only 54 points in their eight games while Brookline almost equalled that total in whipping Watertown, 49-0.

But the Newton defense has been another matter. After surrendering 48 points to Everett and Weymouth, two class "A" powerhouses, the first two games of the season, the first-string Tiger defensive unit has allowed only 18 points since. Included in those six games were shutouts of Arlington and New Bedford, and single touchdowns yielded to strong Medford and Waltham.

Comparing the teams against common opponents, Brookline has a wide statistical edge offensively; 111 total points to Newton's 49. But the Wealthy Towners have allowed 68 points while Newton has given up only 45.

If Brookline's offense clicks, the game could be similar to last year's contest when Newton swamped the visitors, 40-14. In that game, quarterback Dick Dezotell tosses five touchdown passes to overshadow Dick Heavey's brilliant running for Brookline.

However, if Robbie Cohen, Bill Thurston, and company can contain Brookline's offense as they did against Waltham last week it could just as easily turn into a Newton upset.

Coach Ed Schluntz will have Moloney at quarterback, Swartz and Barry Chiller at the halfbacks, and Patnaude at fullback. The 6-1 Moloney has fired 13 TD passes and has completed well over 50 per cent of his aerials. Swartz and Patnaude, a quick 165-pounder, are the team's leading scorers along with end Mike Forbes.

The Brookline ends are Forbes and Bob Brodney, the tacklers are Jerry LoPorto and Captain Dave Brodney, Bob's twin brother, the guards are Bob Maloney and Ken Travis, and centering is Vin Connor.

Schluntz reports a solid defense with no individual standouts. "But," he noted, "we'll be relying on the offense once again."

Newton will have senior Reggie Benn, the squad's scoring leader with four touchdowns, at quarterback. Running from the halfback slots are Ron Arcese and Bill Gardner, and the fullback is Cohen, the co-captain. The Tigers should stay on the ground again with Cohen and Gardner doing most of the ball carrying. Robbie scored all eight of Newton's points against New Bedford with a touchdown and a safety.

Thurston, the other co-captain, and John Quigley are the Tiger ends. Quigley also does the place-kicking. Bill Andersen and Mike Mannis are the tackles, Joe Picariello and Bob Snyder are the guards, and Mark Hoffman is the center.

The defensive secondary, probably the strongest aspect of the Newton game, is made up of Benn, Thurston, Arcese, and Pete Manson. The quick, rangy quartet will be called on to stop Moloney's air attack.

No two teams could be so drastically different as Newton and Brookline. It'll be Newton's strength against Brookline's strength Thursday which should make the contest, once again, a tight one.

Cabbages and other vegetables grown in Alaska's Matanuska Valley are said to be the world's largest.

Wins National Insurance Fame

Newton life insurance specialist Thomas Sotir, 857 Watertown street, has won sales honors, Mutual of New York reported today.

Mr. Sotir ranks in the top one per cent in sales results among the company's 4,000-man national field force, according to the latest year-to-date tabulation.

This achievement has qualified him for membership in the 1967 President's Council, the company's highest sales honor group. Mr. Sotir is associated with MONY's Boston Meehan agency.

Resist The Devil Is Sunday Theme

"Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you."

This verse from James is the Golden Text of this week's Bible Lesson on "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alias Mesmerism Hypnotism, Denounced," to be read in all Christian Science churches on Sunday.

and Melrose, and losses to Leominster and Rindge Tech.

Oliver Ames, 5-3, although a Class D team, has shown flashes of power this season in thrice scoring over 20 points, including a 34-8 thumping of King Philip High School. With a little bit of luck, their record could have been 7-1. They are really "up" for the Class B Lions.

The Amesmen's most potent weapon is all-purpose quarterback Wayne Casey, who is an amazing triple threat man. He has scored 62 points this season, including eight touchdown's rushing. He also passed for four more. He runs the 50 in 5.5, and owns a 38-yard punting average.

John Miller, Greg Chapman, and Bernie Mallroy are also dangerous in the backfield.

On defense, Oliver Ames is rather small, but they make up for it with speed and agility. Their play-reading is exceptional, and their big lineman, 6-4, 225 pound tackle John Preble is a tough man to move.

Newton South will counter with a well balanced attack with quarterback Tommy Rezzuti leading the way. Behind Rezzuti are George Tsiumus, Nick Parnell and Dan Mendelson, to lead the crunching South ground game. Capt. Lou DiFazio is the most dangerous Lion receiver.

The Lions have not had to depend on one man this season as each of the five players named above have consistently tallied when necessary. Tsiumus leads with 32 points. He is followed by DiFazio (26), Parnell (24), Mendelson (24), and Rezzuti (21).

The South defense has been superb this season as the Lions have given up as much as twenty points in a game only once this year. (Vs. Class A Boston Tech.) Even in the two games they lost, South allowed only fourteen and twelve points, respectively.

Oliver Ames is a formidable opponent, but Newton South's explosive offense should be the deciding factor.

Look Alikes?

NEW YORK (UPI)—Should window shades throughout the house look the same from the outside?

"Yes and no", says Mary Davis Gillies, author of "The Elegant World of Window Shades." The total appearance of the house is the determining factor. In contemporary homes with windows of assorted sizes, the shades need not match. If the house is traditional and has orderly window placement, shades should be of the two-faced type, with color or pattern on the room side only, and a uniform look from the street.

Gift -

Yuletide bundle to each of the Newton GI's in Vietnam whose names are submitted to the Graphic.

That, of course, will cause some boasting in the barracks as the boys from Newton show their buddies that they are sent a special gift by the Mayor of their city, the head man back home, no less.

This is the second Christmas in a row that the warmhearted Mayor Basbas has dug down into his own pocket and paid for special gift packages for the Newton servicemen in Vietnam.

We had hoped that the boys from Newton would get as many gifts as do those from some of the smaller towns where all the residents join together to shower the servicemen from their communities with things they can't get in Vietnam.

There's still time for women's clubs and PTA organizations to mail gifts to the war-torn country on the other side of the world.

If you are not able to send packages to all the servicemen whose names are published in the Graphic, would you please call or write this newspaper and obtain whatever number of names you wish from the editor so there will be a proper rotation.

Teachers of school classes also are urged to have their pupils join in sending a class greeting to the servicemen whose names and mailing addresses are printed in this issue of the Graphic. They are as follows:

He said the people of the city had made the choice and that it was important to bring board membership up to capacity since petitions often require 16 to 18 votes for passage.

Cohen's wife, mother and brother-in-law were present for the swearing-in ceremonies.

The other newly elected aldermen and school committee members will be seated on Jan. 1.

Housing -

rection would be under the Leasing Program. This is a program under the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development."

The program, according to the report, can be effected in several ways:

"(1) A lease between the local housing authority and the owner with a sub-lease to the tenant. The Authority making up the difference between the rental of the property and what the tenant can pay.

(2) A contract between the local housing authority and the owner, guaranteeing payment of certain rental for certain dwellings, the actual lease being between the tenant and the owner.

The advantages of this program are, according to the report:

"1. The Authority can relocate low income families and individuals, in decent housing while the community proceeds with construction of permanent low income housing.

"2. The upgrading of privately owned and deteriorating residential properties by rent incentives to the owners and long term leases.

"3. Another advantage is that these low-income families have the opportunity to live in private homes, and it keeps them out of projects which are generally unsatisfactory sociologically.

"4. Another advantage is that if the low income family is being subsidized in a private home, as their income increases, they can pay the total rent in the same dwelling becoming regular tenants and an integral part of the community.

"5. Likewise, and of great importance, this program continues the property on the local real estate tax rolls at the regular tax rate."

Another program discussed by the sub-committee is housing built under 221D3. This housing is built by private developers, and charitable groups. However, the Housing Authority can rent a number of units on a lease basis in these structures.

The report said that "although your committee was not charged with investigating the question of the need for moderate income housing, it is apparent from our investigation that there is a great need in the city and can be covered under 221D3 Projects."

The committee felt that this type of housing would provide for the intermingling of low income and moderate income families in one project.

The committee was emphatic about the point that "under no circumstances would the committee recommend that any large project be feasible for the City of Newton.

Members felt that "this city should not create ghettos for low income residents." Chairman Uehlein stressed further that ghettos for any group should be avoided.

Finance Committee Chairman John P. Nixon opposed the 221R3 type of housing for subsidizing low income rentals, expressing fear that the city might not have the proper control over where and how it was built.

Chairman Uehlein pointed out that the aldermen would have to approve all projects as they do now with housing for the elderly construction.

Committee members who worked on the report were Edward C. Uehlein, chairman; Paul J. Burke, Adelaide B. Ball, Louis I. Egelson, William E. Hopkins, George L. Kicks, Ernest F. Dietz, Alan S. Barkin.

Emerson Rug Co. To Hold Barwick Days Sale

The lights have been burning late all this week at Emerson Rug's warehouse in Dedham. A steady stream of trailer trucks, arriving three and four at a time, has kept Emerson's crew busy day and night.

Their contents: huge loads of broadloom from E. T. Barwick Mills in Chamblee, Georgia.

They've brought their luxurious cargoes 1,100 miles for the big Barwick Days sale that will be held at Emerson's warehouse Friday and Saturday.

There will be more broadloom on sale during those two days than most stores sell all year.

And the gigantic purchase will mean huge savings for all who come.

3 Months in the Making

"Negotiations with Barwick began about three months ago", says John J. Reilly, president of Emerson Rug.

"We were talking such large quantities, that there was no precedent for it pricewise. Barwick eventually threw out their regular wholesale prices, and came up with some astonishing low costs."

Adds Dan Reilly, executive vice-president, "Our next problem was, where to hold it. We knew our stores weren't big enough, so we decided to have it at our warehouse. Even then we had to use every foot of space available to display the complete selection."

Fills Warehouse

Emerson's warehouse is located in the U.S. Rubber Building on Route 128 in Dedham, and is 30,000 square feet in size.

As the preparations neared completion, one could see row after row of roomsize rugs, standing on end and lining the walls like huge colorful columns. Large rolls of broadloom, arrayed by the hundreds, cover the immense floor.

Everywhere you look, there are colors, textures, patterns in amazing and fascinating varieties.

Doors Open 9 A.M.

The sale will be held from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. this Friday and Saturday. Emerson's entire sales force will be on hand to assure courteous service for all who come.

Christmas Delivery

With so many families in need of carpeting for the holidays, Emerson will guarantee delivery and installation in time for Christmas on any carpet in the selection. The guarantee is possible, only because they have such a vast assortment in stock.

Newt. Symphony Rehearses For 1st Performance

Newton Symphony Orchestra has been rehearsing for its opening program schedule for Dec. 10 at 8 p.m. at the Meadowbrook Junior High School. Soloist Leslie Parnas will join the orchestra for a performance of F. J. Haydn's Concerto in D for cello.

When the orchestra resumed rehearsals early this fall its number had grown to 93 members. This enormous growth is most unusual for a non-professional symphony orchestra. While other local orchestras have had to struggle in order to maintain balanced groups, the Newton Symphony Orchestra has developed into a unified, dynamic and intensely spirited orchestra.

This phenomenon has been effected by a highly competent young conductor, Michel Sasson. Mr. Sasson, a violinist with the Boston Syphony Orchestra, has guided these eager, capable musicians and developed the potential of each section. All of this has been accomplished in less than a year's time.

Both Roger Voisin and Harry Shapiro, members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, have taken a special interest in the Newton Symphony Orchestra. As a result, they have devoted time to coaching the individual sections. The additional understanding that comes from such exacting sessions has contributed toward greater technical control and supurb articulation by the players.

All concerts will be held at the Meadowbrook Junior High School at 8 p.m.

Anyone interested in the orchestra can obtain information by calling Mrs. Bennett at 969-4573.

Time To Sign Up For Hoop League Of Recreation Dept.

The Newton Recreation Department announced today that teams interested in their basketball program for the 1968 season must register and submit team rosters not later than Friday, December 15, 1967. Roster forms may be obtained at the Newton Recreation Office, City Hall, Newton Centre, Mondays through Fridays, from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

The purpose of the league is to provide recreation and foster good sportsmanship for young men of Newton. The league will be formed into three divisions: Pony Division for boys under 15 years of age, as of April 1, 1968. National Division for High School boys.

If a boy is a registered student in High School he is eligible in this division. Any others who wish to compete in this division cannot have reached their 19th birthday prior to April 1st, 1968.

A registration fee of $10.00 must accompany team roster sheet when submitted on December 15th, 1967. Each team may have twelve (12) players on its squad, all must be legal residents of Newton, and each team in the National Division must have an adult manager who has reached his 25th birthday. All teams in National Division must be uniformed and show evidence of same at time of registration.

League play will start the week of January 8th, 1968 and will continue through March. It is hoped that all games will be played at Levi Warren Junior High School, Washington street, West Newton.

Teams will not be allowed to include on their roster sheets the names of those who are members of High School varsity squads, (public - private - parochial - or technical) or Junior College, Varsity Freshman, or College Varsity teams.

From Kids To Adults, It's Fun For All At Community Center

Programs for all ages at the Center are underway. Registrations are a continuous process with persons accepted where openings exist.

Nursery school under the direction of Mrs. Audrey Stearns continues to meet Monday-Friday in the facilities of the First Unitarian Society in West Newton.

Other faculty members include Mrs. Helen Evans, Mrs. Jacquelyn McPhee, and Miss Helen Taplin. Students from Perry Normal School have been assignned the school as field work placements. In addition, a work experience program has been coordinated through Warren Jr. High School.

Activities for boys under the direction of James Callahan, have been scheduled for Tuesday, Thursday and Saturdays. Manly Arts, modeling and boys' clubs under Mr. Callahan, assisted by Mr. Robert Berlin and staff members, have all been popular activities.

Woodworking under Robert Calcagni is held each Monday and Friday afternoon. Boys' activities have generally been based at the Center this year due to the renovations being made at the West Newton Armory this year.

The Center welcomed Mrs. Karen Wright to its staff this year to coordinate girls' activities. Due to the crowded space at the Center, many girls' activities, such as cooking, sewing, and club groups have been held at the Second Congregational Church of West Newton.

Several art classes are being offered. The pre-school classes through grade six are under the direction of Linda Janower. The groups will emphasize originality of expression and experimentation with new forms of art media. The course is designed to nurture the creativity all children possess.

The Community Center dance school under the direction of Miss Katherine Dickson on Monday and Tuesday afternoon offers graded ballet classes progressing from preschool through advanced.

Baton twirling and drum majoring is offered young people under the direction of Mrs. Marjorie Gilbert.

The adult program varied with activity added throughout the year. The season started with courses in golf and weekly meetings of senior citizens and mother's club groups. The senior citizen program began October 9. In addition, the Community Center plays host to many individual groups that use its facilities such as young Republicans, young Democrats, and the Diet Workshop.

Mr. Dan Meany, Jr., golf instructor at Wright Brothers' driving range in Holbrook, is instructor at the Center golf school. Meany is a former club champion at Furnace Brook Golf Club and shares the course record at the Quincy layout with a 66. He has won additional honors and tournaments at courses in Brookline, Newton, Cape Cod and throughout New England.

The Community Center course will consist of seven lessons and covers grip, stance, the four parts of a correct swing and use of different clubs.

Registrations are open for January with classes limited to 10 persons. For further information call 244-2260.

Amies Is Hardy Leader Of Style

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—Hardy Amies, who might be called debonair, dashing or even dapper, has set out to transform the middle class American male into a reasonable facsimile of the suave international type who looks as if he might have just stepped off a plane from Europe.

Amies, 58, won world fame as a designer of women's clothes before he turned his considerable talents a few years ago to men's wear for Hepworths, an enormous British chain which started out by paying him $50,000 a year for ideas. They ended up as partners.

Then GENESCO entered his life. GENESCO owns practically everything connected with clothing — dress houses, shoe companies, clothing factories, chains of men's wear stores such as Roger Kent in the East and Roos/Atkins in the West, which will market the Amies line. At $100 and up.

A year ago Amies signed a five year, $125,000 a year contract with GENESCO and this year he incubated the egg — what is described as a casually elegant "Hardy Amies, U. S. A." look. The look encompasses everything between the tip of the shoes and the crown of the hat. The look is cool.

The look is most noticeable in the cut of the jacket. The coat is about an inch longer than the average American coat, the waist is slightly suppressed and the jacket flares from rather low-set buttons, the bottom one placed at the natural waistline. The vents are deep and cut for a substantial overlap. The effect is slimming.

The slim effect is emphasized by the trousers which are cut straight from knee to ankle and with no cuffs. The bottoms of the trousers are angled, with the back about three-quarters of an inch longer than the front to show more shoe and to suggest a slight flare.

"If the jacket flares from higher placed buttons," Amies said in what might be called a crisp British accent, "the effect is rather like that of a maternity jacket." He mentioned no names but a famous Paris designer does place the buttons higher on the chest.

The Amies look is total and color coordination is an important feature with the hat, shirt, tie, cuff links, socks, shoes, coats and jackets blended for the proper effect. Or if not blended, they are matched or contrasted with some care. "A mistake is good if it's a good mistake," Amies said.

Some Details

A few details:

Topcoats are shorter than those seen in America and some are eight button double breasted, somewhat fitted and worn with a curled brim hat that is pulled further down the eyebrows than usual. Raincoats are even shorter, often have a cape-like flair. He also shows capes, which are big in England at the moment.

Shirts have higher collars and are widepread. The shirts run to stripes and solids in such colors as heliotrope, deep Amies blue and a soft apricot. Shirtails are chopped off to permit them to fit into snug slacks without bunching or wrinkling. Ties run to a 3¼ inch width.

Shoes have squared off toes and a pitched heel that completes the diagonally cut trouser bottom.

Not all Amies designs are ready for the American market—or vice versa. One on the drawing board for the future is a Regency-style jacket in corduroy, eight button double breasted with very wide collar and short wide lapels. Another was double breasted fawn check tweed with flared skirt and a slight flare on the bottom of the trousers.

And his lataest design, for which he won the Caswell-Massey International Silver Eagle Award, was a coordinated outdoors outfit — a blue and dark red plaid walking coat over a smaller plaid sports jacket in the same shades and worn with a blue hat and blue trousers.

Emma Lazarus AJC Studies "Church-State' Relations

The subject of church-state relations will be discussed on Wednesday evening, Nov. 29, as Emma Lazarus Chapter, American Jewish Congress, presents "Shadows in the Schoolroom" at Newton Highlands Women's Club.

Particular emphasis will be given to federally-funded Title I programs in Massachusetts, according to Mrs. Leonard Kogos, chapter president.

Mrs. Kogos, who will preside, said the evening marks the culmination of eight months research and interviews by seven women comprising the chapter's Commission on Law and Social Action.

The project was sponsored jointly by the New England Region, American Jewish Congress, and the Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Boston, both of whom authorized extensive reporting including work with the files of the Massachusetts Department of Education.

A basic study of education in Massachusetts was prepared this autumn by a committee comprised of five Newton women. Janice Colten, Helen Levenson, Barbara Dallin, Barbara Handel and Lois Morse compiled the report.

Also on the Nov. 29 program is a panel which will discuss its continuing study on "Education, Church and State." Panelists are Elinor Englander, Maxine Rubin, Barbara Dallin and Lois Morse, all of Newton.

Anti-Smog War Is Comfortable

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Another front has been opened in the auto industry's war against air pollution and the battlefield is quite comfortable. This anti-smog battle is being fought in an unusual new building put up by ACF Industries here for the precise testing and adjustment of carburetors so they will meet the strict requirements of the Federal Clean Air Act.

Barometric pressure, temperature and humidity must be closely controlled so that the carburetors will give the necessary uniform performance. The building, therefore, had to be designed to withstand differences in inside and outside air pressure, and employees and materials must enter and exist through air locks to maintain the stable—and pleasant—climatic conditions.

Plan Helps Poor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Katherine Oettinger, deputy assistant secretary for population and family planning in the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), associates recent regional decreases in infant mortality with the expansion of family planning services for the poor.

Reporting at the annual conference of Planned Parenthood-World Population, she noted that any area where the average annual income for a family of four is less than $3,000 would appear to be a prime candidate as a target area where federally-subsidized family planning information and services might yield the greatest returns.

4 TOP BOSTON BANKS RAISE INTEREST RATES

FOUR MAJOR BOSTON BANKS yesterday announced increases in their "prime rate" — the interest rate charged to their best corporate customers — from 5½ to 6 per cent. The action followed raises by major banks in New York earlier in the day as a result of an increase in the discount rate of the Federal Reserve Board from 4½ to 5 per cent.

The First National Bank of Boston, the National Shawmut Bank and State Street Bank and Trust Co., said the increase would take effect at the opening of business Wednesday. New England Merchants National Bank said the increase was effective at 3:30 p.m. yesterday, before some offices closed.

LBJ MAPS SLASHES IN PAYROLLS AND SPENDING

PRESIDENT JOHNSON was reported yesterday to be planning to slash federal payrolls and cut spending programs to try to revive his tax increase bill. One of his top advisers said a tax increase was doubly important since Britain devalued its pound.

Treasury Secretary Henry Fowler told a news conference that details of Johnson's plan to reduce federal spending would be presented to the House Ways and Means Committee when it meets next week. He said a tax increase was needed more now since the devaluation of the pound sterling put the dollar on the "front line" in international finance.

KENNEDY ANNIVERSARY UNOBSERVED IN WHITE HOUSE

IT WAS FOUR YEARS AGO today that President John F. Kennedy was assassinated and his Vice President, Lyndon B. Johnson, replaced him at the White House.

But the anniversary went unobserved in the executive mansion. Too grim are the memories of that autumn afternoon in Dallas when Kennedy was shot to death in the back seat of an open car. Instead, the President was spending the Thanksgiving holidays at his Texas ranch.

BRITAIN'S CONSERVATIVES DEMAND WILSON QUIT

BRITAIN'S CONSERVATIVES demanded angrily in Parliament Tuesday that Prime Minister Harold Wilson resign. It charged he "betrayed his high office" in devaluing the pound. But Wilson's Labor government, in a furious House of Commons debate, defended the devaluation and threatened to impose even stiffer economic measures, if necessary, to bail Britain out of its economic woes.

The Labor government, entrenching itself in Commons with backbench support, was considered virtually certain to survive the Conservative assault in a two-day debate in Wilson's decision to reduce the pound's value from $2.80 to $2.40.

It comes from Howard Niederman, member of the National Society of Interior designers and president of the Howard-Parlor Furniture Co. The guage—is the living room one in which one person can be comfortable, where two people can relax in seclusion, and where a group of people can be entertained hospitably?

Spacious Age

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)— Color can be used to create the illusion of space in the home.

From Magdalene Pfister of the University of Nebraska Extension Service, come these tips. Light, cool colors such as soft blues and greens give the effect of space and airiness. Light tints of wallpaper without much contrast are more space-enlarging than a dark, all-over pattern. Even small designs in strong color seem to draw walls inward. And background colors identical to the walls give the look of more space.

East Does Meet West In Exotic Singapore

By RAY F. HERNDON

SINGAPORE (UPI) — "Oh, East is East and West is West and never the twain shall meet."

So wrote Rudyard Kipling, but he might agree that the "twain" have met in Singapore, as fascinating a city today as it is storied in legend.

Even the island city's name (all Singapore, city and republic, is contained on 224 square mlies of territory) is a part of its romance. According to legend, Singapore was named by a prince of the Sri Viiaya court on the isruled the South Seas in the 14th Century. The prince left the SriVijaya court on the island of Sumatra to look for a place to found a city of his own, and happened upon the island situated at the southernmost tip of the Malay Peninsula. Seeing a strange animal which he was told was a lion, Prince Sang Nila Utama decided to name his newly discovered kingdom Singa-Pura, or Lion City.

The Singapore of today, with its strong mixture of Western culture, came into being in 1819, when Britain's Sir Stamford Raffles made an agreement with the Malay Sultan who owned the swampy, diamond-shaped island that allowed the East India Company to establish a trading post at the mouth of the Singapore River. The entire island was later ceded in perpetuity to the company, which turned it over to the British crown.

Singapore's deep, natural harbor and its surrounding ring of tiny offshore islands gave ships shelter from storms and safety from the infamous pirates of the Malacca Straits. Located strategically at the center of an area rich in tropical produce, spices and other natural resources, and with a free port policy which still exists, Singapore soon attracted traders and settlers, and became an important way-station for China-bound ships of the 19th Century.

Singapore also attracted smugglers and adventurers, and many a story of these has been spun by such novelists as Maugham and Conrad.

When Britain decided to rule formally the territories won by her adventurous traders, Singapore became the center of the administration for Malaya, Malacca and Penang, the sister settlements of Singapore.

Singapore also gained fame as the "impregnable island fortress" from which the British military defended England's empire East of Suez. This reputation was ruined by the near instant defeat of Singapore by the Japanese in 1942 — all because the giant guns, in fixed positions, were pointed in the wrong direction.

Fifth Largest Port

The legacy Singapore inherited from the East India Company has made it what it is today. In terms of tonnage passing through the harbor, it is the fifth largest port in the world. Its highly developed wholesale and retail commerce, banking system, insurance, shipping and storage facilities have made Singapore one of the world's great commercial centers and the economic heart of Southeast Asia.

Singapore presents an unusual picture to the present day traveler. The fact that roughly three-fourths of the island's two million inhabitants speak a variety of English and because the multiracial population of Chinese, Malays, Indians, Pakistanis and Eurasians have largely abandoned their traditional native garb for Western style clothes, visitors get the impression that Singapore is more Western than Eastern; a place where Kipling's "twain" have met and fused.

The contrasts are striking. The government is Socialist, but fully one-third of the island's inhabitants depend on purely capitalistic trade for their existence; three-fourths of the population are descendants of Chinese immigrants, and while they are in political control they have made Malay the national language out of deference to the predominantly Malay neighbors, Malaysia and Indonesia.

In contrast to steamy, teeming Chinatown, and the busy bazaars of Arab Street, where drying laundry on bamboo poles form arches over the narrow streets, there are tens of thousands of modern, low-cost public housing tenements, monuments to the Socialist government's progress in urban renewal. There is a growing suburbia, and a middle class that has taken to weekend barbecues, water skiing, yachting, golf and tennis.

Singapore is a blend of the old and the new — the mystic Orient of piping snake charmers and serene mosques with the South Sea magic of swaying palms and native charms, and yet very much a 20th century metropolis, with mile-long traffic jams at rush hour, skyscrapers and a stock and commodity exchange as frantic as Wall Street's.

Ocean liners and Chinese bumboats, with magic eyes on the bows to ward off evil spirits, crowd the harbor, occasionally jostling each other for space.

In the housing estates, there are rows upon rows of modern brick homes, and one can almost imagine them in Europe or America — were it not for their shocking pink, bright turquoise, emerald and flamingo colors. Singapore may have the gaudiest houses in the world.

But in spite of the apartment buildings and the growing suburbia, there is more than a trace of Somerset Maugham's Singapore. The sun may have set on the British Empire, but the last lingering rays remain on the palms that Maugham saw fronting the famed but aging Raffles Hotel, grey-stoned Victorian buildings still stand proudly somber along the waterfront. And as the multihued sun sets over the horizon, the Britisher, no longer colonial master, still heads for his customary "strength" of scotch and soda in the stiffly English Tangle Inn or Tanglin Club.

Chinese Customs

Crusty old Chinese chandlers still rush to meet incoming ships shaped lighters, offering fresh produce and spare parts to visiting vessels. The business of buying and selling, largely conducted in dimly lit and dingy rooms, and with an abacus instead of adding machine, still goes on much in the same manner — if not in the same rooms — as it did a half-century ago.

The famed but fast-vanishing Death Houses of Sago Lane, where the aged Chinese go to die, are still in business. Chinatown is all noise, but the shouts of hawkers are now drowned out by blaring hi-fi sets pouring fourth rock-'n-roll music or the Beatles.

The hawkers of food have been forced to surrender their traditional haunts to the government's auto - parks; but as soon as the sun sets, and the city workers have driven away in their shiny imported cars, the push-cart hawkers take up their positions and offer everything from satay (skewered and roasted bits of lamb, pork or beef) to a five or six-course Chinese dinner .

Across the island at Jurong the activity is different from the traditional street selling of downtown Singapore. There, the government has set aside 17,000 acres for an industrial estate and satellite town. Though still half-empty, Jurong promises to become a bee-hive of industrial activity as more foreign investment is lured in to establish factories.

Away from the hustle and bustle of the city, peaceful Malay fisherfolk, still living in houses on stilts amid coconut palms and strips of quiet beaches on the east and west coasts, trap fish in a leisurely fashion.

A stroll at dawn reveals the crowd of excited children -- barefoot and big-eyed as they watch in never failing fascination the baskets of silvery, slithering fish unloaded and heavy nets drawn in.

Similar scenes are enacted on the Southern Islands, which bear such romantic names as the Isle of Ease (Palau Senang) and Devil's Island (Pulau Hantu). A mere 10-minute speedboat ride across the main harbor, there are the veritable South Sea Islands with beaches of golden sand, and lush green vegetation.

If East hasn't met West in Singapore, they are at least keeping steady company.

Dr. Hynek earned his doctorate at the University of Chicago. Before going to Northwestern he taught at Ohio State and Harvard.

Firemen Win Single-Unit Bargaining

The State Labor Relations Board this week granted the Newton Fire Department the right to organize as a single labor unit for purposes of collective bargaining.

City Solicitor Matt Jones said the law department is considering whether to challenge the Board's action before the State Supreme Court. The city had been fighting any attempt by the firemen to organize as a total unit and had argued its case before the Labor Relations Board.

If the city does challenge the decision of the Board, it will have to be done before the second week in December when the 30-day grace period for challenging ends.

The firefighters who will organize under the Newton Firemen's Welfare Assn., have been attempting for a year to get their organization recognized.

The firemen want to organize, totally. That is, all members except the chief, to belong to one unit and to bargain as one.

The city wanted two separate units, one for officers and another for men. The city contended that the officers and firefighters, because of disciplinary reasons, should be separated.

Sgt. In Action In S. Vietnam Halting Cong

Staff Sergeant Warren M. Dixon, son-in-law af Mr. and Mrs. Charles Doaval of 41 Bernard St., Newton, recently took part in a mission that was credited with halting Viet Cong attacks on Allied outposts in South Vietnam.

Sgt. Dixon, a flight mechanic aboard an AC-47 Dragonship, was on ground alert when he and his crew were scrambled. They had heard a forward air controller calling for help over the tower radio frequency and just moments later were airborne.

Dodging some angry storm fronts, the Dragonship arrived over the outpost and turned its own fury on the attacking enemy that threatened to overrun the small Allied force.

As brilliant two-million candlelight flares lighted the area, the Dragonship's three mini-guns began spewing out 6,000 rounds per minute. A short time later all ground fire had stopped.

"While we were firing on the enemy positions," said Sgt. Dixon, "the forward air controller was checking another outpost which he had been unable to contact by radio. He reported that all he could see was Viet Cong. Seconds later we were over the second target and firing our remaining ammunition."

The ship then returned to Bien Hoa Air Base after alerting another AC-47.

The sergeant and his fellow crew members reloaded the aircraft and returned to the beseiged outpost. They spent the next two hours firing at the enemy around the Allied position.

The subject of the posters was the coming Christmas bazaar sponsored by the St. Bernard's Mother's Guild, which is scheduled for Friday, December 1, from 6:00 to 10:00 p.m., and Saturday, December 2, from 10:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. Winners in the contest were: First prize — Robin MacDonald, 24 Henshaw Terrace, West Newton; second prize—Frances Brennan, 6 Sharon Avenue, Auburndale, and third prize—Janet and Joanne Cukeen, 53 Taft Avenue, West Newton.

Closing Dates Soon For Christmas Mail

Postmaster Ephraim Martin has released the following schedule of dates for the mailing of Christmas cards and packages for all parts of the United States:

Parcel Post To Distant States, December 4; Greeting Cards To Distant States, December 11; Air Mail (Cards and Packages), December 18; Parcel Post To N. E. States and Local, December 14; Greeting Cards For New England and Local, December 15.

Packages weighing up to 5 lbs. can be sent to servicemen overseas by surface transportation up to December 1. These will move to ports of embarkation by surface transportation and will be air-lifted on a space available basis overseas. These are known as SAM (Space Available Mail) packages. Air mail packages can be deposited up to December 11th for the military forces overseas.

Postmaster Martin urges public cooperation in complying with these recommended mailing schedules. "Heavy snow in many parts of the country and forecast for this area prior to Christmas will create serious problems in the transportation and delivery of this record mail load this year," he said.

Zip Codes both in the return and correspondent's address would substantially aid in the distribution of mail, particularly by the Christmas temporary employees, who could identify by number the proper postoffice where duplicate street names are found within a city. In the Boston district there are as many as twenty-four streets of the identical name. Insofar as parcels are concerned, the use of Zip Codes will permit the bypassing of various terminals and provide straight-line transportation to office of address on parcel post.

Postmaster Martin likewise suggested that the fullest use be made of the special postal services such as, insurance, registration of valuables, special delivery and special handling services and air mail.

The public are reminded that the multiple handlings of parcel post require that the packages be strong and contents well cushioned. A duplicate copy of the address should be enclosed within the package for added protection.

Postal officials advise that the beautiful new Christmas stamp is now available at all stations and branches in the Boston Postal District.

Appoints Mayor Local Chairman In Dimes Drives

John V. Harvey, Registrar of Probate, Middlesex County, and 1968 March Of Dimes campaign director for the Massachusetts Bay Chapter, today announced the appointment of Monte G. Basbas Mayor of Newton, as community chairman for the local March of Dimes drive.

In making the announcement, Mr. Harvey expressed high confidence in and posed a challenge to the community chairman.

"This, the thirtieth anniversary year of The National Foundation—March of Dimes, marks three decades of service to the health of the American people. If voluntary health organizations such as ours can be evaluated on the excellence of their past record PLUS a continuing program of research, education and treatment ending in the alleviation of human suffering, then we may well be proud to note we are associated with the most successful organization of its kind in The United States.

"With the defeat of polio by The March of Dimes, it then undtrtookt he gravest chilhood health problem in America today. Birth defects destroy at the rate of 560,000 lives a year.

"But strides are being made day and night in March of Dimes Research Centers across the nation. Work continues in the same spirit that defeated polio. But, pure and simply, help is needed badly. In that connection, I am proud to be able to announce the appointment of Mayor Basbas with full confidence as to a well-organized and successful campaign."

MAYOR URGES YULE SEAL SUPPORT—Mayor Monte G. Basbas, at recent signing of "Fight Tuberculosis Week in Newton," proclamation urged citizens to support the annual sale of Christmas Seals. Van Hits Tree Killing Driver; Another Injured

An Ashland man was killed and a companion injured in Newton last Sunday when the van in which they were riding hit a tree on Commonwealth ave., opposite Norumbega Park.

Albert A. DeFalco, 37, of 31 Nickerson rd., was pronounced dead on arrival at Newton-Wellesley Hospital. A passenger, Ralph Norton, 36, of Framingham, suffered multiple contusions and abrasions of the face. His condition was reported as "good" by hospital authorities.

DeFalco died from massive head injuries. He was hanging out of the door of the curb side van. Norton was thrown about 30-feet by the impact of the crash. Norton later told police he was asleep in the van. The next thing he knew, he was on the Commonwealth ave. island, crawling back to the vehicle.

Police said that the left wheels of the vehicle were on the island for about 25 feet before the van struck the tree. It was the ninth traffic fatality in Newton this year.

Jewelry, Mink Coats Taken In Weekend Breaks

Jewelry, mink coats, $1000 in construction tools and $200 cash were taken during six breaks in Newton over the past weekend.

Ronald Wilson, of 41 Brackett road, Newton, said his home was ransacked and assorted jewelry, plus $200 cash and a wall safe containing personal papers were taken.

A mink coat and assorted jewelry were taken from the home of Maurice Bloom at 420 Fuller street, Newton, he reported to police.

Davis Stein, of 303 Greenwood street, Newton, reported that a camera, mink coat and assorted jewelry was taken in a break in his home.

On Friday night, $1000 in tools were taken from a site at 60 Austin street, Newtonville. The tools were owned by the Seacrest-Hays Co. of Wellesley.

Newtonville Man Is Storm Victim

A Newtonville man died in the freakish storm that hit the area last week causing the worse traffic jam in the history of the Metropolitan Boston area.

Leslie A. Hertach, 51, of 100 Clyde st., an employee of the Dept. of Public Works collapsed in a parking lot in Boston while cleaning off his car windshield.

During the height of the storm Rte. 128 was closed down, boxing thousands of cars in the Newton area. Cars from the main circumferential highway added to the congestion already backing up main arteries and numerous side streets through the Newton villages.

About the only route open from Newton into Boston was the toll road extension but that became blocked on the Hub end when off ramps jammed up. One Newton man went from Newton to Lincoln st. in Boston in 25 minutes, then spent three hours getting up Lincoln st. to Summer st.

The traffic jam followed a pattern similar to that created when a rock is dropped in a pool of water. It began in the downtown area and radiated out into the suburbs. It began as the commuters left the downtown area and, as more and more autos joined the home-going crowds, the traffic lines bulged out on all arteries leading into and out of the city.

The snarl radiated all the way out into Newton, especially along Washington st., Galen st., Nonantum st., Commonwealth ave. and Walnut st.

It was near midnight before the streets of Newton were clear and sanders and salters of the Public Works Department could do their job. As a result, traffic moved freely the next day.

Patriots State Champs Over Everett On Sunday

The Newton Patriots defeated the Everett Huskies 8-6 yesterday (Sunday, Nov. 19) to win the State Championship of the Junior Midget Division, Pop Warner Football league, before a crowd of 2500 spectators at the Newton Highlands Playground.

Everett struck first Co-Captain, Kevin Gianino, returned a punt 63 yards for a touchdown late in the first period. The conversion attempt failed.

Newton retaliated at the start of the third period. After returning the second half kickoff to their own 28 yard line, the Patriots went all the way for a touchdown with halfback Peter Percy scoring from the Everett 5 yard line.

Bob Kinsella passed to fullback Dan Ahern for a two point conversion giving Newton its 8-6 margin of victory.

The underdog Patriot team dominated the game statistically making thirteen first downs to Everett's six. Newton gained 148 yards rushing while holding the bigger, faster Huskie eleven to just 56 yards on the ground.

A key factor in the game was Newton's superlative pass defense. Everett attempted five passes, of which three were incomplete and two were intercepted by Patriot defenders Bill Bertrand and Peter Percy.

Halfback Peter Percy of Newton and end Kevin Gianino, Everett Co-Captain, were named Most Valuable Players and awarded trophies at the conclusion of the game.

In the first period each team conducted short drives and at mid-period Gianino scored Everett's only touchdown when he returned a Newton punt for 63 yards. As the period ended Newton mounted their first scoring threat when Billy Lancilotl made a spectacular catch of a Bob Kinsella pass on the Everett 21 yard line..

Newton opened the second period by moving to the Everett 12 yard line and losing the ball on a fumble. The rest of the period was a "see-saw" battle with neither team threatening.

Newton opened the third period by moving 12 yards on eight plays to score. Newton kicked off to Everett and then got the ball back as Peter Percy intercepted a first down pass. After a kicking duel Everett drove all the way to the Newton 24 yard line.

As the fourth period started Everett's drive was broken when Newton's Brian Anderson recovered an Everett fumble on the Patriot 35 yard line. Newton then pushed deep into Everett territory, lost the ball, got it back on a key tackle by Mat Sabetti and ended the game on the Everett three yard line.

The decisive play of the game was Newton's successful pass for a two-point conversion after the third period touchdown. Since fullback Dan Ahern; the intended receiver, was covered, quarterback Bob Kinsella faked a rush to pull in the defense while Ahern broke free. Kinsella then threw a strike to Ahern for the winning two points.

Coach Nick Pasquarosa praised his young Patriot club for their great performance under pressure and he pointed to the fine play of the defensive "front four": Mike Rooney, Ron McGerigle, Steve Berkowitz and Bill Bertrand. He also pointed out the fine play of the offensive tackles Greg Messina and Mike Dolson and the play calling of ten year old quarterback Bob Kinsella. These were the major elements in winning the big game.

Yesterday's game had all the color of collegiate football with cheerleaders supporting both teams and band music by members of Post 440 American Legion under the direction of Al Barbato. Coffee and donuts were donated by the Newton J.C.'s under the direction of John Borelli.

In ceremonies immediately following the game, Newton Patriots President Fred Delicandro and Coach Nick Pasquarosa, with assistants Bob Huguley and Tony Battista were awarded the trophies for the state and conference championships won by their team.

McNAMARA TO TAKE WORLD BANK JOB NEXT YEAR

DEFENSE SECRETARY Robert S. McNamara announced last night that he would assume the presidency of the World Bank sometime next year. President Johnson, in a separate statement, said the shift would not affect Vietnam war policy.

McNamara confirmed his decision to leave the Pentagon after nearly seven years about an hour after the World Bank's executive directors agreed unanimously to offer him the job. "I have felt for some time that there would be benefit from the appointment of a fresh person" to be civilian chief of the Defense Department, McNamara said.

Johnson and McNamara said no precise date had been set for the change, and the President gave no indication who he would name as McNamara's successor, or when.

SENATE OK's POSTAL RATE HIKE, FEDERAL RAISES

THE SENATE VOTED overwhelmingly yesterday to raise postal rates next year and give federal employees a $2.6 billion pay raise. The combined pay increase-postal rate measure passed 85 to 2 and was sent to a joint Senate-House Conference Committee to iron out slight difference with a bill passed by the House earlier.

Both measures would give federal employes and postal workers a tidy Christmas bonus, since the first year's increase would be retroactive to Oct. 1. The bill would raise the price of stamps for first class letters from five to six cents; first class postcards from four to five cents; airmail letters from eight cents to 10 cents; and airmail cards from six cents to eight cents.

LBJ FORCES MAKE DESPERATE TAX HIKE BID

THE JOHNSON ADMINISTRATION proposed $4.1 billion in federal spending cuts yesterday in a new, seemingly hopeless bid to get a tax increase this year from a skeptical Congress. The House Ways and Means Committee reopened hearings on President Johnson's proposal for a 10 per cent income tax surcharge, which it shelved Oct. 3, to hear the administration's new spending plan.

Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler left the impression after testifying that he doubted Congress would approve higher taxes before it adjourns, probably close to Christmas. The committee chairman, Rep. Wilbur Mills, (D-Ark.), said House action by then was impossible.

NEW HAVEN RR REORGANIZATION PLAN HIT

A PLAN AIMED at giving creditors of the bankrupt New Haven Railroad a profit after the line is sold into the merged Penn-Central came under fire Wednesday when it was presented by New Haven Trustee William J. Kirk. Kirk submitted a proposed plan of reorganization for the bankrupt line at Interstate Commerce Commission hearings on the line's sale to a merged Penn-Central.

He proposed a plan to set up a securities investment company which would provide for "the non-cash treatment" of bondholders claims. Representatives of the Harlem River bondholders and other first mortgage holders objected to Kirk's plan on grounds that it did not treat accrued interest on claims fairly.

GREEK-TURK ACCORD ON CYPRUS IMMINENT

NEUTRAL NEGOTIATORS shuttling between Athens and Ankara were reported last night to have won agreement on a peaceful settlement of the Cyprus crisis which threatened to engulf Greece and Turkey in war. Final approval and an end to the six-day-old Mediterranean crisis hinged on Archbishop Makarios III, president of Cyprus.

"Agreement between Greece and Turkey is a fact — it is now a matter of Makarios' okay," informed sources said in Athens. U.S. presidential envoy Cyrus Vance flew to Nicosia, Cyprus, from Athens early in the day for urgent consultation with Archbishop Makarios and Turkish Cypriot leaders.

SYRIAN PRESIDENT CALLS FOR ISRAEL WAR

PRESIDENT NOUREDDIN ATASSI of Syria told cheering thousands in Damascus yesterday that victory over Israel was the only solution to the Middle East crisis. Reports from Algiers indicated President Houari Boumedienne also has ruled out any political solution to the dispute with Israel.

Even as Damascus radio broadcast Atassi's defiance of the United Nations and another rebuff to fellow Arab leaders advocating moderation, a high-level Syrian delegation flew to Moscow to urge the Kremlin to take a tougher stand in the Middle East.

BRITISH FINANCIAL BOSS CALLAGHAN QUITS

CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER James Callaghan quit as Britian's financial boss yesterday after seeing his three-year fight to save the pound collapse in devaluation. Prime Minister Harold Wilson named Home Secretary Roy Jenkins to succeed him.

As a sort of "consolation prize" for the man who reluctantly carried the hod for him in pushing through devaluation, Wilson named Callaghan to Jenkin's post of home secretary. Callaghan, 55, a bluff sailor's son and former navy man himself, had occupied the financial hot seat since Labor came to power in October, 1964.

HARVARD, MIT GET $3 MILLION URBAN GRANTS

THE FORD FOUNDATION yesterday awarded grants of $3 million each to Harvard University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology MIT for educational and research activities in urban affairs. The presidents of the schools said the grants would be used to bring leaders of urban affairs to the institutions and for establishing professorships.

"Flexibility and a freshness of approach" are provided by the new professorships, Harvard President Nathan M. Pusey said. MIT President Howard W. Johnson announced that the money will allow leaders in urban affairs to lecture, teach and participate in research.

MONEYLESS FINANCE HOUSING BOARD MAY QUIT

THE FIVE BOARD MEMBERS of the Massachusetts Finance Housing Agency said yesterday they would resign unless the legislature gives it funds to work with.

After a 15-minute conference with Gov. John Volpe, one of the board members, John Ryan, said the governor promised to place a bill granting the agency $300,000 for a staff on his "must" legislation list.

The measure has been bogged down in the House. Legislators have said there was little chance the MFHA funds would be approved this session. A bill providing $650,000 to be used for rental assistance for low income, large families is stalled in the Senate Ways and Means Committe.

BILL FILED TO CURB DRUG ABUSES

REP. JOHN A. S. McGLENNON, (R-Concord) filed a legislative package yesterday designed to curb the "alarming increase in the use of harmful drugs and narcotics" in the state.

The lawmaker's recommendations included a redraft of Chapter 94, the narcotic and harmful drug laws, to increase the penalty for possession, selling or inducing others to use harmful drugs; the establishment of a new section in the Food and Drug Division for the dissemination of information of the effect and abuse of harmful drugs and a provision in which a police official would not need a search warrant to search the premises of a known convicted user or dispenser of narcotics or drugs.

Dedicate New Church Window Sunday, Dec. 3

The Newton Highlands Congregational Church will dedicate the new Terkelsen Memorial Window on the first Sunday in Advent, December 3, at 5:00 p.m. The Senior Choir will sing during the service.

This beautiful stained glass window, depicting the Nativity, is in memory of Edsin A. Terkelsen, a long time member of the church, who, among other services rendered, served as its treasurer for over twenty-five years.

The window will be lighted from within the gallery of the sanctuary, so that after dark its beauty will glow from the tower out over Newton Highlands square.

School Board Is Briefed At Meeting

Principals Stress Need For Extra School Funds

The seven principals of Newton's senior and junior high schools told the School Committee Monday night that they need more money to meet personnel, space and materials problems.

Principal Richard W. Mechem of Newton High School, spokesman for the group of school administrators, declared that small adjustments no longer can meet the needs of the seven schools and that policies must be established to meet existing pressures.

The sources of the pressures, Mechem asserted, are the expansion of the body of knowledge as in the sciences, the complex nature of society today and the large group of students who don't exactly fit either into the college preparatory course or the technical high school type of program.

In the course of his remarks Mechem said many classes in Newton schools are too large, that more teachers are needed, and that the teaching load should be reduced.

The principals, in a prepared report, outlined the common factors in programs and specified their needs concerning them:

1. "We all have to maneuver people, time and space to bring the teaching and learning resources to the individual child. We need more room to maneuver. Most of our schools are over 80 percent in terms of room utilization and at least three are actually out of space!

"In many cases, a teacher has over 125 students in his classes, and a great many classes are over 30 in size—more teachers are needed. Money is needed to enlist the aid of community resources, and to support activities, such as those which involve bus trips.

2. "As you know, teachers today are demanding the right to help determine what they teach. This means that they need time to review the new materials on the market, to adapt the materials to the Newton programs, and, if need be, to get an adequate supply of what they need. This means a reduction of teaching load.

"We need more people to free teachers so they can investigate and create new materials. Moreover, we must have access to adequate funds or the equivalent in personnel to allow teachers to do this work on the job, either during the school year or in the summer.

3. "In any major change in the school plan, be it a new time schedule or a curriculum development, the staff must work it through and have a commitment to the new departure.

"We need time to allow our faculties to work through the changes, and this time is best purchased through the hiring of additional personnel or through summer work. As a concomitant to number three, principals need consultant

Top Arson Cop Probes Fire Here

One of the top arson specialists from the State Fire Marshal's office has been assigned to probe the fire at Newton high school that caused upwards of $5000 damage.

It was learned that State Police Lt. Sylvester Mead is heading the investigation of the blaze that broke out 10 days ago while classes were in progress in Building 3 of the high school.

It was the fourth fire at the school in the past year, all of suspicious origin, all unsolved.

Newton fire officials said this week the case is "still under investigation," re-

Trustees Of Hospital To Meet Tuesday

The annual meeting of Newton - Wellesley Hospital trustees will take place at 3:45 p.m. on Tuesday, December 5, in the hospital's Usen Auditorium.

Among items to be considered by the trustees during the annual meeting are the election of officers and new trustees.

High on the agenda, too, are expansion plans of the hospital. Officials have submitted the plans to the board of aldermen of the City of Newton and to the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, Division of Hospitals.

Early and favorable action by both groups could clear the way for ground breaking during January for a major addition to hospital facilities.

At 6:45 p.m. in the hospital dining room, the 95 business and civic leaders who comprise the board of trustees and over 200 friends and

UF Goal Met By City Help

Municipal employees of the City of Newton are to be congratulated for going over the top in the drive for the United Fund. William K. Mackey, Administrative Assistant to Mayor Monte G. Basbas, and Municipal Chairman, states that the city employees were most cooperative in their work and gifts.

With a municipal quota or goal of $2,869 to be raised, Mr. Mackey states that a total of $3,186 has been reported to date.

Sub. Teachers Request Wage Hike Of Board

The Newton Substitute Teachers Association on Monday night asked the School Committee for a $1 per day across-the-board salary raise for short term teaching.

The group asked that the pay for substitute teachers be increased to $20, $21, $22 per day, the amount depending on the category determined by educational background and experience.

They also asked for a per diem increase of $2 after 360 teaching days (3 years), a raise of $4 per day after 600 days (5 years) and a $6 increase after 1200 days (10 years) of substitute teaching in Newton.

It was pointed out that 120 days of actual teaching constitutes a year's work, according to the School Department's regulations.

The substitute teachers, represented by Ruth Weiner, salary chairman of the association, and Elizabeth Wolf, president, pointed out that if the rate for substitute teachers in Newton had increased by the same per cent as the Newton minimum salary for teachers, the minimum short-term rate for substitute teachers would now be $20 daily. According to the 1967 salary schedule, the minimum rate is $19 per day.

Local Girl's Husband Hero In Vietnam

The husband of a Newton woman took part recently in a mission that was credited with halting Viet Cong attacks on Allied outposts in South Vietnam.

Staff Sgt. Warren M. Dixon, a flight mechanic on an AC-47 Dragonship, was on ground alert when he and his crew were scrambled. They had heard a forward air controller calling for help over the tower radio frequency and just moments later were airborne.

Flying through stormy weather the Dragonship arrived over the outpost and turned its own fury on the attacking enemy that threatened to overrun the small Allied force.

Newton Intruders Turn Home Into Pad

Juvenile burglars, and intruders including some who turned a home into a pad, were sought by police this week following a series of burglaries in houses, service stations and a school.

The home of Robert Kolikof, of 42 Fellsmere rd., Newton, was broken into between Nov. 22 and last Sunday. Kolikof reported to police that the intruders apparently moved in and made themselves comfortable while the house was vacant.

He reported that nothing was missing but the house showed Graphic evidence the house - breakers had cooked meals and slept in the house. He said entrance was gained through an unlocked window

In presenting the award to Mr. Lakin, United Synagogue president Henry N. Rapaport of Scarsdale N.Y., said, "For many years a devoted servant of the Conservative Movement, Mr. Lakin has made a lasting contribution to our cause. Medicaid Depletes City's Surplus Funds

Because of the mounting cost of Medicaid, Newton has only about $15,000 in surplus funds, it was revealed this week by Finance Director Arthur A. Marr who commented:

"The surplus fund account is the lowest in memory."

Marr said that surplus funds were depleted unexpectedly last month by the Welfare Department. Some $156,000 was needed to cover costs of Medicaid. Other departmental spending helped decrease the surplus even more.

He added that the city usually likes to keep about $200,000 to $300,000 in reserve at this time of year, and about a half-million at budget time.

Mayor Monte G. Basbas said last Friday he will do everything possible to prevent borrowing of money by the city for the rest of the year. That means, he said, that some items presently on the docket before the Board of Aldermen will go begging.

Marr said that if the city needs money, the finance department will try to get it from unused funds in various departments. He explained that the surplus is money kept on hand for needed department appropriations during the year,

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Time To Measure Greatness Of Collins Record as Mayor

On New Year's Day Kevin H. White will assume office as Mayor of Boston, and the man he succeeds—John F. Collins — will move back into the relative obscurity of private life.

For the first time since late 1955 when he was fighting off the ravages of crippling polio Collins will not hold any public office.

On the second day of the New Year John Collins will move the scene of his operations to Massachusetts Institute of Technology where he will lecture as a professor of urban affairs.

At about the same time he will resume the practice of law at which he was highly successful before he was felled by polio.

Time will measure the greatness of John F. Collins as Mayor of Boston, and the passing of time after he leaves office will bring into clearer focus the magnitude of Collins' accomplishments and what he did for the State's capital city and its people.

81 Percent Of Goal Now Reached By United Fund

The Newton United Fund reached 81 per cent of its goal this week as it counted receipts of $117,765.

The target total for 1967 in Newton is $145,835. As $28,070 remained to be collected, village chairmen and captains were redoubling their efforts to meet the quota.

The United Fund was high in its praise of Newtonites who, since Oct. 15, have been devoting their time and efforts to the drive.

Newton Community Co-Chairmen Mr. and Mrs. William Carmen of 48 Philmore Rd., described the cooperation they received from an army of volunteers as "just wonderful."

The Carmens said "each did a wonderful job and we're proud of and grateful to everyone who worked so hard to make the Newton United Fund a success."

Community Co-Chairmen: Mr. and Mrs. William Carmen.

Eagle Rank Award Given Newton Scout Carpenter

Albert L. Carpenter Jr., 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Carpenter of 72 Homer street, Newton Centre, recently received the Eagle rank, Scouting's highest rank, at the Troop 219 Court of Honor at First Church in Newton.

Making the presentation was former Troop 219 Scoutmaster Ronald K. Dean of Southboro, where is assistant scoutmaster.

Albert joined Troop 219 early in 1965 and advanced rapidly to Eagle. In that time he has been very active in troop activities and has received many awards and honors; election to the Order of the Arrow in 1966; perfect attendance award for two years; two prizes for sales in the annual troop Christmas wreath sale; and the Carver Trophy for Scout of the Year in 1966.

He received the Scouting-affiliated God and Country award, the Episcopal religious award in 1966. He has successfully completed 31 merit badges, 10 more than required for Eagle.

In addition to his Scouting experience, Albert is an active member of Trinity Church, where he has received the "Rector's Cross" for outstanding work with the Server's Guild; and he is a past vice president of the Young People's Fellowship there.

In presenting the award, Mr. Dean emphasized that while many boys enter Scouting, very few have enough "guts" to receive Eagle. As such, it is indeed a high honor and responsibility to receive the award. Having received much from the Scouting program, he continued, it is the Eagle's responsibility to see that other Scouts, too, receive the knowledge, opportunities, and enjoyment that Scouting offers.

In concluding his charge, Mr. Dean expressed confidence that Albert will continue and fulfill the responsibilities and expectations which the Eagle badge represents.

Preceding the actual Court of Honor was a presentation of slides of the XII World Jamboree held in Idaho last summer, by assistant scoutmaster Clifton Dean. The Court was opened in the traditional candlelighting ceremony by senior patrol leader Doug Nee.

Following the Eagle presentation, advancement chairman Clifton Dean declared the Court closed and dismissed the Troop.

A short time later all ground fire had stopped.

"While we were firing on the enemy positions," Sgt. Dixon recalls, "the forward air controller was checking another outpost which he had beeen unable to contact by radio.

"He reported that all he could see was Viet Cong. Seconds later we were over the second target and fired our remaining ammunition."

Dixon's ship returned to its base, reloaded the aircraft and returned to the still beseiged post.

They spent the next two hours firing at the enemy around the Allied post until the Viet Cong retreated.

Sgt. Dixon's wife, Jane, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Doaval of 41 Bernard street, Newton.

Electronic Vote Procedure To Be Given 2nd Look

An investigation and study of the electronic voting system used in Newton in the Nov. 7 municipal election will be made by a special five-member legislative committee composed of two State Senators and three representatives.

Representatives Paul F. Malloy and Joseph G. Bradley, both of Newton, who filed the order for the study, were named to the committee by Speaker John F. X. Davoren. Malloy will serve as House chairman of the committee.

Malloy and Bradley said they sought the study because many people, including candidates, expressed disappointment with the delays in counting the votes on election night after the polls closed.

The only President of the United States who did not live in Washington, D. C., was George Washington.

Development. He is also chairman of a UN panel that is studying ways to ease the world's growing shortage of edible protein.

During the past year, he has been chairman of two major international conferences, one on malnutrition and learning, and the other on new ways to produce edible protein.

In 1949, he was invited by the Pan-American Health Organization to set up a nutrition section and to serve as regional advisor in nutrition for the Americas. This led to the establishment of the Institute of Nutrition of Central America and Panama, better known as INCAP.

Dr. Scrimshaw served as director for nearly 12 years. During this time, he guided the development of Incaparina, a low-cost protein-rich food supplement used in the feeding of pre-school children.

Dr. Scrimshaw received a doctorate in physiology from Harvard in 1941 and a degree i n medicine from the University of Rochester in 1945. He later returned to Harvard to earn a Master's degree in public health.

As a nutrition scientist, he has published more than 200 papers and has received numerous awards for his research contributions in the area of nutrition and development.

vealing that no report had been received from the State Police laboratory in regard to debris sent there for analysis. The cause of the blaze has not yet been determined.

The State Fire Marshal's office is called to investigate a fire when local fire officials cannot determine the cause and/or origin of the blaze, or they suspect it is of incendiary nature.

The fire of Tuesday, Nov. 21, started in the lounge on the third floor of Building 3 at the school. According to police and fire officials, it began in several wooden closet and lockers which stored student supplies.

Rags that had been used to refinish a piano in the lounge were stored in the closet and Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins said his investigators were looking into the possibility the fire was caused by spontaneous combustion.

Perkins said that walls, window sills and the ceiling were damaged, and adjacent rooms on the floor suffered smoke damage.

The blaze was discovered by a school secretary, Mrs. Winifred Geiger, when she entered the lounge. She instructed a passing student, Alan Glickman, to pull the fire alarm.

The school was evacuated for a short period of time until firemen arrived and the flames were extinguished. Classes resumed immediately thereafter.

After a series of three fires of suspicious origin last February, Mayor Monte G. Basbas offered a reward of $200 for information leading to the arrest of the person or persons responsible.

At that time, a Newton high school student was questioned at length about the fires. Two other students were also regarded as "suspects."

The first blaze broke out in a small room on the fourth floor of Building 1 on Feb. 2, which at the time was being used by the staff of the "Newtonite," the student newspaper.

The second fire occurred at 10:38 a.m. on Feb. 15 in a third-floor guidance counselor room, temporarily being utilized by the "Newtonite" staff because of the first fire.

The third fire was at 9:26 a.m., Thursday, Feb. 16, in a science room in Building 2 at the high school.

Police theorized then that it was highly improbable that anyone walked in off the street and started any of the fires.

God The Cause And Creator Is Lesson Sermon

"God the Only Cause and Creator," is the subject of the Sunday Lesson Sermon in all Christian Science churches.

The Responsive Reading includes this verse from Isaiah: "Lift up your eyes on high, and behold who hath created these things, that bringeth out their host by number: he calleth them all by names by the greatness of his might, for that he is strong in power: not one faileth."

"De Gaulle can't be all wrong," a headline in a Boston daily newspaper declared on Tuesday of this week.

It would not seem that he could, but he made a pretty good attempt at it in his press conference Monday.

Before he concluded his remarks he managed to antagonize the people of the United States, Great Britain, Canada and Israel.

Reports have been circulated since Great Britain devalued the pound that President de Gaulle might put pressure on the American dollar by demanding U.S. gold in return for all the American dollars in the possession of his government.

Whether he will do that is uncertain, but his statements on Monday were construed as coming very close to a declaration of "financial war" against both the United States and Britain.

While Mr. de Gaulle denied that France is responsible for the run on the dollar and the pound during the past fortnight, the facts are that he did launch a bitter attack upon the dollar and that there was hectic gold-buying in Paris.

Since President de Gaulle is attempting to embarrass the United States, President Johnson certainly should consider the advisability of relieving the de Gaulle government of some of the American dollars it reportedly would like to exchange for gold.

Before we give Mr. de Gaulle as much as a $5 gold piece, we should call in our outstanding loans to France and insist that it pay the money it owes us. It would be unfair to the American people to do anything else.

Unfinished Business

Time is running out on the Massachusetts Legislature. Indications are that the present legislative session will continue right up to the time the new one begins on Jan. 3.

A serious danger exists that a number of important matters will die without action by the State's lawmakers if that happens.

Measures on the agenda still facing the legislators include the important tax program, auto insurance changes, revisions in the liquor law, civil service reform and the plan for a new sports stadium.

Too much time already has been spent on talking about the need for a stadium, and too little action has been taken to meet that need.

If Boston is to remain a major league city from a sports standpoint, a new stadium must be built as quickly as possible.

The hard fact is that we can't afford not to build a stadium.

Earlier in the year, the Legislature enacted a new law providing that the Commonwealth next July 1 would assume the welfare costs now borne by the cities and towns.

But so far the same Legislature has balked at providing the necessary funds to carry out that law.

A tax plan submitted by Governor Volpe was turned down by the House Ways and Means Committee and then returned to that committee by the House. That, of course, accomplished nothing.

A chaotic situation will exist unless either the Volpe tax program or some substitute tax plan is approved.

Revisions in the liquor laws have been proposed which would mean lower prices for purchasers.

We have in Massachusetts an absurd law providing that liquor store operators cannot sell their wares below fixed prices set by the State Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission.

Public funds are spent for the employment of investigators whose duty is to see that the public does not get a bargain when buying a bottle of whisky.

Most stores get around the law by selling below the fixed price to regular customers whom they know.

The law should be repealed, but so far there has been little disposition by the law-makers representing the public to wipe it out.

Changes have been advocated in the State automobile insurance law. Governor Volpe proposed a financial liability law. A Brookline legislator advanced another plan. A third plan has been worked out by a legislative committee.

So far, however, nothing has been accomplished toward solving this problem, and fears are growing that nothing will be accomplished during this legislative session.

These are only a few of the matters pending before the Legislature as it moves toward the final month of the year. They certainly are matters which should be acted upon and settled before the Legislature goes into a new session and starts deliberations on thousands of new bills.

Political Highlights

Collins' popularity in his home city has declined to some extent in the closing stages of his administration. This was reflected when he was defeated last year by ex-Governor Endicott Peabody in a fight for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senator.

That will be true of any man who serves more than four consecutive years as Mayor of Boston. Indeed, it has been true in the past of most men who served only a single term as the Hub's chief municipal executive.

The suprising thing really is not that Collins in eight years has lost some of the popularity he once enjoyed but rather that he has retained as much as he has.

Collins was strictly a no-nonsense Mayor. He faced tough problems. He made hard decisions. And he didn't weigh the cost to his own popularity in making them.

The grievances against Collins involve little things, many of them stemming from his strong conviction that he had to hold down the tax rate if Boston was to avoid financial disaster.

John Collins won national acclaim and applause for the big things he accomplished.

But the little things he felt either had to be done or couldn't be done gradually eroded his popularity with a segment of Boston's voters.

Mayor Collins will leave a much different Boston — a much stronger and more vibrant city — than the one he took over at the start of 1960.

John B. Hynes, who preceded Collins, was an outstanding Mayor, in the judgment of this observer. He conceived the great Prudential development and the Government Centre in what was once notorious Scollay Square. He set the machinery in motion to make them possible.

But it was Collins who carried the plans to realization and fullfilment. It was under Collins that towering skyscrapers reached upward and that the great change occurred in Boston's skyline.

And it was under Collins that Boston gradually commanded new attention and respect across the United States and even in foreign nations.

Prudential Centre and Government Centre are now taken for granted. They were only dreams and hopes eight years ago — dreams and hopes which were not achieved without overcoming many problems.

Thousands of new jobs have been created in Boston during the past eight years. They were filled not only by Hub residents but also by many persons residing in suburban communities who benefited because John Collins was Mayor of Boston.

The so-called ghetto in the Negro section of Roxbury has been largely wiped out while Collins has been Mayor. Dilapidated, run down old houses have been replaced by modern new dwellings. Many homes have been rehabilitated.

In 1963, Collins' fourth year as Mayor, Boston was rated by Look Magazine as an "All America City."

In 1964, his fifth year in office, Harvard University conferred an honorary degree upon John F. Collins. It was the first time a Mayor of Boston had been so honored. The citation which went with the degree said: "He has given the old Hub a new spin." And, indeed he had.

There were complaints under Collins about the caliber of the performance of some municipal services. Some of them, doubtless, were justified.

One thing Collins did, however, was to achieve a degree of efficiency in plowing and removing snow which never before had been achieved in Boston. That, too, is now taken for granted.

Whether Collins placed too much emphasis on holding down the tax rate and made a political mistake in resisting as firmly as he did the requests and demands that he spend public funds more freely, are questions on which history in time will judge.

Collins must have shuddered at times during Boston's preliminary mayoralty campaign and wondered where the money would come from to pay the bills as he read of the open-handed promises and pledges by candidates, competing for the favor of the voters, to provide super services for the people of the city.

(A decision Mayor-elect Kevin White must make is whether the people who ask for deluxe service from Boston's municipal government will be willing to pay for it.)

A feeling exists that Collins' retirement from public life will be a temporary one although Collins himself has intimated otherwise.

Not many public officials can match either his administrative ability or his willingness to stand up to the toughest problems. His personal integrity and courage are unquestioned.

Collins presently has no thought of ever running again for public office. His political goal was a seat in the U. S. Senate which eluded him last year.

He was not interested in being Governor. If he had been, he could have had the nomination in 1962.

Right now he is feeling the strain of eight hard, punishing years as Mayor, one of the toughest of public offices.

But he has held public office for 21 of the past 22 years. He may or may not adjust easily to the shift to private life.

It's quite possible, however, that as the great magnitude of Collins' achievements as Mayor of Boston is more clearly recognized with the passing time so, too, may Collins himself be drawn back to the clamor and combat of the political wars.

It will be interesting to see whether this man with his tremendous drive and his enormous ability will be content indefinitely with the title — Professor John F. Collins.

Need Meaningful Debate On Death Penalty Issue

Whether it will be possible to have a meaningful debate on the advantages and disadvantages of capital punishment in a Presidential year is a matter of great concern to many thoughtful persons.

Under a measure enacted by the Legislature and signed into law by Governor Volpe, the death penalty issue will be on the ballot in Massachusetts next November, and the voters of the State will be asked to record themselves for or against capital punishmnt.

While the vote on the referendum technically will not be binding on the Legislature, the fact is that most Senators and Representatives will rightfully consider that they should be bound by the expression of sentiment of the people who elect them.

If the voters of Massachusetts favor the abolition of capital punishment, there is scant doubt that the Legislature will react by wiping it out.

On the other hand, if the people record themselves in support of the death penalty, not only will it be retained, but the likelihood is that the electric chair would be put back in use.

So the vote which will be cast next November on the capital punishment referendum will, indeed, be an extremely important one.

Unfortunately, that vote will be partly shaped by emotions rather than calm, sober judgment.

The question of retaining or repealing the death penalty is one on which people on each side of the issue have strong and deep convictions.

Such persons already know how they're going to vote on the matter next November. Nothing that is said between now and then would influence them or change their minds.

In between the two extremes, however, are a large number of men and women who are not certain in their own minds whether the law allowing the death penalty in Massachusetts is a good or bad one.

It is these people who probably will determine the trend of the capital punishment vote.

To most of them it will narrow down to the simple issue of whether the death penalty is a deterrent to crimes of violence.

Most people recoil at the thought of taking the life of another human being even though he is a convicted murderer.

But a good percentage of them, nevertheless, would vote to keep the death penalty if they were convinced that there are fewer murders because of it.

There are experts who have studied this subject even though all of them may not reach the same conclusion.

Debates between experts who take opposing positions on the issue should and presumably will be held before next year's Presidential election.

The question is whether they'll receive the attention they should get in a Presidential campaign.

It has been suggested that clubs and groups planning speaking programs during the coming year might consider sponsoring such debates in order to promote a greater public understanding of the basic issues involved in the capital punishment referendum.

That would seem to be an excellent idea.

Newton Sealer Bowen Is Featured In 2 Articles

J. Ellis Bowen, Sealer of Weights and Measures of the City of Newton, during November, has been featured in two widely circulated publications, in "Yankee Grocer" a 26,000 circulation newspaper circulated to both the retail trade and wholesalers as well as to many manufacturers and advertisers of grocery and market items throughout the New England district, and in a special newsletter published in Washington by Scale Manufacturers Association for nationwide circulation to weights and measures officials.

A three column special feature article entitled "Weighing Errors Are Costly" in Yankee Grocer cites Sealer Bowen's views relative to economies not fully utilized in marketing and stresses observations and advice to vendors. "The most important cause of weighing errors," Sealor Bowen states, "is the degree of apathy, or lack of understanding, upon the part of some management, with reference to the importance of a multiplicity of small weighing errors, and this applies equally to profits, and can be the difference between a profitable and an unprofitable operation. This department discovered an error of 1/20th of a pound in the operation of a scale used for the weighing of the metal tantalum worth $80.00 per pound --an error of $4.00 each time the scale was used." Mr. Bowen advised that all larger chain operations would do well to have Departments of Quantity Control under a competent director, stressed the importance of accurate receiving department scales, saying, "One can't sell at a profit what he has not received, and he cannot operate at a profit if he doesn't receive that for which he pays." With reference to rising costs frequent instore checkweighing is "definitely good practice, and rising costs have enhanced the necessity for such practice."

A newsletter of six pages addressed to weights and measures officials across the nation, pulished last week by Scale Manufacturers Association in Washington in the interests of encouraging improved communication between weights and measures officialdom and those to whom the service is related, growers, manufacturers, processers, wholesalers, retailers and ultimate consumers, states: "This issue will cite good public relations examples prepared by J. Ellis Bowen, City Sealer of Weights and Measures of Newton, Massachusetts. Working on a tight budget, Sealer Bowen has, over the years, let not only the people of Newton, but the whole scale and weights and measures fraternity know that there is a Newton, Massachusetts." Following are pages of examples of special feature releases, etc., for local usage such as newspaper quotes from Newton's Annual Departmental Reports that "a 2% error in quantity determinations in the items of food, gasoline, and fuel oil, exclusive of all other types of merchandise, would, annually, in Newton, result in losses of over $1 million," and cites the value of lecturing to school classes, and other public relations projects.

Sealer Bowen, frequently quoted in weights and measures professional journals and other publications, and who has lectured on weights and measures administration in many States of the eastern seaboard, is a member of both the Massachusetts and Federal Bars. He has headed Newton's Weights and Measures Department for eighteen years, is a Past President of the Massachusetts Weights and Measures Association and Immediate Past Chairman of the National Conference on Weights and Measures sponsored by the National Bureau of Standards and from which association he has received two citations "In appreciation for service rendered to weights and measures administration nationally."

Friends In Need

Editor of The Graphic:

I want to compliment the group of Boston College students who helped push cars up a very difficult portion of Commonwealth avenue adjacent to their campus during the recent snow storm.

I'm sure many drivers would have had to abandon their vehicles if these young men hadn't come to their rescue.

They are a credit to a fine university.

Very truly yours,

Host Families Sought Here For Families

Newton families willing to be hosts to foreign students during the next year may make application to the Newton Chapter of the American Field Service.

The teen agers will arrive in July and stay approximately one year, attending one of the city's high schools.

The AFS program strives to further international understanding by bringing students here to live as members of American families and by sending American youth abroad.

To be eligible for the program, foreign students must complete a stern competitive process. Family interests and backgrounds are carefully examined to provide the proper placement.

In order for Newton residents to be eligible to become AFS parents, a couple must have a child of high school age living at home. This year there are two AFS students in Newton. In 1966 there were four who made the Garden City their home.

The prime responsibility for the host family in Newton is to provide food and shelter for the AFS child. His overseas transportation costs, medical care, and a modest allowance are provided through AFS.

Interested families may contact Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Berman, of 30 Ellis Rd., West Newton, or Mr. and Mrs. George Rautenberg, 70 Neshobe Rd., Waban.

Rep. Malloy On Committee To Study Dam

Rep. Paul Malloy of Newton was appointed this week by House Speaker John F. X. Davoren to the special commission which will make an investigation and study relative to the construction of a dam across the Charles River.

The special commission will consist of one member of the Senate, three members of the House of Representatives, the commissioner of the Metropolitan District Commission or his designee and the executive vice president of the Massachusetts Tax Payers Federation, or his designee.

In addition two persons will be appointed to the commission by Gov. John A. Volpe.

Newtonite At "Dyslexia" Clinic In N.Y.

Judith Winograd, of 14 Whitney road, Newtonville, participated recently in an all-day symposium on "dyslexia"—reading difficulties of children with good intelligence and clear vision. The symposium was conducted by the Optometric Center of New York at the New York Hilton Hotel.

Parents, educators, optometrists and psychologists are becoming increasingly concerned over dyslexia, which is estimated to affect one out of ten school children and lead progressively to underachievement, dropping out and delinquency.

More than 1000 optometrists, physicians, teachers, school officials and psychiatrists from Maine to South Carolina attended. Dr. Alden N. Haffner, executive director of the Optometric Center of New York, chaired the symposium which was one of a series conducted by the non-profit research, teaching and clinical institution.

Indian Dances For Pack 316 By Norumbegans

Under the direction of Robert Burney of Newton Upper Falls, the famed "Order of the Arrow Scouts" from Norumbega Council performed some of their talented Indian dances complete with traditional garb, at the second pack meeting of the year for Pack 316. Cubmaster Carl Hershfield welcomed Mr. Harold Perry, district commissioner, who spoke to the group.

Two year service stars were awarded to: Robert Hershfield, Brian Kelly, Scott Pohlman, Gregory Fitzgerald, Mark Fallon, Jeff Banks, Kevin Doyle, Peter Jerome, Richard Raum, Philip Singer, Stuart Hurwitz, and Ricky Cohen.

Beth Israel Reaches Halfway Point In Drive

Newton residents Mrs. Isadore Slotnick and Dr. Elliot L Segall served as co-chairmen for Beth Israel's Presidential Ball last Sunday when announcement was made that the institution has raised 50 percent of its goal in the Golden Anniversary Development program. Three new buildings are planned.

Stanley H. Feldberg of Wellesley Hills, General Chairman of the drive, told more than 400 guests at the Statler Hilton Hotel that the campaign has thus far received 346 pledges for a total of $4,320,437 toward its goal of $8,700,000.

The Hospital seeks to construct the eight-story Feldberg Building, which will contain 160 additional beds, the Slosberg - Landay Research Center with 40 medical-surgical laboratories, and the George Sherman Clinical Research and Therapy Building for diagnostic and therapy programs.

A salute to retiring President Samuel L. Slosberg, and the newly elected President, Irving W. Rabb, was a highlight of the Ball. Mr. Slosberg served as President from 1964 to 1967. The assemblage also paid tribute to nine newly elected Honorary Trustees with a combined total of 300 years of service to the Hospital. They were Irwin Benjamin, Abraham Berkowitz, Max Feldberg, Joseph M. Linsey, Sidney R. Rabb, Isidor Slotnik, S. Robert Stone, Benjamin Ulin and F. Frank Vorenberg. Each man received a Certificate of Honorary Trusteeship for Life.

In making his report, Mr. Feldberg stressed "the truly magnificent response" from Hospital Trustees and other community leaders.

"The results to date offer a favorable commentary on the broad acceptance of our determination to continue to give the Beth Israel Hospital the facilities necessary to maintain its excellence in patient care, teaching, and research, and to attract the finest physician-scientists to these programs," Mr. Feldberg declared. "With the continued support of the community, we shall bring the Hospital to even greater achievements in the years ahead."

Robin Gets Kudos

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — The Audubon Society of New Hampshire recently applauded the female robin for its capacity to lay eggs. The Society said one robin laid 13 eggs one spring, "a heroic effort which cannot be appreciated unless one knows the weight relationship between a robin and her egg."

The female robin weights from 75 to 80 grams and each egg she lays averages seven grams. "Thus," the Society said, "this one bird has laid more than her own weight in eggs."

Mark B. Snyder of Newton, was awarded his varsity football numeral recently according to an announcement by Director of Athletics Daniel K. Stukey at Bowdoin College. He is among 77 students to receive their letters or numerals there this year.

Lee Loumos Says:

Except in rare cases, there is no substitute for being a winner. The Red Sox and Celtics are excellent examples of the excitement that winning teams can engender and the faltering Patriots are an example of the opposite. The one exception is the Bruins, who seem to have the most loyal following of all, win or lose. Their current success is very gratifying to their loyal fans, but I am sure that even in adversity they would not lose their following. Hockey seems to be the only sport locally where the spectators go to enjoy the play and actions even in defeat, and this is all the more remarkable when you realize that this is contrary to human nature. But when you come right down to it, it really doesn't matter whether you win or lose — it's how you play the game. So, three more cheers for Harvard!

Noted Catholic Writer To Be Temple Events Speaker

PHILIP SCHARPER

Temple Shalom of Newton began its 1967-1968 Adult Education series on November 3, with a discussion on the subject, "Israel and the American Jew". The first speaker, Professor A. V. Levontin of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, currently Visiting Professor at Yale University Law School, spoke from an Israeli point of view.

The second lecture in this series on this subject will be held at the Temple on Friday evening, December 8 at 8:15 p.m. The speaker will be Philip Scharper, noted Catholic writer and educator. Mr. Scharper will view this subject from a Christian vantage point. An informal discussion period will follow the lecture.

Mr. Scharper, editor-in-chief of the publishing house of Sheed & Ward, was formerly an assistant professor of English at Fordham University and an Associate Editor of Commonweal magazine.

He holds a Master of Arts degree in English from Fordham as well as a Master of Arts degree in Education and a Licentiate in Philosophy from Georgetown University.

Mr. Scharper is well-known in Catholic intellectual circles through his articles and book reviews in leading Catholic magazines, as well as through his lectures at Catholic universities throughout the country.

These writings and lectures, reflecting his long-felt concern for better understanding among all religious faiths and his awareness of the need for the combined efforts of all religions in resolving the problems of poverty, bigotry, inferior education, the denial of civil rights and other pressing issues of our day, have attracted wide Protestant, Jewish and secular attention.

Mr. Scharper's experience in working with members of diverse faiths in the United States led to his going to Rome in 1964 to act as a consultant on the Vatican Council Committee formulating Schema XIII, "The Church in the Modern World," and again in 1967 to serve on the Vatican Secretariat for Promoting Christian Unity.

He has made frequent radio and television appearances on such programs as "Look Up and Live," "The Catholic Hour", "The Leading Question", "Directions", "The World of Ideas", "Invitation to Learning", and "Open Mind".

Mr. Scharper has been engaged to prepare scripts for several forthcoming programs on the World Council of Churches, Communism and Christianity, and a History of Man. He will accompany NBC television crews to Geneva, Holland, Germany and Paris to film the first two programs . . . on which he will appear as interviewer . . . and will do research for the third program at the British Museum in London.

In 1966 the Jewish Theological Seminary of New York City awarded him a Fellowship for a visit to the State of Israel. In 1967 he received a D. Litt. degree from St. Benedict's College, Atchison, Kansas.

From 1963 to 1966 he was President of the non-sectarian Religious Education Association of the United States and Canada; at present he is Chairman of the Board of that organization. He is also a trustee of the John XXIII Institute; on the Board of Directors of the Bishops' Commission for Ecumenical Affairs; on the Advisory Committee of the Daughters of Charity, B.V.M., Self-Study for Renewal Program; on the Board of Directors of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and a member of the National Committee for the Support of Public Schools.

Headlights And Highlights From Newton South High

By JAMES SHULMAN

The appointment of two architectural firms was the first step taken by the city of Newton in order to receive the extensive over crowding at Newton South High School.

The announcement came from Mayor Monte G. Basbas. who appointed two architectural firms, Thomas J. Severini Associates and Haldeman and Goranson Associates, to draw the blueprints.

The project is expected to cost two million dollars, and be in full use by 1970. The addition is planned to accommodate five huntred students.

Mr. Severini expressed a desire of "warmth" and "character" for the new addition.

Mr. Severini feels that "the school should be brightened up and have an appealing look, so kids will want to go there." He does not want the students to think of the school as a "factory" and the rooms as "cells".

South is being expanded to alleviate the pressing problems of overcrowding, and lack of classrooms and teachers.

Many technical problems must be completed before the actual construction can begin. First, educational inspectors must examine the situation and decide if the request for expansion is valid. They then turn the necessary specification over to the school commitee, which in urn passes them on to the mayor, who proceeds to choose architects.

From this stage, planning continues for at least two years. The architects must study the school plans and design blueprints for the addition. This itself requires six to ten months. It takes another eighteen months of construction before the addition is ready for use.

"Dark of the Moon" was brighter than many expected, due to spectacular performances by Jerry Mann and Debby Platt.

Jerry, John the Witch Boy, who was turned human by the Conjur Women, Ellen Model, portrayed his part superbly. When human he showed love and emotional desire for the lovely Barbara Allen, and when turned back into a witch because Barbara had failed him, he showed his ruthleses attitude by brutally kicking Barbara off the mountain.

Debbie, portrayed the part of the beautiful and charming Barbara Allen. After marrying John, she tried without success to convince herself hat John was not a witch, where she showed her great love and faith to the person she loved. And Debbie's moving song, "The Ballad of Barbara Allen", was the highlight of the evening.

The other outstanding performers in the play are: Conjur Man, Andrew Krinsky; The Dark Witch, Deborah Levy; The Fair Witch, Laurie Zallen; Conjur Woman, Ellen Modell; Hank Gudoer, Steve Sacks; Miss Metcalf. Carrie Gershman; Uncle Smelicue, Larry Kaplan; Mrs. Summey, Rhonda Blair; Edna Summey, Andrea Bryant; Mr. Atkins, Kirk Pantos; Mrs. Bergen, Mary Ann Juillerat; Burt Dinwitty, Stephen Kaye; Hattie Hefner, Leslie Filurin; Mr. Bergen, Jerome Altman; Mr. Summey, Bill Oser; Pearl Pettybone, Nancy Megrian; Nate Abercrombie, Mark Ochs; Marvin Hudgens, Herbert Lustig; Mrs. Allen, Ruth MacCloskey; Mr. Allen, Stanley Schertzer; Preacher Haggler, Harris Gershman; Greeny Gorman, Nancy Tobin; Belle Hazelton, Patti Conich.

Much of the credit for the success of the play should be given to the stage crew, who were responsible for the construction of the original staging and the eerie background music.

And heaps of praise given to Mr. Ernest Chamberlain, director of the play, and head of the Theatrer Arts department, also to production manager Linda Gershman, Lucy Sollogub, junior apprentice; and Deborah Rosenthal, sophomore apprentice, who work so hard behind the scenees.

Nancy Kaplan, Denebola Associate Editor, is Newton South's WBZ reporter.

Nancy along with the other school reporters are to "write news stories about their schools, and its people and the relationship of the school to the neighborhood. The best stories will be read on the air. The reporters will also write and tape a story.

At the Awards Banquet in May, three $500 savings bonds will be presented to the three reporters, who on the basis of the quality of their reports, their tape, and interest, are the most outstanding of the group. "Every student will receive a plaque recognizing his contributions as a WBZ reporter.

Reflections, Newton South's literary magazine is "reborn."

Peter Baginsky, an organizer of the magazine, said "there will be no official staff this year, but rather a combined effort from the members of the magazine and the student contributers."

The staff is going to have regular meeting to discuss the articles received and decide which stories and literature are to be published.

Reflections accepts most all kinds of literature from the students such as: art, essays, humor. photographs, poems, satire, and short stories.

Both are also serving as volunteer solicitors in the Special Gifts Division of the $100,000 drive. Sundell is a member of the Temple Mishkan Tefila Committee and Baron is chairman of the Temple Kehillath Israel campaign.

Highlight of the dinner program will be the presentation by Senator Abraham Ribicoff of Founders Plaques to the leaders who have demonstrated outstanding support of the Hebrew Day School in its Development Campaign. More than 30 men and women from a number of synagogues and temples have enrolled as Founders in the three week old drive.

"As our campaign organization accelerates its pace, with solicitations meetings scheduled for every major congregation in Greater Boston, we are confident that we well exceed our projection of 50 Founders in the Special Gifts phase of the Development Campaign", exulted general chairman Irving Shapiro.

Designated as Founders are those who contribute a minimum of $1,000 to the Development Campaign. Patrons and sponsors of the campaign also will receive special citations acknowledging their support of the drive.

Pace setters for the campaign, which is being conducted principally through campaign organizations in the 28 Conservative Congregations in Greater Boston, is Temple Emeth of South Brookline, which reported contributions of more than $10,000 at the first campaign report meeting. Temple Emeth chairman Maurice Cohen expects to surpass the congregational quota by almost 50 per cent.

Temple Kehillath Israel of Brookline has scheduled its Special Gifts meeting on behalf of the Development Campaign for Sunday, December 3, under the leadership of Rabbi Manuel Saltzman. Assisting Chairman Baron in the Kehillath Israel drive is William Weiner.

Sherry Shenanigans

LONDON (UPI)—When is sherry sherry? When it comes from Spain by ruling of the British High Court.

Three British sherry producers petitioned for the right to call their product simply "sherry" since they'd been making it for more than 100 years. But they were opposed by Spanish sherry shippers who said the only true sherry comes from the Jerez de la Frontera district of Spain.

The British court concurred with the Spaniards and said the home-produced sherry must continue to be labeled "British sherry." The Spaniards objected even to that, but were over-ruled.

Mental Health Center Among Nation's Best

Dr. William Stone, director of the Netwon Mental Health Center, presented the following progress report at the Board of Directors annual meeting:

"As we complete the second full year of operation of the Newton Mental Health Center, we look back on a period of rapid growth and development of a facility that already enjoys an enviable reputation in the City, in the Commonwealth, and in the Nation. I know of no other community agency that has been afforded a better reception during its initial phases of development.

"But now we stand on the threshold of a new era in Mental Health Services in Massachusetts, and the future of this Clinic in relation to state-wide and nation-wide programs must receive our very careful consideration.

"Our membership in the American Association of Psychiatric Clinics for Children has been the first step in our participation at the national level.

"During this past year, we have continued to provide direct clinical services to children and their families as well as extensive consultation services to others who are engaged in child care. Direct services:

New Intake 150; Diagnostic Work Completed 75; Currently in Treatment 21; Treatment Waiting List 7; Referred to Family Service 5; Referred to Private Psychiatrist 5; Referred to Other Clinics or Hospital 3; Referred for Tutoring 6; Diagnostic only 28.

One Interview Consultation 15; On Diagnostic Waiting List 20; Dropped out after initial call or before completion of diagnostic 40; Ongoing Treatment (from previous years) 42.

Summary:

Diagnostic Work 75; Treatment 64; Intake Involvement 75; Clinic Involved with Families this year 214.

Plus follow-up study of 215 families who have used or are currently using clinic service.

"An analysis of these statistics reveals that the greatest number of patients coming to the Clinic utilize diagnostic or consultation services. Most of our communication with schools, physicians, hospitals, and social agencies is with this group. Approximately one-half of our referrals come from the schools. The drop-out rate is lower for these referrals than for referrals from other sources. This confirms our recognition of the Newton schools' careful work evaluation and preparation.

"Consultation and training programs that were initiated in 1965 and 1966 have continued, and new programs have been added.

"We have continued our pre-doctoral training programs in psychology and our student placement program in social work. This year we have doctoral candidates in psychology from Harvard, Boston University, and Boston College. Our students in social work come from Boston University. We also have continued to provide regular consultation and seminars for public health nurses, special tutors in the School Department, teachers of the emotionally disturbed, and teachers of the retarded.

"Of particular note is the extensive mental health program begun at the Burr School. With the excellent cooperation of the Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Charles Brown, and the principal of the Burr School, Mr. Clarence Truesdell, the Newton Mental Health Center has concentrated particular effort in this one school to determine the most effective utilization of professional skills in a public school.

"The principal focus of the work has been to help the teachers to be more alert and more capable in dealing with the emotional problems of the average child in an average classroom. A psychiatrist has regular weekly meetings with the teaching staff to discuss any areas of concern about particular children, groups of children or more general matters concerning emotional development.

"The Chief Social Worker has regular discussion meetings with groups of parents and is currently concentrating on the parents of kindergarten children to assist in the first transition from home to school. A psychologist regularly visits the various classrooms in order to observe the children in their usual setting. This helps to provide the teacher with another view of the children and his or her relationship to them.

"The personnel of both the school and the Center feel that this is an outstanding project and we have requested federal funds through the National Institute of Mental Health to continue this program for another three years.

"In April, 1967 the Center, in cooperation with the Newton School Department and the Harvard School of Education held a two-day institute on the Education of the Emotionally Disturbed Child. This institute was financed by a federal grant from N. I. M. H. Educators and Mental Health professionals were invited from every school system and training center in the Commonwealth. The attendance and reception were of such significance that we have agreed to organize another institute in the Spring of 1968.

"As a part of the Careers in Social Work Program the Newton Mental Health Association provided a summer of training and experience for two undergraduate students. Their project was to conduct a telephone survey of all families who had been involved with the Center from September of 1965 until June of 1967.

"They were able to contact 215 families and obtain pertinent information regarding the child's current adjustment and the parents' attitudes toward their contact with the Clinic. Parents were also asked how they felt we could improve our Clinic services. The material obtained from this study has been very valuable in assessing the effectiveness of our work and in indicating areas in which future studies should be conducted.

"The Center staff also has endeavored during the year to assist citizen groups who are working in the area of child and family care. These have included Project Headstart, the Assn. for Children with Learning Disabilities, the newly formed Newton Chapter of the Boston Assn. for Retarded Children. This latter group recently sent representatives along with Senator Beryl Cohen and State Representatives Mann and Fishman to meet with the Commissioner of Mental Health in regard to a nursery school program for retarded children.

"The outcome of this meeting was that with sufficient cooperation from our community, we can look forward to the possibility of a preschool program for retarded children in Newton by September of 1968. The Center will then be responsible for pupil selection, parent counselling and over-all professional supervision of the program.

"In December 1966 the Legislature enacted into law an act establishing a comprehensive program of mental health and mental retardation services for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. This Act provides for the establishment of a comprehensive community mental health center in each of the 27 areas of the State, under the direction of a citizen board appointed by the Commissioner of Mental Health.

"This act of legislation can be expected to have a great impact on the future development of this Clinic. Since the towns of Wellesley and Weston are included in our area, it is important that we consider them and enlist their co-operation in plans for the future expansion of our services and staff. Although the legislation forces us to consider modifying some of our original objectives, the quality of professional care available to the citizens of Newton need not suffer. Indeed, the legislation enables us to consider a greatly enriched program of psychiatric services with the help of state and federal grants.

"The success of this venture, however, will be greatly dependent upon the continued support and interest of the Officers and Board of Directors of the Newton Mental Health Assn. The new law may offer us direction and structure but the sine qua non of any successful community program is an active and interested community."

At the conclusion of the meeting President Edwin Hawkridge announced the election of Mrs. Ethel Sheehan as Clerk of the corporation to replace a vacancy. He also pointed up the need for broader financial support from the community in order to continue and enlarge the programs outlined by Dr. Stone.

LOCAL PLANNERS — Barbara Johanson, of 416 Newtonville Ave., Newtonville; and David Blomberg, 66 Stratford Rd., West Newton, discuss plans for Aquilo Club's Jul-Bal Luciafest. Miss Johanson is program chairman, Mr. Blomberg, head usher.

Jul-Bal Luciafest For Swedish Home For Aged

Barbara Johanson of 416 Newtonville Avenue, Newtonville and David Blomberg of 66 Stratford Road, West Newton are actively involved in the planning of the Nineteenth Jul-Bal Luciafest which will be held at the Sheraton-Plaza in Boston, Friday evening, December 8.

This Christmas Ball-Bride of Light Ceremony is presented each year by the Aquilo Club, Junior League of the Swedish Charitable Society of Greater Boston, to raise funds for the Swedish Home for the Aged, 206 Waltham Street, West Newton.

Miss Johanson is the Program Chairman for this year's Jul-Bal and is the president of the Aquilo Club. Mr. Blomberg is the Head Usher for the Bal and is the Treasurer for the Aquilo Club.

Guest of Honor at the Bal will be Arthur E. Engdahl of Needham Consul of Sweden in Boston.

All single girls of Swedish descent between the ages of 17 and 21 are invited to register for the Lucia Bride Contest between 7:30 and 8 p.m. at the registration table in the Ballroom. A panel of judges will select the seven finalists who, in their opinion, best exemplify Lucia a medieval Swedish saint. The judges will be: Rear Admiral Roy Benson, Commander of the 1st Naval District. He is a 1929 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Maryland.

He served in the Pentagon for five years. He has been awarded the Legion of Merit, the Commendation Ribbon and the Presidential Unit Citation with two stars. Another judge will August A. Calen Jr., past president of the Aquilo Club; also Shelby Scott, WBZ-TV Newsgirl.

The program beginning at 8 p.m., will highlight a dance exhibition by the Swedish Folk Dance Club of Boston and a performance of the acclaimed Mendelssohn Singers. The Chorus of thirty-five male singers are associated with the Trinity Lutheran Church in Worester, Mass. This group has been organized since April 27, 1920 and are now in their 47th year. The director to the chorus is Mr. Oscar V. Gastafson.

Midway through the program, the seven finalists will be escorted to the stage, identically robed in white, and the audience will decide by popular vote who will represent Lucia throughout the Yuletide season.

At the conclusion of the program, Consul Engdahl will present the Lucia Procession with the Ballroom in hushed darkness, the six finalists carrying candles, will proceed to the stage, followed by the 1967 Lucia Bride, wearing the traditional crown of ivy with lighted candles and carrying a beautiful silver tea service symbolizing her service to the needy.

She will receive a dazzling array of gifts presented by the 1966 Lucia Bride, Karen Sarkala of Worcester, Mass. Scandinavian and American dancing will follow, with music provided by the Lundin Brothers' Orchestra.

The tradition of the Luciafest, highlight of the year for New England's many Swedes and those interested in Swedish customs, goes back into Swedish legendary history. Lucia was a medieval saint who carried food and drink to hungry folk in the province of Varmland during periods of famine.

Because she was seen crossing a lake clothed in white with a crown of light encircling her head, the modern Lucia also dresses in white and wears a crown with lighted candles.

The Swedish Christmas (JUL) begins December 13, known as Lucia Day. Early in the morning at first cock crow, households throughout Sweden are awakened by a "Lucia". She is usually the eldest daughter of a family, dressed in the traditional white robe with crimson ash, wearing a crown with lighted candles.

It is customary for her to carry a tray with coffee and special saffron buns to each one in the family as she serenades him with the lovely old Sicilian melody, "Santa Lucia."

Today Lucia appears not only in homes, but also in schools, offices, hospitals orphanges, and other public buildings to open the Yuletide, She also visits those who are ill, poor, or lonely, as the medieval Lucia is said to have done. Many towns and cities throughout Sweden plan a special Lucia celebration and choose a local Bride of Light (Lucia) to reign during the festivities. She is often assisted by star bearers, costumed traditionally, and carrying star-tipped wands.

The public is cordially invited to attend this unique evening of festivities at the Sherton-Plaza, Decemeber 8, Friday evening. Dress is optional, and tickets may be purchased at the door.

Former Resident Here Is Author Of Travel Volume

Mrs. Doris Sawyer Smith, who has wintered for many years in Newton, is the author for a volume entitled TRAVELS WITH A COLLIE. Mrs. Smith, wife of the late Dr. Edwin W. Smith, has traveled extensively during the past several years.

Actually, much of the United States is the regional background of Mrs. Smith's volume, with views and people, animals and occassions. Her story begins in Roswell, New Mexico, where she picks up her pet Border Collie, Vally.

There the two adventurers thread their way through New Mexico, Texas and Arkansas, to evenually wind their way back to New England. But what makes this unusual reading is Mrs. Smith's detailed account of the customs of the people ininhabiting each area through which she and Vally travel, plus her fascinating anecdotes about little-known tourist spots.

A combination travelogue and geography book, TRAVEL WITH A COLLIE, which was published by the Naylor Company of San Antonio, Texas, is also a volume of some historical note, for into it has gone diligent research which the author has recorded with a perceptive eye.

Dr. Smith practiced medicine in a town called Quitaque, Texas (pronounced Kittykway). During this portion of the book the author's humor, affection for animals, and compassion for people comes to light.

Due to the doctor's failing health, the family was forced to leave West Texas. Here we find pathos, for Mrs. Smith not only loses her beloved husband but also, eventually Vally.

While recording the history of some of the places through which she travels, Mrs. Smith delves deeply into the lives of the residents and discovers the origins of many of the settlements. Her accounts of the pioneers, some of which go far back into the 1800's, are intelligible and distinctive, and there is an abundance of folklore that has been gathered about each site which she visits.

Mrs. Smith's great loves are her dogs. Besides traveling, the author enjoys shellrock hunting, golf, skating, horseback riding, and playing tennis. Although her background is strictly New England, the author finds historical interest in every part of the United States, especially in the Southwest. Many of her articles have appeared in newspapers throughout the country and her photographs have been exhibited at the Gertrude Herbert Institute of Art. Sunday painter and collector of petrified artifacts, Mrs. Smith once drove for the Red Cross Motor Corps, attended Vesper George School of Art in Boston, Abbot Academy in Andover, Massachusetts, and took selected courses at Boston University.

Mrs. Smith also finds time, somehow, to enjoy geology and landscape painting.

Pee-Wee Hockey Gets Off To Fast Start Here; 100 Boys Answer Call

Over 100 boys aged 9-12 from every section of Newton responded to the open invitation to be part of Pee-Wee hockey in the city. The 1967-68 season began Saturday morning at the Reilly Memodial M.D.C. Rink at Cleveland Circle.

Boys will spend the next few sessions undergoing training in the fundamentals of skating and the sport of hockey. Boys will be assigned to teams according to their ability. It is expected that six and possibly eight teams will be developed.

The Newton Pee-Wee Program is unique in the state of Massachusetts. It is directed jointly by the Newton Recreation Department and the Newton Youth Hockey Association. The latter is composed of interested fathers and citizens. The program is nonprofit and will levy assessments to boys only in the amount of costs of the program. The City of Newton Recreation Department has subsidized the ice time.

The program is under the direction of Bill Barry of the Recreation Department and John Hasenfus of the N.Y.-H.A. Assisting Hasenfus, who has the responsibility of developing the "on the ice" program, are Burt Fletcher, Bernie Michaels and Brian Donovan. As the training requires, more men will be assigned. All these men are serving on a volunteer basis.

The City Recreation Department through the cooperation of Commissioner John Penney, and the invaluable advice and experience of Bill Barry, who directed a similar but smaller program almost single handed in past years, has given Pee-Wee hockey in Newton a massive thrust. In most communities hockey at the Pee-Wee level is left to private development and only a few boys can be touched by the thrilling sport.

MORE BOYS NEEDED

The Newton program can use another 20-30 boys who want to play hockey. Interested boys must be between the ages of 9-12 and come to the Cleveland Circle MDC Rink Saturday, December 2, at 7 a.m. or 8 a.m. Boys can then obtain an application blank. They should be accompanied by a parent who must sign the application. A $5 fee per family will be charged.

Applications can also be picked up at the Newton City Hall at the Recreation Department this week and brought to the rink. If boys cannot make the Saturday session, they can register on Sunday, December 3, at the Daly Memorial MDC Rink, Nonantum Rd., Newton-Brighton line, at 7 a.m. or 8 a.m. (The Daly Rink is on the banks of the Charles River). There will be no further registrations after December 3.

It is hoped that an expanded Pee-Wee program this year can push Newton in the direction of many other greater Boston communities who have created a high level of Pee-Wee hockey. As boys leave Pee-Wee, they can go into Bantam hockey and Jr. high school hockey with more experience and athletic maturity.

Newton, under the handicap of being a large city with no artificial ice rink of its own, has been unable to produce a large number of players that can compete on an equal footing with boys from Brookline, Cambridge, Wellesley and other cities and towns.

The "Open Door" policy of the Recreation Department and the Newton Youth Hockey Association will encourage large numbers of youngsters to participate. The "ice time" necessary to provide proper practice and experience will be available to boys who otherwise would have to wait cut the vagaries of nature before they could play hockey.

The Newton Youth Hockey Association is a group of volunteer citizens who have banded together to support and develop hockey programs for young boys. This year the attention is on the Pee-Wee age group.

Next year, based on this year's experience, it is hoped that a Bantam group can be formed for boys who are 13 years to 15 years of age.

The N.Y.H.A. has elected no officers at present but is directed by a Steering Committee. In the Association are: Robert McLaughlin, Chairman; Mel Levison, personnel; John Walsh, Secretary; John Coakley, Treasurer; Frank Hurley, Public Information; and Maurice Reidy, Peter Ryan, Leo O'Connor, Robert Fay, John Alevizos, Charles Chapman, all serving as Advisors and members of the Steering Committee.

The Newton Pee-Wee program has the following hours of ice time assigned: Saturday 7-9 a.m. MDC Rink Cleveland Circle; Saturday 10-12 a.m. St. Sebastian's Outdoor Rink; and Sunday 7-9 a.m. MDC Newton-Brighton Rink on the Charles.

A team of more experienced boys will be selected from all the teams during the season. They will represent Newton in inter city competition.

For further information on the Newton Pee-Wee hockey program contact the Newton Recreation Department at Newton City Hall.

Single Point Gives Towners Series Edge

By STEVE KENDALL

Bob Patenaude's conversion rush following his six-yard touchdown in the fourth period gave Brookline High an 8 to 7 triumph and the series edge, on Thanksgiving Day at muddy Tech Field, Brookline.

Quarterback Reggie Benn had Newton upset-bound with his first-period score, plus John Quigley's extra point kick. But the Wealthy Towners controlled play throughout the second half and sent the Tigers, 3-6 on the year, to their second straight setback by the margin of a conversion.

Brookline's winning scoring drive covered 67 yards in 13 plays. Patenaude, who gained 76 yards, rambled the last six yards through the quagmire off tackle. His conversion run came with less than ten minutes remaining in the game.

The hosts controlled play in the second half as Brookline rolled up eight first downs to none for the Tigers. But in the first two stanzas Newton dominated the action with seven first downs to none for Brookline.

Newton's 54-yard drive to paydirt was highlighted by Robbie Cohen's 29-yard scamper and a 20-yard run by Benn to the winner's one-yard line. The senior signal-caller then plunged over for the score.

Prior to Brookline's touchdown march Benn had intercepted a Rich Moloney pass at the Newton 18-yard marker and returned it to the Wealthy Towners' 48. But a clipping penalty brought the ball back to the Tiger 12 and from that point the Newton attack sputtered. After Newton punted the winners were on their way.

Brookline, in notching its seventh straight victory of the season, ran 42 offensive plays. Newton had 45. Halfback Bill Gardner, the Tigers' "unsung hero," was their prime running threat with 60 yards on 15 carries.

4. "Recent curriculum trends have moved away from using fixed material (text books, wall charts, etc.), to manipulating equipment, handling raw data, learning processes and studying the world outside the school. Furthermore, if students are to have the advantages found in national curriculums, schools will need larger instructional funds.

"We need increases in our instructional, new equipment, and replacement budgets to meet the increasing demands for more and better teaching materials.

5. "Of the nine secondary school buildings now in use, seven were completed before 1932! Despite the efforts of the city to renovate and add to the buildings, the faculties are still constricted by buildings that were designed for the 1930's. Even the newer schools built in 1956 and 1960 restrict faculties that are trying to improve their offerings to students.

"Principals need additional space through the removal of partitions, the installation of movable partitions, the rearrangement of present space allocations, or the rental of additional buildings.

6. "There are special needs among the students, particularly among the culturally disadvantaged. They need specialists to work with them in the fields of reading, visual perception and psychological and vocational counseling. We need the services of specialists to meet the needs of these students."

The report came as the School Committee is deliberating over the budget for the coming year. The pleas of the principals will be weighed by committee members as they decide how much money should be spent for what purposes.

The total package of requests for additional money with the major exception of salaries presented by Superintendent Charles Brown at a recent School Committee meeting amounted to $1,993,000.

The group of secondary school principals attempting to convey what they consider to be urgent, immediate needs for money for more space, materials and staff, went on to relate their own particular problems in their own particular schools.

Newton High School Principal Mechem said that enrollment at that school is expected to increase by at least 100 next year. "That will just about fill the high school to capacity. We can just barely squeeze in the enrollment for one more year," he stated. By capacity the principal meant filling each classroom with as many students as can be accommodated.

William D. Geer, Jr., principal of Newton South High School, noted that the recent tendency of students to take five or more courses has added to the space problems.

For example, he said, the school was designed with nine math teaching stations. There are now 1590 students taking math and 13 teachers are teaching the subject.

He said that the addition of a period to the school day at Newton South has allowed a little more flexibility in class scheduling and has therefore helped to solve the space problem to some extent.

Newton South High School was designed 12 years ago and occupied eight years ago. It was planned to accommodate 1500 students and there are presently nearly 1700 enrolled.

John W. McLeod, principal of Warren Junior High School, told the School Committee that in his crowded building class size cannot necessarily be reduced because of the lack of space. However, he added, that means "we have all the more need for supportive staff." For instance, in remedial English two teachers can work in one classroom with two separate groups of 15 each, he pointed out.

In other, but related action, the School Committee heard requests for $400,000 or 18 percent in increases in non-salary budget items from Assistant Superintendent in charge of Business Administration John E. Gilleland.

Gilleland said that contributing factors to the need for more money are inflationary trends, and new, changing and expanded programs in the schools.

He pointed out that any change in programs means a need for more instructional materials such as books, audio-visual aids, science kits, etc.

For many years the non-salary budget has been merely a subsistence one, Gilleland commented. It has stood still. Good teachers need good teaching tools to do a worthwhile job, he emphasized.

The School Committee will consider his requests along with the others in their budget deliberations. A special meeting will be held next Monday night to continue discussions of non-salaried budget proposals.

In dealing with other matters the committee approved the educational specifications for a new Day Junior High School.

Committeewoman Norma Mintz questioned whether enough room for growth was being allowed in the plans. Day presently has 720 students enrolled. The new school will be built to accommodate 800, according to the specifications.

Frosh Coach At BC Hits Emotion Peak

Bernie Burke, well known Newton druggist and coach of the Boston College freshman hockey team, officiated with his customary efficiency in his role as back judge in the Harvard-Yale football game last Saturday. But on one occasion his emotions got away from him even though Bernie didn't yield to them.

That was when Ken O'Connell of Newton, Crimson fullback who had suffered a broken rib a few plays earlier, fumbled on the Yale 10-yard line in the closing moments of the game. Burke, a friend of the O'Connell family, described his reaction after the game.

"Ken just lay there on the ground—so disappointed," he said. "I saw him lying there, and I felt so bad for him I wanted to go over and pick him up."

O'Donnell, a junior with another year of football at Harvard, couldn't remember how he fumbled as the Crimson was on its way to a possible winning touchdown in the waning seconds of the game. Observers say he was hit hard by a Yale defender and that the pressure on his broken rib apparently caused the crucial fumble.

More the Merrier

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—People who display portrait photographs of family and friends in their home are apt to display more than one.

This is the finding of a recent Eastman Kodak Company research study to determine popular American tastes about decorating with photographic portraiture. Results show 76 per cent of American homemakers display portrait photos. Of these 23 per cent display one or two photographs; 23 per cent, three or four; 21 per cent, five to eight; and 9 per cent nine or more.

Lost Weight Fast

LONDON (UPI) — Customs agents aboard the boat train for Paris thought the passenger looked uncomfortably bulky, and he was. Ivor Bloom, 39, was accused of trying to smuggles $28,000 worth of gold bars out of the country, concealed in a specially made vest.

First Rain's Worst

NEW YORK (UPI) — A hazard of driving is rain, and the most dangerous time is during the first few minutes of a rainstorm. Why?

"Because when water mixes with dirt and oil on the road, the immediate effect is a very slick surface and very little traction," says George Wilson, vice president of C.I.T. Service Leasing Corp. "So be especially careful in your driving at the start of a downpour."

Good Credential

Service arrived to take up his post carrying a spear gun under his arm.

Use Full Address On Overseas Mail

Postmaster Ephraim Martin this week urged Newton residents to be sure to use the correct address on their letters and packages going to servicemen overseas.

The Boston Postmaster said that millions of letters and packages going overseas have been delayed because they were insufficiently addressed. He said that one of the biggest problems has been the failure of persons to include the very important five digit APO or FPO number in the military address.

Martin said mail not containing this number is incorrectly addressed.

The Postmaster said last year more than nine millian pieces of mail were delayed in delivery. Of this number 3½ million failed to include the complete five digit APO or FPO number in the address. Such mail has to be sent to a military locator directory where time consuming searches were made to determine the proper address.

Postmaster Martin told the Graphic:

"As the Christmas mail volume going overseas is expected to increase up to 30 per cent or over four million pounds above last year, every precaution should be taken by friends and relatives of servicemen to address their letters, cards and packages properly to assume rapid delivery to destination.

"There are four essential elements to an overseas military address. They are:

"1. The serviceman's identity, grade, full name and service number.

"2. His military unit—complete.

"3. Gateway post office — New York, San Francisco or Seattle.

"4. APO or FPO — a five digit number.

"When any of these elements is missing, the letter, card or package will be delayed in delivery."

TOY SAFETY

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—Use common sense in purchasing toys for children.

Avoid buying those colored with lead-based paints. It takes only a small amount of lead to kill a small child, warns Rollin Schneider, University of Nebraska Extension safety specialist. Other items to avoid are the flammables, those with sharp edges and loose parts, such as pinned-on eyes and removable wheels.

First Headliner Named In "Celebrities Night" Show

The first headliner for the big 18th annual Celebrities Night stage spectacular of Jewish Memorial Hospital on Sunday, December 10, in Back Bay Theatre was announced today by George Roberts of Newton, general chairman.

Miss Totie Fields, one of today's brightest and most hilarious comediennes, will head the list of stars who will perform to benefit building program of 256-bed center for

Totie is familiar to TV audiences from her many appearances on the Ed Sullivan show over the past three years. She has co-hosted the Mike Douglas Show several times, in addition to being a guest on that program. She is also a favorite on the Merv Griffin Show and Virginia Graham's "Girl Talk."

Night clubs from coast to coast have featured her as headliner, and she has also appeared on BBC-TV.

Born in Hartford, Conn., Totie made her professional debut at age fourteen, as a singer. On her eighteenth birthday she moved to Boston, met comedian George Johnston, and six weeks later began two new careers — as Mrs. Johnston and as a comedienne at her new husband's insistence.

After conquering Boston, Totie and George took their two young daughters to New York, where she acquired a new manager and began her swift climb to fame in the Catskill Mountains.

Celebrities Night is sponsored by the hospital's auxiliaries, including Brookline Auxiliary, Chelsea Auxiliary, Hospital Group, Malden Auxiliary, Men's Associates, North Shore Auxiliary, West End Auxiliary, Young Women's Auxiliary and Evening Auxiliary.

Underhill Helps Push State House Stalled Measures

Robert Underhill, 18 Camden road, Newton, participated in a statewide effort last week to urge legislators to move three housing bills out of the committees they are stalled in.

Two bills are in the House Ways and Means Committee. One calls for a $650,000 appropriation to expand the state's rental assistance program. The other calls for a $300,000 repayable appropriation to operate the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency.

The third bill is in a conference committee between the House and the Senate. It would close a loophole in the laws allowing the withholding of rents to force the repair of substandard housing. The bill would prohibit the eviction of a complaining tenant without cause until the repairs are made and for nine months afterward.

Mr. Underhill was one of 100 persons from 21 cities and towns, representatives of fair housing, welfare and allied organizations throughout the state.

Leaders of the groups met with House Speaker John F. X. Davoren and Senate Majority Leader Kevin B. Harrington. Each gave pledges of support for the bills.

Hospital Plans Approved After Parking Lot Change

The Newton Board of Aldermen at the recent meeting by a 20-0 vote, with four members absent, approved, with conditions, a petition by the Newton - Wellesley Hospital for permission to construct their long-planned new multi-million dollar addition and a new parking area.

As a result of strong neighborhood opposition to the hospital's original plans to bring the new parking area close to Beacon St. in a totally residential section with access from Beacon St., the hospital agreed to keep the parking area 320 feet from Beacon St. and to eliminate access from Beacon St. In addition the level of the parking area will be about six feet lower than that of the land along Beacon St.

Permission was granted by the board for trucks bringing in land fill to enter through Beacon St. from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekdays for a nine-week period during construction.

Claims and Rules Committee Chairman Franklin N. Flaschner pointed out that during construction of the hospital's new wing almost all parking in front of the hospital will be lost. New parking facilities will be needed almost immediately, he said. Construction will take at least a year.

After considerable discussion an amendment offered by Alderman Edward C. Uehlein was accepted. It calls for lights, except for security purposes, in the new parking area to be turned off by 8 p.m.

The new parking area will accomodate 191 cars giving an eventual total of 779 parking spaces at the hospital including those connected with the medical office building.

The aldermen also approved a petition for permission to erect 14 town houses with 24 parking spaces at 66-64 Washington Park. There will be seven units on each side of a private roadway. Flaschner noted that this is the second town house petition approved in the short length of time the new ordinance allowing such construction has been in effect. A third one is presently under consideration.

Denied was a petition by Dr. H. S. Queen for permission to continue operation of a nursery school at 780 Boylston St., Newton Highlands. A nursery school had previously existed at this location but was smaller than the one proposed.

There was considerable opposition to the proposal at a recent public hearing. Residents claimed the school would be a nuisance and would make worse an already bad traffic situation.

In other action the Board unanimously approved an appropriation of $60,000 to pay personnel in connection with collection and disposal of trash. Finance Committee Chairman John Nixon reported that money to pay eight additional workers at the new incinerator was requested when last year's budget was passed.

That was denied because it wasn't known when their services would be needed. When three shifts began operating, they were hired and the additional money was required.

The aldermen also approved a $200 appropriation to advertise nationally in professional journals for a public buildings commissioner to replace Vincent Burns who died recently.

and for snow removal in the winter.

Appropriations from surplus to departments are usually for projects which are cut out of budgets at the beginning of the year.

The Finance Director also announced that preliminary departmental budgets for next year will have to be submitted to the Mayor by Dec. 1.

Marr noted that the preliminary budgets are generally worthless, because they show only what each department spent over a 10-month period, and what it expects to spend the last two months.

He said they are given to the Mayor by Dec. 1 because state law requires that municipalities do so.

The regular budget is submitted to the Mayor in January and is checked thoroughly before given to the Board of Aldermen in March for its approval.

Headlights And Highlights From Newton High School

By KATE SOLOMON

"Keep it clean baby," one sign said. Another: "Thou shalt not litter," and a third: "Patronize our trash cans."

Eight posters in all were scattered around the school. Each propounded a catchy slogan in an attempt to appeal to the students.

The signs were the beginning of the Student Council campaign to keep the grounds of Newton High clean and litterless. The Civics Committee, headed by Marsha Howland and Dale Partoll, is in charge of the campaign.

In the past, privileges have been taken away on account of students' inability to throw their rubbish in waste paper baskets. For example, the Adams and Barry House candy machines were removed two years ago because NHSers threw the wrappers all over the floor.

The Student Council, in addition to its campaign to "Keep America (Newton High) beautiful," will probably contribute to building a school in some foreign country. Newton High School will give between $700 and $1,000 to pay for the school and the Peace Corps will subsidize the rest.

This is the first year NHS has participated in such a program. A member of the Peace Comp came to Newton High a short while ago to show a film on the growth and development of the school building program and to explain the various details.

The Student Council film commission, headed by Neil Cohen, is tentatively planning its first "night at the movies" for Friday, January 19. The movie program will be essentially a W. C. Field's Festival. The two movies to be shown are "My Little Chickadee," and "The Bank Dick."

"The Student Council's effort to bring the Tiger Cage to the students has been very successful," says Council president Bruce Baltimore. Three vending machines; one in building one, one in building two, and one in building three sell the school supplies students usually are lacking, that is notebooks paper, pens, pencils, and refills.

As soon as the first order is completely sold, the school supplies will all have "Newton High School" written on them. At the present time, Bruce and Teddy Bloom fill the machines whenever they run out.

House News

Bacon House is planning to sell stuffed bears. It hopes to install a Commons Room mobile store. It intends to set up a Commons Room library and coffee machine. It is discussing a house newspaper, smoking privileges, and a big rock 'n' roll concert next spring.

Bacon House officers were elected recently. Barry Tatelman is the House president, Marty Weiss its vice-president, Evelyn Hartel its secretary, and Mike Schwartz its treasurer.

Barry House is also making plans. It hopes to get back its candy machine by convincing Mr. Mansom P. Hall, Barry House Housemaster, that students will throw away all candy wrappers. The Council has set up a new committee, the Civics Commission, whose first job will be helping to clean up the school grounds. Billy Hayes is in charge of the committee.

In the future, selected Barry House students will serve as procters in study halls instead of teachers. These students will have the responsibility to report students who do not come to their scheduled study hall.

The Beals House, headed by Jeff Hyman, held an X-block dance Thursday, Nov. 9. The purpose of the dance was to help Beals House members get to know each other better.

Senior Supper

All seniors are invited to throw sponges at teachers, to toss money at monkey grinders, to devour cotton candy and popcorn, to dance, and to hear music — all for $2.75. The annual senior supper, which will be held Saturday night, December 9, from 6:30-11:30, provides such entertainment. Tickets are now on sale.

This year, the senior class committee decided to invite the entire faculty, rather than a selected few who have to pay their way. "The teachers deserve it," said Elaine Horn, senior class vice-president.

The theme of the supper is "Sergeant Pepper's Senior Supper Circus." This title was chosen by the senior class itself in a ballot given to the students. The supper is going to be run like a carnival and will be held in the gym.

The activity will begin with supper — an "all you can eat affair." The planned menu is submarines, pizza, beverage, ice cream and pastry.

In the middle of the gym floor, a stage will be set up, where three different bands will play. The first, the "Art of Lovin" is just a listening band. They have previously played at the Unicorn and the Club 47 and in December are making a Columbia record. The Newton High members are Sandy Winslow, Gail Wineck, and Barry Tattleman.

The other two bands, "The Fifth Amendment" and "The Purple Haze" are dancing bands. Jay Seltzer is the only Newton High member of "The Fifth Amendment" and Bert Evans and Chuck Casavant are two members of "The Purple Haze" from NHS.

In addition to music and dancing, eight to ten skits will be performed at the supper. These skits, made up and acted out by members of the senior class, will each last about ten minutes, the limit being fifteen. There is a slight possibility that the faculty will also perform a few skits.

The Senior Class Committee is presently looking for a Hurdy Gurdy. Providing they find someone, all the tossed money will go to some charity. The senior class will vote on which one.

There will also be sponge throwing, and zany picture taking at the supper.

The Senior Class Committee wants the event to be informal, unify the class, and provide a diversity of activities. The money that has been earned from selling senior class jewelry and ski caps will help finance the supper.

The chairman of the entertainment committee for the class supper is Marian Cooper. The band chairman is Alan Fishman, the skit chairman Richard Champa and the publicity chairmen Tarar Shapiro and Roni Sherman.

Patty Gordon is in charge of the food, Rozanne Marcus of the door prizes, Neil Silberman of the program committee and Vickie Siegle of decorations. Elaine Horn and Sue Frank are responsible for selling the tickets.

Mrs. Sally Martin and Mrs. Ruth Levine are the faculty advisors.

Thanksgiving Morning

It rained Wednesday, November 22. There was no rally. The band did not play.

It rained Thanksgiving morning. The Tiger Band played in spite of the wet, muddy field and the damp, drenching cold.

The Newton High Tiger Band, composed of about seventy members, had intended to do a pre-game show. Officials, fearing the band members would wreck the already imperfect field, forbade its use. But the band was not daunted, and played musical numbers in the end zone.

The band then went to the stands, intending to sit down. However, the seats were completely drenched, so they chose to remain standing.

When half time arrived, the band was again instructed not to use the muddy playing field. Instead, they decided to perform their half time show on the sidelines.

Their show was entitled "Day of the Tiger." Because of the inclement weather, the band could not go into their formations. They had intended to spell Esso, while playing "Tiger Rag", to make the formation of a tiger paw, to spell out tiger, and to form the shape of a champagne bottle, filled with orange and black balloons. At the end of the last song, "Auld Lang Syne," the helium-filled balloons were to fly into the air.

The Tiger Band, clustering together on the side lines, played all the intended songs and threw the balloons up into the air.

At 6:30 Thursday morning, breakfasts for band members were held. The sophomore breakfast was held at Mary Ada Morris's house, the junior breakfast at Julie Morse's house, and the senior breakfast at Charlie Levi's house.

The breakfast ended at 7:30 at which time the students were due at the school for a practice drill. At 7:30, it was not raining.

Rally Committee

The Rally Committee, headed by Donna Ross, coordinates the cheerleaders, majorettes, and Tiger Band for all the rallies and half time shows. During the football season, the Rally Committee has organized a rally every Friday, except when inclement weather prevented it. At each rally, the committee presented a two or three minute skit.

At the Thanksgiving Day game, the Rally Committee put on an Indian-Pilgrim skit Throughout the football season they have sold candy at home games, and have sold shakers and buttons in the cafeteria. They have also put up posters encouraging the students to attend the games.

For the rest of the year, the Rally Committee will put up posters of the basketball, and later of the baseball schedule and will continue to sell candy at home games. However, their main task is over after the football season.

Newton High Music

Seven Newton High students were selected for the 1968 Northeast District chorus. The chorus is composed of high school students from Middlesex and Essex counties.

Lindsey Henes, Joanne Barres, Steven Perles, Barbara Case, Sue Hurray, Mary Jo Carr, and Cliff Orent are those NHSers chosen. Mary Jo and Cliff have been selected to audition for the all state chorus.

The Music Assembly, held November 14, consisted of selections performed by the Madrigals, the A-Capella classes, and the Girls Chorus. The assembly was directed by Miss Geraldine Seaver.

Airport Invasion

Thirty members of the band, armed with their instruments, presented themselves at Logan Airport Wednesday, November 22. They were surprising Peter Cobb, their former band director, who was coming home from Chicago. Mr. Cobb is working for a doctorate of school administration at the University of Chicago and is assistant principal of the University High School.

When the thirty students arrived at the right gate, they pleaded with the gate watcher to let them wait outside. The man told them that if they were a good band, he would so allow them. So, in the middle of the airport terminal, the band members clustered together and played "Georgie Girl."

When they were finished everyone around applauded. The gate watcher had no choice but to let them out.

As soon as the plane landed and the plane door opened, the band members began playing "The NHS Victory Song," then "Mame." Mr. Cobb, completely surprised and overwhelmed, to say the least, was picked up and carried into the terminal. Onlookers just sat and wondered.

BRUSSELS (UPI)—Belgian paper mills produced 544,000 tons in 1966, an increase of nearly 7 per cent over the $10,000 tons in 1965. Exports rose by 13 per cent, totaling 249,000 tons worth 4.4 billion francs ($88 million), against 3.7 billion francs ($74 million) in 1965.

South Shore Plaza Decorated For Holidays

Beginning now and continuing through Christmas at the South Shore Plaza Mall, the Merchants' Association is sponsoring the most colorful and exciting Christmas display that has ever been at the Plaza.

The Mall is lighted with thousands of glittery lights on hundreds of specially erected Christmas trees. Every store is colorfully decorated to add to the traditional excitement of Christmas shopping. Live reindeer will be on display throughout the holiday season.

Possibly the most exciting exhibit on the entire Mall is the special Spirit of Christmas display of costumed figures built by Mrs. Walter Snow of Randolph. This display has become famous throughout the South Shore.

The South Shore Plaza Mall and stores will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. from now until Christmas.

Volunteer Firemen Help Limit Insurance Rates

By LEROY POPE
UPI Financial Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Did you ever wonder when you saw a fire truck soaring along the highway with siren screaming in a rural community if the volunteers really could be assembled rapidly enough to put out the fire?

In some very small communities the fire station is actually unattended most of the time, yet the fire insurance companies say the volunteer forces in rural areas and small towns have a remarkably good record in quenching blazes and keeping insurance rates at reasonable levels in their communities.

Everybody can see the modern firehouse and fire truck paid for partly from tax funds and partly from the proceeds of the firemen's fair.

But the volunteer fire department is equally dependent on a wide variety of ultra-modern specialized telephone systems that "hitch hike" on regular residential and business phone lines.

Many of these systems are made by General Telephone & Electronics Corp. and its subsidiary, Automatic Electric Co. of Northlake, Ill. According to Vice President James J. Clerkin, Jr., General Telephone has installed about 500 of these systems across the country.

As a result, volunteer firemen in such towns as Lebanon, Ky., Clinton, Ill. or Ontario, Calif., no longer are dependent on hearing the coded blasts of the raucous signal horn atop the fire station miles away.

They get the alarm in their homes and offices at the same time that it reaches the dispatcher or the electromechanical monitoring device at the firehouse. In Lebanon, Ky., for example, when the firehouse dispatcher gets an alarm, he lifts the receiver on a special phone and instantly the home and office telephones of every volunteer fireman in Lebanon ring. If a fireman's telephone is busy, a special buzzer warns the parties to hang up at once, then the firemen get the address of the blaze by instantaneous conference call.

Clerkin said the system cut the assembly time for Lebanon's firefighters from an average of 15 minutes to two minutes.

In Clinton, Ill., the dispatcher reads the alarm into a tape recording device which automatically calls all the firemen's homes and offices simultaneously and gives them the location of the fire.

A more elaborate system at Ontario, Calif., links not only the firemen's homes and offices but alarm boxes on the streets and roads with the fire house dispatcher and an automatic call recording system.

For double check, this system makes both a voice tape recording and the dispatcher's typed tape of the time and place of the alarm.

An electric map automatically pinpoints by flashing lights the location from which the alarm is coming so the dispatcher can instantly choose the fastest route for sending fire engines to fight the blaze.

A device called the electronic secretary can be added to the system to keep automatically giving recorded instructions to firemen who miss the original alarm but call in to the station for instructions.

LEE LOUMOS

Lee Loumos Is Elected Prexy Of Buying Co-Op

At a recent annual meeting of Key Cooperative of Boston Inc., Mr. Lee Loumos was elected president of the buying co-op which, with its affiliates, has a combined buying power of over 100 independent retail TV and appliance stores.

Lee Loumos is a graduate of Harvard, 1934, receiving an A.B. in economics and government. He was general manager of Venus Shoe Mfg. Co., Auburn, Me., until shortly after Pearl Harbor was attacked. His World War II service was with the U. S. Coast Guard, first on convoy escort duty, then as head of the Coast Guard base on Antigua, B.W.I., and ended as commanding officer of LST 769 which distinguished itself in the Okinawa campaign (a sad memory is taking famed war correspondent Ernie Pyle to Iheya Shima where he was fatally wounded.)

He has been operating Lee Loumos, TV & Appliance since 1947. He is married to the former Ellie Nicos-Sphaellos, and they have three sons, Gregory, 21, Stephan, 19, and Michael, 17.

Mr. Loumos, on his election to the Key presidency, said he is dedicated to the principal that the sophisticated merchandise he sells is most properly sold through specialty stores, not larger impersonal non-servicing department or chain stores. Personalized service has been the bulwark of the independent, but to be price-competitive with the giants the independent's future is in cooperative buying.

Rezzuti Goes Wild . . .

Lions Chew Oliver Ames In Turkey Tilt, 28-8

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

The Newton South football Lions rolled over Oliver Ames, 28-8, in the first Thanksgiving encounter ever between the two clubs, as junior quarterback Tommy Rezzuti went wild. Rezzuti ran for two touchdowns, passed for two, and ran for a conversion, accounting for all but two of the Lion points. The victory left the Lions with a 7-2 mark for the season.

The Lions piled up a 20-0 intermission lead as Rezzuti bolted around end in the first period for six points, burst through the middle from the seven, followed it with his own conversion, and lofted a 19 yard pass into the waiting arms of senior end George McKinny to engineer the offensive out-burst.

The Lions cooled off somewhat in the second half, but still managed to score another TD, as Rezzuti hit end McKinny with his second scoring pass of the morning, this time, from 25 yards out, to make the score read 26-0 in the third period. Seconds later fullback Dan Mendelson bulled over from the two, to make the conversion good.

Oliver Ames averted a shutout in the closing moments of the fourth quarter as quarterback Wayne Casey slipped over from the one, then followed it with a two-yard conversion run to tally all of the Amesmen's points.

The Lions finished with a 7-2 mark and a ninth place ranking in Class B, their best showing since 1965 when South ended with an 8-1 slate and a fifth place rating in Class B.

In almost the same breath as the Lion football season was being concluded, tryouts and practice began November 27 for two winter sports teams.

The Lion cagers are approaching the coming season with great optimism. Four lettermen return and five other players having varsity experience are expected to play full-time.

The four lettermen, center, Ken Issacs, captain-forward Bob Levine, and guards Lee Casty and Paul Brissette were all at least part-time starters for the last year's 6-14 team. However, sorely missed will be former Captain, Steve Cooper, perhaps the greatest player in Lion history, who takes with him a 16.7 point average, and Rick Ginsberg, who clicked for a 10.8 average last winter.

Though these men will be hard to replace, Coach Warren Bechtold has a string of candidates who will attempt to fill the shoes of the departed stars. Ready to move into varsity competition are center-forward Cliff Greene, forwards Al Berkowitz and Skip Novick, and guards Stu Silverman and Joe Brodsky.

Coach Bechtold will most likely round out his squad with additions from last year's strong junior varsity. Junior guard Kenny Stuart and senior front-courtmen Herb Snyder and Bob Saltzberg will probably stick.

One thing the Lions will have this season that they have lacked in recent years is height in the frontcourt. Issacs, 6'5", Greene 6'2", Berkowitz, 6'2", Snyder, 6'2" and Novick 6', (who is a real jumper) should provide the Lions with more than adequate board strength. However, the guards are short, all being under six feet. (Casty and Brissette are 5'9" and 5'8", respectively.) Regardless, the Lions should definitely improve over last season's eighth place Suburban League finish.

The Newton South indoor trackmen approach the coming season with high hopes, but a lot of question marks. The Lion hopes are pinned on the underclassmen. The success of these sophomores and juniors will determine whether the Lion season is successful or not.

Returning from last year's squad are only four lettermen. Record-breaking junior high jumper Nick Parnell, senior two-miler Jeff Davis, senior miler Dave Whitey, just off his record-breaking Cross-country season, and captain Stan Dolberg, who last season set school marks in the 600 and 1000 yard runs, are the bright spots for the Lions.

The Lions should be exceptionally strong in the distance runs with Davis and Whitney coming off their finest Cross-country seasons and juniors Bruce Young (two-mile), and Henry Ehrlich (mile) to aide them. If senior Mike Donnelly, junior Lew Freedman, and soph. Steve Sahl (still more C-c men), come through in the 1000, Dolber will be able to concentrate solely on his better event, the 600. Soph. Dave Glaser should back up Dolberg.

While South will be strong in the distance runs, they will be weak in the sprints. Juniors Bruce Kopelman and Robin Hirsch are solid in the 300 and Or 50, with junior Jimmy Shulman backing them up, but after them, the situation is serious. Spring trackmen, Bruce Tofias and George Tsiumus, who have just completed the football season, as yet are undecided as to whether or not they are coming out. Both could be used.

The Lions face a rough schedule, meeting Brockton (New England Cross-country champions) and Randolph among others, but if the underclassmen come through, there will be some joy in the Lions den this winter.

Urban-Suburban Subjects

By Dorothy Ingram

The holly and mistletoe season has arrived — subways and city streets are jammed with Christmas shoppers and suburbia has turned on the Christmas lights as a reminder to shop early and shop locally. For some, the prospects of bucking traffic and pedestrian crowds is just too much. Here are a few suggestions that might solve many weary hours of shopping and add a fresh note to those on your Christmas list.

Memberships in various institutions make rather unusual gifts — ones that will be enjoyed for an entire year. The Museum of Science, Boston, has family memberships available at $15.00, single memberships are $5.00. This entitles the holder to free admission to the Museum, thus making Hayden Planetarium shows available at a reduced rate. There is one of the best science libraries in the country for the use of members with borrowing privileges and greatly reduced rates are offered for the many science courses offered for children as young as five years old.

The Museum Gift Shop has books, games, unusual jewelry, instruments, experimental equipment, rock and mineral collections, etc., and members are able to take advantage of discounts at certain times of the year. There is also a rather posh cafeteria on one of the upper floors where one can lunch while enjoying a sweeping view up the Charles River through the large plate-glass windows. For $1.50 membership in the Massachusetts Audubon Society a person is entitled to receive "The Curious Naturalist," a publication dealing with nature and it will be mailed directly to the member. Drumlin Farm is maintained by the Society in Lincoln and members enjoy special privileges there also.

For the thespian, subscriptions to various theatrical events are a wonderful, somewhat unique gift. There is Theatre Guild, for instance, and the Charles Street Playhouse. Boston Children's Theatre and the Charles also offer subscriptions for the young fry.

For the men, membership in the various health clubs, the University Club of Boston, the YMCA, etc., might make a very welcome gift. So many executives lament the fact that they don't get enough exercise and would probably get some more if given a gift such as this.

Wouldn't a course in figure skating or a family membership in a skating club — and there are many between the city and the suburbs — be rather unique for the young ladies in a family or for the entire household? Or how about a seasonal membership to a ski area such as the Blue Hills for one or all in a family.

Adults would perhaps enjoy a season's subscription to the Boston Symphony Open Rehearsals or the Boston University Celebrity Series. If these aren't suitable, a couple of tickets to any given performance would be equally welcome.

Fr the flower-lover or shut-in on your list, why not consider having a florist deliver a bouquet of cut flowers or an arrangement every now and then throughout the ensuing year. Perhaps a flowering or fruit-bearing indoor tree would bring months of cheer and could be delivered by the florist.

Milady might get a real thrill out of receiving a gift certificate from a hairstylist or wig salon and being able to select her own wiglet, wig or fall. Perhaps the young ladies would enjoy a gift certificate entitling them to "the works," including their first professional manicure — maybe even a new hair style.

For the men and boys — or or a sports-minded family — season tickets to Celtics or Bruin games or a few individual ones would be a marvelous gift and save much leg work iin these next few weeks.

Some of the banks have very fashionable checking accounts for the ladies with color - coordinated check books, checks and pens — in various textures as well as colors and styles. A first checking account might be a fun-gift, and a very grown-up one, for the teen who is mature enough to embark upon the financial road to adulthood.

Several restaurants and coffee shops offer olde currency gift certificates, as well as the traditional ones, which are always welcome no matter what the recipient's age . . . there's nothing quite like eating out and not having to pay for it! The beauty of these certificates is that they do not all have to be used on a meal. If a dining check is less than one of these certificates, the holder receives change — in cash — after the bill is deducted. (This takes care of tipping very nicely!)

Another marvelous family gift — for those who have fireplaces — is to have a load of firewood delivered a couple of weeks before Christmas. To include a Yule log is a wonderful added touch . . . and don't forget a little kindling.

Auburndale Bank Names Noble To Post Of Attorney

The appointment of William M. Noble, Jr., of West Newton, to the post of bank attorney has been announced by the officers and directors of the Auburndale Co-Operative Bank.

Mr. Noble will succeed Miss Alice Harris who has held this office for the past twenty years. A graduate of Portia Law School, Miss Harris began her career in the Boston offices of Spaulding, Baldwin and Shaw in 1923.

She became a member of the firm in 1948, at which time the name was changed to Spaulding, Shaw and Harris. Specializing in real estate law, Miss Harris took over the title work for the Newton Centre Savings Bank from Mr. Noble's grandfather, who was also an attorney..

She was appointed to the staff of the Auburndale Co-Operative Bank in 1948. Miss Harris will continue her valued association with the bank in an advisory capacity.

Mr. Noble is a native of Newton; educated in the Newton Schools; the University of Bridgeport; and Boston University Law School. A veteran of World War II, he has practiced in Newton since 1953. He is married and the father of three.

Man's Sixth Sense; It's Seen Working Overtime In U.S. Now

Increasing pressures in the present may have intensified man's interest in the future. But the phenomenon of aucurate prophecy dates back to Biblical times and man has always sought to know more than he can learn from his five senses. What his sixth sense is and some of the wonders it has performed are explained by a working newspaperwoman who has long had a keen interest in the subject.

By EDDI PARKER

Sales of Ouija boards in this country are running three times as high as they were a year ago. In 1966 sales jumped to six times the 1965 figure.

Does this prove something?

Besides proving that people are buying more ouija boards, it is an indication of the American's growing curiosity about his future. And he expects the ouija to satisfy this curiosity — or the fortune teller, the cards, the horoscope, or a medium.

Fortune tellers and mediums being in rather short supply (it is estimated that there are about 200 reliable mediums in this country today), the average person must rely most of the time on the horoscope, which is only as far from him as his evening newspaper or the nearest magazine stand.

One daily horoscope is syndicated to 200 newspapers across the country, with an estimated daily readership of over 10 million. Edward Wagner, editor of Horoscope Magazine, one of 29 astrological publications issued by Dell Publishing Company, says the interest in astrology has always been there, but until the last decade the magazines weren't.

Since 1960 Dell has given birth to 13 astrological publications. Its horoscope purse book had a circulation of 1½ million in 1961. Today it's 6 million.

Why the anxiety over tomorrow? Why the compulsion to take a peek?

Dr. Gilbert Holloway, a spiritualist and clairvoyant, says, "The world is full of problems, but few answers. But people can't live without answers, so they reach out for them. And they want to think the answers have come from a supernatural power, like the spirit of the Holy Ghost."

Dr. Holloway also contends in his book, "ESP and Your Super-Conscious," that every living being can find his own way into another world by developing his own ESP, a sixth sense. It is, he says, the last and greatest frontier open to man, the frontier of the inner mind, as yet untouched. He, like the Rev. Arthur Ford, probably the best known living medium, is an ordained minister.

The unlikely marriage of religion and extrasensory perception is really not so unlikely. Theory maintains that ESP is intimate contact with the infinite power of God. It is the hidden channel of the mind that allows mere mortals an insight into the Lord's wisdom and points out to them the road that lies ahead. The Rev. Ford says, "I have never known an insistent prayer who did not eventually experience ESP."

The Right Rev. James A. Pike, resigned Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of California, said recently that he believes he was in communication with his dead son at a televised seance in Toronto. The son, James Jr., committed suicide in February, 1966.

He also reveals in his book, "If This Be Heresy," that he has had many ESP experiences.

Extrasensory perception is a young science, but a science that has garnered enough respect to have earned the title of parapsychology.

If a man's psi — his superconscious mind, often referred to as "the sixth sense" — can be conquered and controlled, there is no limit to how far ESP can be developed for use in diplomacy, spy work, or crime detection.

It is not impossible to forsee the day when enemy missiles headed our way could be deflected through use of psychokinesis — moving of physical objects with the mind instead of physical force.

Russian scientists have already begun a crash program to investigate telepathy as a means of space communication.

ESP made its biggest splash in recent years when it became known that Washington seeress Jeane Dixon had predicted John Kennery's assassination as early as May 13, 1956. And a few days before Kennedy's fatal trip to Dallas, she mentioned that he would not return from Texas. She had seen death rocking in his chair.

So many coincidences have been pointed up between Kennedy's assassination and that of President Lincoln, that the question remains — is it coincidence or a design from some mystical power that governs the past, present and future, and one with which our contact is ESP?

Lincoln also was forewarned of his impending death. It came to him in a dream in which he said he saw a group of weeping women surrounding a casket in the East Room of the White House. When he inquired who had died, they answered, "It's the President, Assassinated." Days later he was dead.

Coincidence is a plausible enough explanation for some experiences, but some can be explained away by nothing but ESP.

Take the grandmother who awoke one night frightened by a dream in which she had seen her grandson smothering in his blankets. Would her son think her foolish if she phoned him in the middle of the night? She phoned anyway, and her son answered almost immediately. They had heard the baby who had, indeed, been smothering.

In some mysterious way, this grandmother, like Lincoln, like Mrs. Dixon, had received information from some source beyond the range of the ordinary five senses.

Dr. J. B. Rhine, who along with his wife, Dr. Louisa E. Rhine, developed the Parapsychology Laboratory at Duke University, introduced the term ESP (extrasensory perception) about the mid-'30's. He defined ESP as getting information from one's environment without the use of the sense organs.

"All puzzling incidents, even though they may seem to have hidden significance, don't involve ESP." Mrs. Rhine explains. "An ESP experience may be distinguished from others by two characteristics: First, it must bring the person some information, some message he did not have before, something that must check with reality; second, the information must not have been obtained, directly or indirectly, by any of the ordinary ways — that is, by the senses or by such mental processes as memory, reasoning, inferring or guessing."

The Rhines, while still students at University of Chicago over 40 years ago became intrigued by the idea that there might be an extra physical or spiritual element in man that would indicate whether there was life after death.

This line of thinking took them into what has become a life-long investigation of not orly life after death, but all related areas of ESP, such as telepathy, clairvoyancy, and precognition or prophecy.

Most common ESP experience is telepathy, the transmission of thoughts outside the normal means of communication Have you ever been thinking of someone when the phone rings and it's that person? Then you have the idea, although few of us are able to practice it as well as a Massachusetts couple.

The man commutes daily to work in the city. When he wants his wife to meet his evening train, he calls her mentally to tell her his arrival time. They are so well attuned to each other that she seldoms misses meeting him.

In clairvoyance, the information obtained comes from events or objects. Peter Kurkos, famed Dutch sensative (a term for those with developed ESP), now in this country, has the ability to touch objects and from them gain impressions about the object, where it has been, or who and where its owners are.

Jeane Dixon is capable of precognition or prophecy. Dr. Holloway, who has established the Christ Light Community in Deming, N. M., a 205-acre center for spiritual healing and metaphysical truth teaching, says, "To this mind (the super-conscious), all time is now and all space is here."

Simetimes ESP experiences come in the form of intuition. Take the case of the woman who had been vacationing with her family at a beach in the East. Walking back to their cottage one morning, she suddenly became unaccountably depressed and began crying.

She though maybe something had happened at her home in Evanston. She cried right into the afternoon, when a telegram arrived informing her that her brother had drowned that morning sailing in Lake Michigan.

Incidents similar to this one, phenomena becoming accepted as proof of the existence of psi, have been catalogued by the thousands by Dr. and Mrs. Rhine at Duke. Many are described by Mrs. Rhine in her book, "Hidden Channels of the Mind."

Most exciting side to ESP is prophecy, which has held a fascination for men since ancient times. Unusually accurate in his predictions (about 80 percent), and confident enough to make them public, is Dr. Holloway, who predicts by actually seeing and reading auras. An aura is a field of energy surrounding and permeating every being and object, and giving off color patterns, numbers, symbols, each with a meaning to the sensative reading them.

Supposedly, these fields of energy remain unaffected by death. When a soul takes off for the other world, the soul energies separate themselves from the physical body and accompany the soul on its journey.

In a private reading several months ago, Dr. Holloway said that he did not see President Johnson running for office in 1968. Instead, he saw Humphrey ascending to the Presidency much as Johnson did, not by assassination though, but because Johnson is in danger for reasons of health.

Asked again this fall, Holloway sticks by his statement that Johnson will not run in 1968. However, he did not reiterate the earlier prediction that Humphrey would take over.

Now we play the waiting game. As in most ESP, we must wait to see if any of it actually occurs. And even if it does, we're right back to the question—was it coincidence or ESP?

Holiday Trip Program Of Community Center Listed

The Newton Community Center announced today its Holiday Trip Program for children in Kindergarten through Grade 6, to be held over Christmas vacation period, December 26 through December 29. This program is designed to provide children with stimulating activities during their vacation days. The trips are tailored to the age and understanding of the children, and are aimed at satisfying the natural curiosity all children have for the world around them.

Half-day trips of the Boston area are divided into two sections: Section A, "Live and Stuffed Animals", will include children in Kindergarten through Grade 3. Trips for these children will take place on Tuesday, Dec. 26, at 9:30 a.m.-11:30 a.m. with a tour of the Animal Rescue League (including pet placement, stray ward, feeding and exercising area, movie, etc.), and on Thursday, Dec. 28, 9:30 a.m.-11:30 a.m. with a trip to Harvard University Museum of Comparative Zoology (including a 42-foot fossil "Sea Serpent," dinosaurs, rhinoceros, elephants, kangaroos, deer, whale skeletons, insects, fishes, reptiles.)

Section B will cover children in Grades 3 through 6, and will feature an examination of the food industry. On Tuesday, Dec. 26, from 12:45 p.m. to 3:00 p.m. children will tour Hood Milk Co., and will view a slide show of the process of milk from farm to plant, and an inside look at pasteurizers, homogenizers, miles of glass pipes carrying milk, cartoning, bottling and loading milk.

On Thursday, Dec. 28, these same children will look at the Continental Baking Co. (the largest bakery in the world). Here they will watch the making of bread, rolls and muffins, cakes, donuts and other novelties through machines designed for mixing, rising, baking, cooling, slicing and wrapping products, all automatically. Samples on both these trips are included, of course.

In addition to the half-day trips described above, there are two full-day trips planned for the youngsters. Section C covers children in Kindergarten through Grade 6 and looks into the "World of Science".

Children will tour the Museum of Science including a Hayden Planetarium Show, live animal shows and numerous exhibits. The Science Museum, located in downtown Boston, is a "see-and touch" Museum where children can steer their own ship, hear their own telephone voices, play tic-tac-toe with a computer, listen to a Talking Transparent Woman, etc. Children must bring lunch money for this trip, as lunch bags are not permitted in the museum. The date is Wed., Dec. 27, from 9:30 a.m.-3:00 p.m.

Section D introduced children to the "World of Politics and the Theatre". This tour is open to youngsters in Kindergarten through Grade 6. The day will begin with a tour of the State House, including the Hall of Flags, Legislative Chambers, Governor's Council and Office, etc. Children must bring their own lunch as there are no cafeteria facilities available.

If time permits the youngsters will also have an opportunity to view the store windows (animated) on Washington St., before the 2:30 matinee of THE GOLDEN GOOSE, performed by the CHILDREN'S THEATRE of Boston. Section D will meet on Friday, Dec. 29 from 10:30 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. for the activities mentioned above.

Groups are limited in size and registrations must be made before Dec. 20. Parents interested in having their children participate in this program should contact the Newton Community Center, 429 Cherry St., West Newton (244-2260) as early as possible.

The groups will be led and directed by Mrs. Murray Janower, Creative Art Director at the Community Center, and a resident of Newton.

"Affluence Keeps Us From Ourselves," Says Speaker

In a Thanksgiving address at Lasell's all-college chapel, Dr. Vincent C. DeBaun, president, said that he believes "the Pilgrim image endures because it speaks to a deep spiritual need within us as a people.'

He drew a sharp contrast between the feasts and the fasts marking the earliest Thanksgivings and the banquet tables, technological distractions and social ills associated with todays affluent Thanksgiving celebrations. "An affluence that keeps us from ourselves,' said Dr. De Baun.

"I think we are caught between two powerful forces," he said. "On the one hand the sham ethics of a consumer society that rains vulgarity upon us, even as it allures us with prospects of sensuous self-indulgence; and on the other hand, the appeal of all our longing for simplicity and unstudied goodness.

"By a trick of psychology, then, we ask the Pilgrims (as we see them in our national myth) to be our surrogates, to represent us, in effect to be us. For when the first Thanksgiving came to them, they had labored hard and desperately for it, in sickness and hunger and loneliness. In a sense, it was theirs by merit."

Dr. DeBaun stressed the importance of the individual's obligation to share . . . "to give not only of our substance, but of ourselves. The satisfactions are enormous," he said, "and never more so than when our gifts, of money or service, are pressed to the edge of sacrifice . . . The gift must involve work, effort, a reaching, thoughtfully considered and offered with a full heart."

At the conclusion of the chapel service, Miss Judith Yee, Brookline, president of the Lasell Community Club, presented a plaque to Miss Janet Diebold, Garden City, New York, for the prize winning arrangement by Haskell House of gifts of food for the Morgan Memorial. Miss Diebold is president of Haskell. The program was sponsored by the Lasell Community Club.

(UPI) — Electrocardiograms, coded electronically at the scene by a cardiac data acquisition console, can now be transmitted instantaneously from virtually any part of the world to a computer in America for analysis. This means that additional millions of sufferers from heart ailments, no matter where they live, can have, within minutes an analysis of the way that vital organ is functioning.

A key role in the Heart Disease Control Program of the United States Public Health Service is played by a device which is the brainchild of Dr. Cesar A. Caceres, director of the PHS Medical Systems Development Laboratory in Washington, D. C.

In 1960, Dr. Caceres, then an associate professor of medicine at George Washington University, and two colleagues began a study to investigate the possibility of fully automating the analysis of electrocardiograms.

Eventually the three medical scientists constructed a pilot model of an instrument to record electrocardiograms in an electronic code which could be transmitted over a telephone line to a distant computer for analysis in a matter of seconds.

Two Long Island electronics engineers, Henry Siegel and Herbert Adise, saw the potential in it and their company (Computer Instruments Corporation, of Hempstead) proceeded to manufacture it.

Earlier this year, the device was used in the first instantaneous transmission of vital medical information across an ocean, between France and the United States, as part of a joint effort of doctors in both countries.

Dr. Caceres calls automated electrocardiograph analysis "a giant step in the battle against heart disease, with its annual mortality rate in the United States of over 700,000."

U.S.S. Texas Made History

HOUSTON (UPI) — When airplanes were rickety and every pilot a hero, an imposing, big battlewagon played a part in aerial warfare history.

In 1919, the Battleship Texas became the first vessel to have a plane launched from her deck. In later years, the Texas was fitted with heavier armanent and became a floating fortress. She saw action in both world wars.

Now, the Texas is owned by the state whose name she bears, and she is a floating tourist attraction, berthed near the San Jacinto Battleground — of a much earlier war — southeast of Houston. Youngsters sight down her guns toward the Houston Ship Channel and tour her nooks and crannies.

Feet Hurt? No Wonder

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A U. S. Labor Department report shows American industry loses $100,000,000 annually from absenteeism due to foot disorders.

The average person walks 65,000 miles in his lifetime, yet he "abuses or neglects his feet outrageously," says Leo N. Liss, clinical professor of podiatry at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco.

The professor continues, "The woman with varicose veins worsens her condition by squeezing into stylish, too-tight shoes and performing bathroom surgery on her corns. The man who develops redness, itching and cracking of the feet because of poor blood circulation, blithely ignores his condition.

"However, a neglected infection of a foot may turn gangrenous and result in the loss of a limb," Lisa warns.

Carpet Color Trends

HIGH POINT, N. C. (UPI) — Look for new blues and browns to move into style in the carpet world. The forecast comes from the director of style and design for one major manufacturer (Lees). Harold Erich Jung, the forecaster, said "browns . . . have a hint of the 30's about them . . . make an excellent foil for the lighter wood finishes." New blues are clear, medium tones somewhere between pastel and a deep sapphire.

Big turkeys are a good buy, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Not only do they usually sell for a few cents less per pound than the smaller ones, but the bigger ones also have a larger proportion of meat to bone.

Style Standouts At Florida Bash

By WALTER LOGAN

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) —Irving Cowan, the youthful hotel tycoon and industralist, has a reputation for taking the lead in men's wear innovations so when we were invited down for his little $100,000 party for Sheila MacRae and her new husband, Ronnie Wayne, we jumped at the chance.

The splendor of his evening wear for the black tie party was eclipsed only by the decorations, on such a lavish scale that comedian Art Carney took one look and muttered something about the beginning of the fall of the Roman Empire.

There were 3,500 giant chrysanthemums around the walls and on the tables, the walls were banked with miles of philodendrons and illuminated fountains, there were mirrors everywhere, three 12-foot wide crystal chandeliers and four immense torcheres with a wingspan of about six feet. There also was a 100-foot long bar.

Beneath the center chandelier was the dance floor and at the corners beneath the torcheres were eight ballerinas posing in classic tutus. The highlight, perhaps, were two statuesque redheads who posed on pedestals beneath the other two chandeliers. They wore gold lame bikinis.

It was a sort of a delayed wedding reception for Miss MacRae and Wayne, who is one of the producers of the Jackie Gleason show, so Cowan and his beautiful wife provided a five-foot high wedding cake driven in by two black-tied men riding a golf cart.

The 350 guests were assembled in the French Regency Room of the Diplomat Hotel, of which Cowan is president. He also has interests in two other hotels in Miami Beach and five in Europe. Other holdings include apartment houses, real estate, a motion picture company and the largest orange grove in the United States.

South Florida's most prominent cafe society families were present with many of the entertainment world's top stars. Most wore conservative black tuxedoes with white shirts in various degrees of fanciness (ruffles, etc.) and only a few colored shirts or jackets.

The Exceptionals

Cowan was a standout. His dinner jacket and trousers were in maroon mohair by Hal Martin of California with maroon velvet lapels, single berasted, and with maroon velvet edging on the double-breasted, and with maroon pants. Black patent leather dancing pumps.

And with it he wore a white turtleneck sweater he had picked up in Switzerland—a wide wale rib in silk which glittered with silver metallic threads.

Tony Randall was another standout in a neatly tailored white wool and silk Eisenhower-type mess jacket whipped up by Reginald Pitassy of Saks Fifth Avenue, New York. He had toyed briefly with the thought of wearing a white ruffled Mexican wedding shirt by Mr. Alfred of New York who added a fake black tie but decided the jacket was warmer.

The only other white dinner jacket was worn by Charles Evans, described as a "socially prominent investor." He turned up in one of Pierre Cardin's double-breasted white wide wale corduroy jackets.

Another standout in the crowd was Harold Chalef, a hairdresser who flew in from Beverly Hills, Calif., to do Mrs. Cowan's hair. He wore a white turtleneck to which he had sewn two black satin buttons on the left side "to give it a Russian effect." he also wore a long strand of jet and coral beads he said he had taken from his 18-year-old son who had been a hippy but reformed. There were two sets, he said, but singer Billy Daniel took the other. With the turtleneck Chalef wore a brocade jacket and shoes with Cuban heels and big silver buckles. To get the buckles, he said, he bought a pair of women's shoes, took the buckles and threw the shoes away.

Chalef pointed to Mrs. Cowan, a beauty whose black hair was fixed in a pixie-like Grecian curl effect. She was wearing a floor length red cut brocade coat dress with a jeweled neck and sable cuffs by Rentner. Alongside her in the reception line was Miss MacRae who, according to an informant, was wearing a scooped neck white lace original by Sara Fredericks.

Wayne was relatively subdued in a black dinner jacket worn with the customary black bow tie. Jim Kimberley of Palm Beach and the Kleenex fortune wore a white ruched shirt he said he picked up "somewhere on the Strip" in Hollywood and a gold earring in his left ear, a souvenir of his navy days. Gleason was in a red silk dinner jacket.

Chain Saws Go To War

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Army engineers in Vietnam are using chain saws for quick clearing of jungle sites for protective bunkers.

Usually associated with timber harvesting, the power saws are being found particularly helpful in clearing tough bamboo and teakwood and, because they are gas-powered and portable, can be used in Industries, Inc., cutting chain remote areas, reports Omark producer.

Gov't. Housing Department Helps Save Historic Sites

By JOHN PIERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government is helping save some of the nation's most historic sites. And it's turning some of them into parks, so that more people can enjoy them.

Fifteen communities across the country received grants totaling nearly $1.5 million during fiscal 1967. Congress has authorized the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to pay up to 50 per cent of the cost of acquiring and developing historic sites.

The largest single grant in the past fiscal year, $281,375, went to Mobile, Ala. HUD is helping Mobile landscape and improve the "Spanish Plaza" in the East Church Street renewal area. The idea is to use fountains, monuments, recreation areas and a collection of artifacts and art to recapture the city's early Spanish history.

The smallest grant, $10,000, went to the Borough of Shillington in Berks County, Pa. Shillington will use the money to buy land on which stands a stone farmhouse where Thomas Mifflin, Pennsylvania's first governor, once lived. Twenty-three acres of wooded park will be preserved. There will be picnic areas, playgrounds and hiking and bridle paths.

Other grants for historic preservation included:

—Mill Brook Valley near Concord, Mass., near some of the battlegrounds of the Revolutionary War. A grant of $71,225 will help the Concord Conservation Commission preserve the 72-acre site in its natural state for hiking, birdwatching and nature study.

Frankfort, Ky. received $64,715 to preserve the site of Civil War fortifications on Fort Hill. The steep ground will be used for hiking, riding and nature study trails. The level land will have playgrounds.

—Magnolia Mount plantation in Baton Rouge, La. HUD gave $83,490 to landscape and develop eight acres of land surrounding this estate which was once occupied by Achille Murat Prince of Naples and Napoleon's nephew. The house will be restored and used as a museum.

—Brooks Island, offshore of Richmond, Cal. is the last undeveloped land in San Francisco Bay. It contains Indian mounds and other evidence of pre-Columbian culture as well as many plants representing the original vegetation of the Bay area. The island was to have been used as bay fill.

HUD gave the East Bay Regional Park District $165,000 to help save it for archeological students and botanists. It will also be developed for boaters, hikers, fishers, picknickers and bicyclists.

Plastic Gas Tanks

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — More and more trucks turned out by General Motors Corp. this year will have plastic gas tanks. Safety experts at GM say the plastic approach is better since the polyethelene material is highly resistant to shock in accidents. The tanks tend to bend inward and absorb the shock rather than rupture and spill gas.

In addition, GM says, the tanks are 21 pounds lighter and can be molded into any shape to fit into previously unused chassis space.

This Week's Best Buys

Courtesy of Massachusetts Department of Agriculture

No less than five different apple varieties are featured on this week's "best buys" in native produce announced by the Massachusetts Department Of Agriculture: McIntosh, Cortland, Red and Golden Delicious and Baldwin apples.

The Bay State's greenhouse industry, now encompassing over 10 million square feet of glass-grown crops, is sending an abundance of vine-ripened tomatoes to market at attractive prices, as well as fresh native watercress, prized for color and flavor accents in sups, meats and salads.

Whole fresh cranberries, parsnips, carrots, turnips, buttercup and butternut squash, DesMoines and Blue Hubbard squash are all plentiful and low-priced. On dairy counters, extra large and large eggs are the biggest money-savers, in that order.

To the many ways that good cooks are featuring apples to whet their families' appetities may now be added "Beacon Street Apple Sticks":

Sift 1½ cups cake flour 3 tsps baking powder, ¾ tspn salt, ¼ cup cornstarch. Cut in 1 tbspn grated sharp cheese, tbspns butter. Blend in½ cup milk 1½ cups diced apples. Knead on well-floured board, then roll sticks ¼" thick, cut to finger lengths 1" wide. Fry (deep-fat) at 375 for 5 mins. Drain, roll in ½ cup sugar and ¼ tspn cinnamon. Makes 18 luscious sticks.

Today's Agri-Fact: Nat Tilden reports Mass. far out in front as No. 1 cranberry producer, accounting for nearly ½ world's supply. No. 2 Wisconsin picks the berries with machines in water-flooded bogs; we pick with machines on dry bogs, lose berries thru crushing. We may switch to water harvesting, which gets almost 100% of the fruit intact.

German 2-TV Homes

COLOGNE, Germany (UPI) — Economic Report from Germany, published by the Institute of German Industry, says although there are quite a number of two-car families in West Germany, there are many more two-television set households.

In 1966, one domestic buyer in 10 was providing a second video set for his family. But two-thirds of the sets sold were for first-time buyers.

First Shipment Of Fords Arrive At Coveney Sales

The first shipment of 1968 Ford automobiles received since settlement of the two-month UAW-CIO strike, arrived this week at Coveney Ford Sales, Inc., 1716 Centre street, West Roxbury.

Warren Coveney, president of the dealership, said now that the three east coast assembly plants — Atlanta, Ga., Metuchen, N.J., and Mahwah, N.J., from which most of the cars in this area are received—have resumed operations, there will be a steady flow of the new models.

"It will take a few days to get the lines unraveled, but the cars are rolling again and that's what is important," Coveney said.

Although there had been only a small selection of 1968 cars available since the introduction in late September, the Dealership has continued to trade and sell used cars and provide service facilities for motorists. Coveney said his used car business had increased 43% in the past 30 days.

Coveney said he expected to receive new cars on a regular basis in the future and that he would be able to guarantee delivery on orders placed with his firm now that the strike has ended.

Hopeful News In Medicine

THERE was a time when the common, ordinary low back pain graduated into the more sophisticated diagnosis of a slipped disc. Very often patients made their own diagnosis of slipped disc without justification, mostly because it sounded so sporty.

Dr. Coleman

A slipped disc is a very definite dislocation of the protective pads in the spinal cord. In order to confirm this diagnosis special neurological examinations are necessary. A myelogram, a special technique of studying the spinal cord with contrasting dyes, is sometimes necessary to confirm the diagnosis. This procedure is troublesome and a substitute one may just have been discovered.

A thermogram is a painless way to measure the skin temperatures. It has been shown by this method that underlying disease can be recognized. Dr. Jack Edeiken, of the Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia, is employing the thermogram technique in an effort to uncover the presence of a herniated, or slipped, disc. Highly sensitive readings are taken showing warm and cool spots around the disc.

In a remarkable number of cases Dr. Edeiken has been able to pinpoint the exact trouble spot. The results compare favorably with the more difficult myelogram. The thermogram method can be performed in 10 minutes and spares the patient discomfort and long periods of waiting.

The threat of blindness from glaucoma is becoming less and less as the condition is being recognized early. This, in essence, is the secret of preventive medicine to preserve sight.

Every eye examination now includes a test that measures the pressure of the fluid within the eyeball. Any evidence of increased pressure, or glaucoma, is then treated with drugs and carefully watched to see its return to normal.

An important new contribution has been made by two British eye surgeons. They have devised a chart that shows the extent and severity of the glaucoma and later the benefit after treatment.

Dr. John Gloster and Dr. Walter Buchanan, at the Institute of Ophthalmology in London, are using an "electric punch board" for additional information on the early diagnosis of this condition.

Their test is an additional one to all of the many that are now available. When hidden glaucoma is flushed out of hiding by this and many other standard tests it insures the possibility that sight will be preserved even in the presence of this condition.

A new way to stop persistent hiccups was discovered by Dr. Mohamed R. Salem at the University of Chicago Medical School. He found that when a tiny rubber tube was passed through the nose into the mouth hiccups immediately stopped.

The exact reason why this method works by stimulating the pharynx, or the back of the throat, has not yet been explained. Those patients whom he has stopped from hiccuping are grateful and are not nearly as curious about how it works as they are about the fact that it does.

BEHIND THE SCENES in Hollywood

By HARRISON CARROLL

SEDUCTION IS MOST UNSEXY IN HISTORY

HOLLYWOOD — Hollywood movie themes become more daring by the minute!

At 20th Century-Fox, I watch George Axelrod shoot a scene for "The Feminine Mistake," where Anne Jackson, a frustrated Connecticut housewife, poses as a $100 call girl to seduce Walter Matthau, a drunken movie star, in a New York hotel room.

Anne Jackson

To add to the piquancy of this situation, Anne is the wife of Matthau's publicity man, Patrick O'Neal. Her husband is taking her for granted. She feels she has lost her feminine allure. When the husband remarks that he has to find a call girl for the movie star, she decides to take over the assignment.

The New York hotel room is a mess from a drunken party the night before. It is very crowded, too. Matthau has insisted on having a Hi Fi installed, also a full-size pool table.

As Anne comes in, he is suffering from a monumental hangover.

He is clad in pajama bottoms and a towel draped around his shoulders.

When Anne kisses him, he winces. One eye is puffed up with a sinus infection.

This probably is the most unsexy seduction in screen history. Anne leads Matthau to the bed, fluffs up the pillows, feeds him chicken soup.

What makes it all the more ironic, if you know the players, is that Anne and Walter are two of the town's most happily married people.

Anne has been wed for 18 years to actor Eli Wallach, who, presently, is in New York, baby-sitting with the kids. Walter has been married since 1959 to Carol Saroyan (his second wife).

After the shot, I ask Anne what she thinks of this assignment.

ANNE JACKSON MIGHT HAVE TO HIDE AWAY

"I may have to head for the hills," she laughs, "after this picture is released. I'm not at all sure that it is wise to establish sex emancipation for wives. But, after all, I am getting paid for playing this role."

Matthau just shrugs when I ask him why he was selected to play the drunken movie star.

"I can't imagine," he admits, "except that George has been kind to me ever since he saw me on Broadway in 1953 in a Dorothy Parker comedy, where I played a 20-year-old man with a mistress 20 years his senior. He told me a leading man didn't have to be pretty, and he thought that I could make it.

Axelrod is more specific.

"Matthau," he grins, "could play anything from a drunken movie star to a chimpanzee. He can play anything well except golf.

"Any actor can carry a gun and shoot people down but, when it comes to timing laughs, you need fine performers. Anne and Walter did an eight-page scene in one take without missing a word of dialogue, or a single nuance."

I ask him if he's not afraid of trouble with a picture that calls for a decent housewife, however frustrated, to convert herself into a $100 call girl.

"No," he says. "I didn't even have any trouble with the motion picture code authority. I expected 20 pages of squawks. Instead, they said it was a very funny script, just not to use dirty words.

"As for the public, I think it is every married woman's secret fantasy to have at least one extra-marital affair. And that they won't mind to see this fantasy enacted on the screen. Especially, it has a happy ending. In our picture, Matthau sends Anne back to her husband, a much wiser woman, realizing she must continue to believe in her feminine allure."

MARCH OF EVENTS

NEXT PRESIDENT MIGHT NOT CONTROL CONGRESS | SENATE SAFE FOR DEMS BUT NOT SO IN HOUSE

By HENRY CATHCART

Central Press Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—A disturbing fact that has been overlooked in most political speculation is that the man who is elected president in 1968 could have a congress that is at least partly controlled by the other party.

Because of the present top-heavy Democratic majority in the Senate and the fact that only a third of the Senate is elected to office each two years, it is nearly impossible for Republicans to gain control of that body, even should its presidential candidate score a landslide victory next year. Thus, a Republican president would most likely have a Republican-controlled House of Representatives and a Democratic-controlled Senate.

The Capitol

Split control possible

On the other hand, should President Johnson win re-election, it is likely the vagaries of Electoral College voting would be the cause of his victory, rather than the kind of popular plurality he received in 1964. In such an event, it is within the realm of possibility that the elections could produce a Republican-controlled House of Representatives, while the Democrats retain their lock on Senate control.

Of the above two possibilities, a split Congress in the event of a Republican presidential victory is far more likely, but a split Congress with a re-elected President Johnson cannot be ruled out completely.

From time to time in our political history, some theorists have extolled the virtues of diffused political control at the national level. The idea is that the party in control of the White House will, of necessity, have to compromise with the political opposition in order to obtain the essentials of its program from Congress.

While this has sometimes been true, many political observers believe the better way is for one party to be clearly in power, both in the executive and legislative branches, so responsibility can be firmly fixed for public judgment.

● FRIEND AND FOE—During ceremonies swearing in the new City Council established by the reorganization of the Washington, D.C., administration, President Johnson "told a little joke" on Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore. Morse was a leader in the Senate in bringing about the first major change in the Washington city administration in nearly 100 years.

Johnson recalled that when he was the Democratic leader in the Senate, Morse came to him, imparted his desire to switch political parties, and asked, if he did, would Johnson see that he was assigned to the District of Columbia Committee and Foreign Relations Committee.

LBJ Tells One on Morse

While reflecting that the assignment requests were rather odd, Johnson agreed to make them. Recalling Morse's work on the District Committee, Johnson said he always put the city's interests first and had done much to make it a decent place to live in.

Then the President added with a twinkle in his eye: "I hope he gets a little more time to spend on foreign relations so that he will be as good in that field."

Morse is one of the Senate's most outspoken opponents of the American military presence in Vietnam.

Fighting Clams

OCEAN SHORES, Wash. (UPI)—Ever see a clam that fights back? Well, the razor clam (Siliqua patula) does just. Long and slim with a slippery shell, the razor can feel the vibrations of an approaching shovel.

By extending a muscular "foot" from the bottom of its shell, the razor can pull itself deeper and deeper into the wet beach sand at a speed of about a foot a minute. Frequently, the razor can "outdistance" a digger.

THE PERFECT EXTRA COAT, especially for the woman who's had her fill of furs. Vera Maxwell designed both the print and the coat. It's an English Kempi tweed with a near-fur look.

"TOO REVEALING" was the decree of "Miss World" officials in London when "Miss Sweden," Eva Englander, 20, made this appearance. They banned the swimsuit.

Higher Enrollment In Assemblies Colleges

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI)—Enrollment in the nine Assemblies of God Bible and arts-sciences colleges showed a continued rise this fall, totaling 4,860, up 309, or 9.3 per cent over 1966. In the latter year, there was a 12.7 per cent gain. Individual colleges in the fall of 1967 showed enrollment increases ranging from 6.3 to '1.8 per cent.

New Eire-Wales Ferry Service

SWANSEA, Wales (UPI) — A $9.8 million project to operate a new passenger and freight ferry service between Cork, Ireland, and Swansea using the most modern and fastest type of this vessel in Europe, has been announced by the British and the Irish Steam Packet Company.

An order has been placed with a West German shipyard for a bow and stern loading ferry able to carry 220 vehicles and up to 1,200 passengers. The ship will have a service speed of 25 knots and will be able to cross the Irish Channel in 8½ hours. The service is scheduled to start in May, 1969.

To Aid Prisons

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI) —Assemblies of God churches throughout the nation are promoting a campaign to meet what they call "an urgent need for personnel for U.S. prisons."

The campaign seeks to attract interested, qualified members and friends to consider careers as prison administrators, teachers, chaplains, counselors, parole officers, athletic coaches, social workers and case workers. Another promotion will be ministries of local churches in nearby prisons to take care of the spiritual needs of imprisoned persons.

Ah, So! No, See!

That's what's happened to the 100-year-old lighthouse, one of Japan's oldest, on Jogashima Island, near Tokyo.

A new four-story hotel has risen in front of the lighthouse. At night, the light can't be discerned because of the lights of the hotel.

Authorities are planning to move the lighthouse to another part of the island.

TV Moves Boy To Eat Nails

OKAYAMA, Japan (UPI) —Municipal authorities here have urged parents to monitor the type of television programs they allow their children to watch.

The warning was brought on by the case of seven-year-old Koichi Higuchi.

Koichi ate a handful of nails after watching a television program featuring stunt men eating nails and glass. The nails were removed from Koichi's stomach in an hour-long operation.

Ringers

DETROIT (UPI) — Those rings from the tops of pull-open soft drink and beer cans may be a delight for the drinker; but they're a headache for the city.

In the last five months parking meter collectors have emptied the usual nickels and dimes from the long rows of meters — and have dumped out 20,000 of the rings as well. City officials say can manufacturers have promised a style change so that cans of the future will sport rings with only one use.

Santa Stranger To Some Lands

NEW YORK (UPI) — Santa Claus rules the Yuletide only in the United States and the British Isles.

Across the rest of the Christian world, Santa is unknown but his place is taken by other colorful Christmas figures. And they don't all come on Christmas Eve, either, reports the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

La Befana, the sweeper, is the good fairy of Italian children. On January 6th, the Eve of Epiphany, she knocks at each door with her broom, enters, and holds a candle close to each child's face, as she slips a toy under the pillow.

In Swedish homes on Christmas Eve, the Julbock, or Christmas goat, butts open the door. And while the children scatter and hide, he throws presents through the door.

The youngsters of Syria receive their gifts from the Gentle Camel. Legend goes that this little camel fell ill at the end of the exhausting trip to Bethlehem, and the Wise Men left him behind as a pet for the infant Jesus.

In Poland, children are visited by the Good Stars of heaven. The Mother Star is a lovely woman in white robe and veil, and the Father Star brings gifts to children who say their prayers and sing their hymns to his satisfaction. Christmas Eve itself is called the Festival of the Star.

Other children in other lands receive presents and blessings from the Three Wise Men and the Blessed Angels. Even the Christ Child is said to appear.

Sculpture from Junk

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A 22-foot high religious sculpture assembled from materials taken from a Brooklyn, N.Y., junk yard, has been offered to the City Art Museum. Museum director Charles E. Buckley said: "I'll think we'll take it.

The structure by Mark DiSuvero of New York, has been on display on the Museum lawn as part of works by contemporary American artists. It is named "Elohim Adonai," or "The Lord Our God." The sculpture, made of structural steel, utility poles and other such materials, is 30 feet in diameter and is intended for the outdoors.

Rabbi Joins Catholic Faculty

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Rabbi has been added to the faculty of St. John's University, largest Roman Catholic college in the East.

He is Rabbi Leonard W. Stern of New Hyde Park, N.Y., who will teach "Contemporary Judaism" to St. John's undergraduates beginning in February. Rabbi Stern, 40, was ordained in 1954.

Wardless Hospitals

NEW YORK (UPI) — The long lines of beds in wards of present day hospitals will disappear from modern institutions, according to Robert W. Murphy, director of hospital planning for the Catholic Medical Center of Brooklyn and Queens.

The Green Thumb

by GEORGE ABRAHAM

Florist's Hydrangea: The common greenhouse hydrangea is not hardy enough to be kept outdoors. You can outwit the cold weather by potting the plant and keeping it in the cellar during the winter. Apply just a tiny amount of water so it won't shrivel completely. Keep it in a fairly bright window and in spring when warm weather rolls around, set the plant outdoors where it will bloom freely for you. The cellar treatment prevents the buds from winter-killing.

Those of you who brought your azaleas in are reminded to keep the soil uniformly moistened at all times. Do not let the plant dry out. Your poinsettia needs a bright window now and a temperature of around 72 degrees. At night keep it in a cooler room, 65 to 70 degrees. Jerusalem cherry needs a bright window, a good supply of moisture and a room temperature of 72 degrees or so. Bud dropping is due to dry soils, hot dry rooms or poor drainage.

A Good Trick: A reader who harvested a big crop of hickory and walnuts writes: "Here's a good tip. After we have cracked the shell's on our hickory and walnuts, they are placed in a pan and put in an oven at slow heat. This keeps them from molding, brings out the flavor and makes it much easier to pick the meats out."

Green Thumb note: We appreciate this fine tip and hope more of our readers will feel free to send us their hints. Pass them along so we can help other gardeners.

Geraniums Again: If your geraniums are tall and gangly don't be afraid to cut them back at least half way. Take tip cuttings (about 4 inches long) and root them in moist sand, or just plain tap water. Have you ever tried growing geraniums from seed? There's a new strain which can be started from seed about late January and be in blossom by July. The seed germinates fast and easily. We feel many home gardeners will be resorting to geraniums started from seed.

Green Thumb Clinic: A reader writes: "Each year birds eat our cherries. I heard that if I plant a mulberry tree it will attract the birds and thus save our fruit. Is that true?"

Ans: Birds do like mulberries and will feast on them. You can plant the red mulberry (Morus rubra) or the White Mulberry (Morus alba). The white species is the one used in feeding silkworms. There are male and female trees. The plants are often dioecious, meaning that male (staminate) and female (pistillate) flowers are on separate trees. Very often you find both sexes on the same tree. The fruit of mulberry is edible, although somewhat flat and insipid. Birds love it, though. It's difficult to find varieties true to name. Usually a seedling from a parent tree will be good enough to dig up and plant. Caution: Don't plant mulberry too near the house as it can be messy.

Business Coexistence

LONDON (UPI) — An East-West business collaboration will have Italian Fiat cars rolling off an assembly line in Communist Poland with bodies fashioned from British dies. The Polish Trade Foreign Trade Corp., will make the cars under license from Fiat, and Britain's Vickers, Ltd., will provide the body dies.

Girl Talk About Home, Hubby, Family and Things

DOMESTIC DIARY

BY

ANNE MULLIN

Here it is again . . . the annual deluge of what-to-do-with-leftover-turkey recipes. Presumably housewives all over America are happy to read about exotic dishes made with scraps of turkey meat in such peculiar guise that no one will know what he is eating. I say presumably, because I'm not at all sure that housewives all over America really need recipes using leftover turkey.

I have a sneaking suspicion that other households than ours find no difficulty in consuming the turkey just as is. I mean there simply isn't what I'd call an honest-to-goodness surplus of meat on those bones. What there is in the way of pickings lasts for two or three joyous days as sheer yumminess, good to the last gnaw. There is no reason, in our opinion, to try to pretend that we don't have that delectable carcass. If we wanted turkey divan or turkey pancakes or turkey burgers we could have started out with a frozen turkey roll in the first place.

But the leftover accompaniments are a different thing altogether. I'd love to have some exotic recipes for camouflaging those. You know, all that squash and the onions and the wilted celery sticks and the dibble of turnip and that dabble of candied yam pie. And, let's face it, a little warmed over dressing goes a long way.

Children are a help, certainly, in acting as receptacles for all this passe nourishment. But they don't eat quite enough to make much of a dent when you come right down to it. They aren't exactly wild about squash even the first time around, and I wonder whether it might be easier to put their fourth day portions directly down the disposal instead of bothering to sneak them under the hamburger on the plates.

What I'd really love would be some suggestions for, say, whipped potato souffle or stuffing sausages or cranberry sauce spaghetti. Or, better yet, some truly adventurous project that would involve a clean sweep of the refrigerator and could turn into a feasible substitute for play dough. As a matter of fact, my six-year-old told me about some modelling compound that he wanted me to buy just the other day. I believe he said it was called glop, or gook. Buy? Heck, I just might go whip up a batch right now.

Oh, Mom, Got A Minute? . . .

The following statement was made by one of the featured speakers at a meeting of the American Psychiatric Association: "The homemaker's job of keeping house, raising children and making men happy . . . can be performed by a simple schizophrenic, by a high-grade moron, by a depressed person and by a severly anxious person." He stated further, earning a living, even at its minimum, is slightly more demanding."

To label the statement "nonsense" is insufficient. It is outright stupid! There is no more difficult job today than that of being a good mother and conscientious housewife. Between trying to make ends meet, disciplining her offspring, and running a home, a woman has to be made of sterling material.

As for "making a man happy," this in itself is a full-time job. Phooey to the author of such claptrap! We refer him to Abraham Lincoln, who wisely said, "When God made woman, He gave her the heavy end of the log to lift."

Keep a close watch these days, Mom, when any of the kids show symptoms of coming down ith a cold, because an influenza epidemic is expected to hit Massachusetts tris winter. Since influenza most easily transmitted during the early stages of the illness, any member of your family who looks as though he may be coming down with it should be isolated immediately.

Influenza is a very infectious disease caused by a virus and comes in four main types: A, B, C, D. Each type differs from the others, and oftentimes new strains develop.

It is the latter that are most likely to cause epidemics, for people have never had them before, nor have they had a chance to build up a natural degree of immunity against them.

This is what happened in 1957 when the so-called Asian flue swept across the world. It as caused by a new strain of Type A virus which first made its appearance in Asia.

Influenza attacks suddenly and its symptoms can be fever, chills, headache, sore throat, or aching limbs. Although the accompanying fever lasts from 1 to 5 days, the patient feels as exhausted as though he had been through a long, weakening illness.

No known medicine will cure influenza. The sulfa drugs, penicillin, or other antibiotics have no effect upon flu. They are usually administered in order to combat some of the complications which often follow a bout of the disease.

As soon as symptoms make themselves known, call your doctor and get the patient to bed. Even if the illness is merely the common cold, the sick person will recover sooner and be less likely to spread the virus to other members of the family.

Your physician can do much to make you comfortable and protect you from pneumonia or other dangerous complications. But the patient must co-operate. He must understand that he has a serious and highly communicable disease, and that for his own health and the physical well-being of the other members he should keep himself isolated and give his body a chance to fight the infection with every weapon it possesses . . .

Grist FOR THE Gals

ED O'KAY

It doesn't pay to give a husband too much rope—he might skip . . . If you are planning a trip abroad this year, by all means seek the services of a good travel agent. His job is to save you money, to help you use your vacation time wisely, and to assure you of a maximum of comfort, convenience and enjoyment while traveling. He is an expert on what is worth seeing, where you should buy, what to do and how much the entire trip should cost. Best of all, the fee for his services is a modest one, since a substantial part of his remuneration comes from commissions received from the transportation carriers and hotels rather than from you. He can save you time, money, headaches and frustration . . .

Francis Bacon said it: "The wonder of a single snowflake outweighs the wisdom of a million meteorologists." . . . Speaking of those little white rascals, nothing is more frail and innocuous than a tiny flake of snow, but when they unite—zowie! Remember what they did to our flow of traffic one evening a short while ago? . . .

Daffy definitions not found in your dictionary: Puppy love: something that often leads to a dog's life. Juvenile delinquent: a child behaving like an adult. Prune: a tuckered out plum. Red China: the chink in the Iron Curtain. Night club: an ash tray with music. Also a place that gets away with murder while the patrons face the charges . . .

Most of us find it impossible to explain the "beat generation", but sociologists think it represents a shift from active protest against the "Establishment" to a concentrated preoccupation with personal relations. In the good old days a radical would attempt to bring about a change in society legally, but the hippie doesn't seem to have this urge. He simply stands apart without standing for anything. All his concentration contributes to this feeling of apartness—his unkempt looks, rituals, dress, and language. That's what sociologists think about hippies, but what the latter think about sociologists is unprintable! . . .

Ain't-it-the-truth department: By the time a son is old enough to realize just how much he owes his parents, along comes a little eyeful that gets all the interest . . . Lines from the poet:

"His eager eyes look up at me,
He takes me by the hand
And leans his head against my arm
To make me understand.
Resistance would be foolish,
For he has me in his trap;
So I read him more of Superman
Before he takes his nap."

You gals who are "bargain happy" and cannot resist a sale might profit from an old German proverb: "She who buys what she doesn't need will soon need what she cannot buy." . . . It's a fact: One thing that can be said about a husband who forgets his wedding anniversary is this: evidently he is not a man given to brooding. Hah! . . .

Things we never knew until now: A pound of fish has as much food value as a pound of meat. It is against the law to mark an article "sterling silver" if it is not . . .

"And now," inquired the Sunday School teacher, "who can tell me where God lives?" One little hand shot up. "In our bathroom," replied its owner. "What makes you think that?" asked the puzzled instructor. "Because," continued the youngster, "'every morning my father pounds on the bathroom door and yells, 'Good Lord, are you still in there'?" . . . Thought for tomorrow: The danger in giving a man an inch is that he soon thinks he's a ruler.

Amy Vanderbilt's Etiquette

COMMON-SENSE, MODERN ADVICE

EATING MEAT

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: I am a student at the University of Southern Missippippi, majoring in home economics. We are being taught that meat is supposed to be scooped or shoveled up as are vegetables. I have always been under the impression that meat should be pricked by the tines of the fork. I have consulted your book but it doesn't specifically answer my question. I would greatly appreciate your answer to this.—N.C., Hattiesburg, Miss."

Meat that is cut vary small, for example hash, curries, chili, is scooped up with the fork. Meat that is cut with knife and fork is impaled with the fork tines down, then lifted to the mouth with the tines up or down.

In the European manner, which many Americans now use, pieces of meat are put in the mouth with the tines down, while the knife is retained in the right hand. When the American method is used and the knife is put down on the plate and the fork is transferred to the right hand, the tines of the fork are up. Either method is quite correct.

The American method tends to slow down eating but is considered odd abroad. Many Americans combine the two methods of eating, and you may suit yourself.

TEEN INVITATIONS

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: I am a 7th grade student. My teacher suggested I write to you about a problem. We have been getting invitations signed 'The Hostess.' My teacher said she was taught always to sign the person's name. Which is correct? Thank-you greatly.—J.S. Lolita, Texas."

Your teacher is right. The hostess must always sign her name.

I would like to give you a little correction. Do not hyphenate "thank you" in this case. You do so only when it is used as a noun, a "thank-you," or as an adjective, "a thank-you not."

Also, do not use "Thank you greatly" as a closing before your signature. On non-intimate social correspondence a girl your age would use "Sincerely," or perhaps "Cordially," to someone she dosen't know.

Always give the person to whom you address a letter a title, too. When you don't know if the woman is married or single, and you have only the first and last name, use "Miss" before it. Many writers like myself use their maiden names professionally as I do, thus I am "Miss Amy Vanderbilt."

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF CONTRIBUTIONS

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: Following my father's funeral, my mother received a notice from the Heart Fund stating that a donation had been made in his memory. She did not send a thank-you note to the donors. When I asked her why she hadn't done so, she said that as she had not made such a request in the obituary, a thank-you note was not necessary. What is the proper etiquette in a case like this?—Mrs. R.E., Ashbury Park, N.J."

Your mother should have acknowledged the gift to the Heart Fund even though she might have preferred that the donors send flowers instead.

Milady's Mental Isometrics

It's mostly English this time, and the questions are not too easy. But if you have kept up with your reading, you should do quite well. Here we go:

(1) The six letters in the word "chesty" can be rearranged to spell only one other word in the English language. What is that word?

(2) Are you observant enough to detect the common characteristic of these six words? Deft, first, sighing, calmness, canopy, stun.

(3) What is the only one-syllable word in the Bible whose pronunciation is changed when the first letter is capitalized?

(4) Here are the first three and last three letters of a common everyday word: und ——und. Can you fill in the correct middle five letters?

(5) What familiar five-letter word contains four personal pronouns, with the letters of each in their correct sequence?

(6) Ten seconds for this one: Which month of the year has the most letters in its spelling?

(7) What is the five-letter English word whose pronunciation remains unchanged by removing the last four letters? (Time limit: 30 seconds)

(8) Within thirty seconds name a four-letter word ending in the letters "eny".

(9) You'll need a pencil for this one: What is the difference between six dozen and half a dozen dozen?

(10) Take five apples from eleven apples and what have you got?

If you haven't done any advanced peeking, here are the answers.

(1) Scythe
(2) Each word contains three consecutive letters in their proper alphabetical order
(3) Job
(4) Underground
(5) Usher
(6) September
(7) Queque
(8) Deny
(9) 792
(10) Five apples, of course

Discuss It With Doc

Do you have a problem — one that seems insurmountable? Why not discuss it with Doc? Maybe it's not so big as you think or as heavy as it feels when viewed from a different perspective.

Dear Doc:

My husband's parents are wonderful people and we love them dearly, but they are making it difficult for us to control our child.

His grandparents have him completely spoiled. They give him just about every material thing a child could desire, accept his insolence without objection, and through their permissiveness and interference make it almost impossible for us to get him to obey.

Is it possible for us to change the trend of events without hurting their feelings or giving offense?

Kay

Yes, it is possible, I think, but you will need a wealth of gentle diplomacy to accomplish the desired results. When it comes to grandchildren, grandparents are more inclined to weigh with their hearts rather than with their heads, but their misguided love and unintentional interference with parental supervision frequently bring about the situation you describe.

You are going to need all the tact you can muster in order to prevent what might become a permanent family misunderstanding. Th word "you," in this sense, is used collectively. It means both you and your husband, but since they are his parents, he should be the one to introduce the subject, to exercise the diplomacy and to bring about the desired change.

The important thing is that you and your husband discuss the matter thoroughly, his method of approach, and that there is mutual agreement on what you are trying to accomplish.

Perhaps a good way to start is to have your husband point out to his parents how upset you and he become when your son disobeys his grandparents and treats them disrespectfully. He should try to get his parents to see that the boy will not change without their co-operation and assistance. Have your husband mention to his Mom and Dad in a congratulatory way how well they succeeded in rearing him, how they disciplined him for his transgressions, and how thankful he is today for their firmness and discipline.

Of course, if the gentle and objective approach is unsuccessful, you owe it to your son to take a firmer and more positive stand. After all, you are the ones who will have to live with him during the trying years of adolescnce.

Dear Doc:

We live in a duplex house and have been on very friendly terms with the folks next door for years. They are a childless, party-minded couple, and we have often in the past attended their parties.

In recent months these get-togethers have become quite noisy and disorderly. After we turned down a few invitations to attend, we have not received another since.

Our problem is this. These noisy parties last into the wee hours of the morning and are driving us crazy and depriving us of our sleep.

If we complain, we fear they will say it is a case of sour grapes. If we don't, we will continue to lose necessary rest, because both my husband and I leave for work at seven in the morning.

What do you suggest we do to stay on good terms with our neighbors and still get our much-needed rest?

Two in a Dilemma

There's an old saying, "If you can't beat them, join them." In this way you can lose your rest without losing your mind.

Seriously speaking, though, you don't say how frequently the parties occur, but from your letter I would assume they happen too often within reason.

If you are absolutely certain that subconsciously it is not a case of "sour grapes," it would seem that you can do one of two things — or both.

(2; Speak to your neighbors pleasantly and with tact. Point out to them how long the parties last, how noisy they have become, and how early in the morning you and your husband must leave for work. If they are an understanding couple, they will not take offense, especially if you stress the time you have to arise in order to get to your place of employment on time.

(2) If you are unsuccessful, the police are still in business. A noisy party that lasts into the early hours of the morning is a breach of the peace. If you have to seek the assistance of the law, try to get them to keep the identity of the complainer a secret, explaining that you like your neighbors and do not wish to create an armed camp next door. Policemen, despite what you might hear about them, are, on the whole, understanding and discreet. They know that your neighbors are entitled to their fun and that you are entitled to your rest — both with reason. Good luck.

Come, Let Us Reason Together

By DR. WILLIAM F. KNOX

"Mannerisms That Turn Your Partner Off"

In most marriage relationships there are annoying little mannerisms of which we continually hear "just drive me up a wall . . . I suppose I do things which bug him/her too . . . but I just can't stand him picking his nose . . . and then putting his fingers in his mouth . . ." You'd be amazed at the number of times I've heard that one.

Many men can't understand why their wives get cold and stand-offish near bedtime . . . "but he isn't clean . . . he doesn't bathe . . . the smell of sweat and beer just cause me to turn cold . . . I can't help it." You thought the one-bath-a-week pattern went out with the trolley car . . . but not with some persons . . . even with modern plumbing facilities. This is a real annoyance in some marriages.

One thing which really bugs a lot of men is sloppy housekeeping . . . especially if the man comes from a clean home . . . men seem to be able to excuse second-rate cooking, but can find no excuse for soiled diapers in the bathroom, nylons and panties dangling in his face from the shower rod, dirty sink, messy refrigerator, smelly garbage in the back hall, And frankly, I'm hard pressed to explain and justify these to a complaining husband.

Wives can't stand perpetual tardiness . . . it takes some real planning and managing to prepare the evening meal and have it timed for 6 o'clock, along with the dozens of other household duties . . . she can hold it for a few minutes . . . but with hungry children this "holding operation" has its limits and can become quite frustrating. Occasional unavoidable tardiness is understandable. When it happens repeatedly, there's something wrong . . . a phone call might have saved a lot of anxiety and misunderstanding.

Another annoyance . . . continual criticism . . . men call it nagging," women call it "yelling." It is a symptom of a deeper ailment than the thing nagged or yelled about . . . it is the symptom of hostility for some reason . . . and maybe you aren't the cause of it at all . . . some people are mad at themselves and take it out on the wife/husband, but it is just no good for enhancing the relationship.

There is a long list of annoying mannerisms . . . walking around in underwear . . . hair up in rollers . . . not closing the bathroom door when going to the toilet, or sitting in there reading for long periods . . . crazy driving . . . snoring . . . shoddy dress on the part of either.

A wife wants to be proud of her husband when they go out. He wants to find her as attractive as the secretaries he's seen all day, when he arrives home . . . and why not? . . . the four-letter words, especially when used in anger and accusation not only annoy . . . they may "turn you off."

Some men don't like mini-skirts on their wives . . . "don't want other men seeing that much of her legs" and "it isn't grown-up . . . its for kids." You can go on and add to the list . . . mannerisms which annoy you . . . mannerisms which annoy your partner.

When such annoying mannerisms persist they create walls of separation . . . they can even destroy the relationship . . . cause loss of personal esteem and mutual respect. The problem is two-fold . . . first poor communication. If we can't talk about little things which annoy, how can we work through big things . . . sickness and death . . . unemployment . . . children's maladjustments and their future education . . . differences in relation. (Maybe we need an article on these soon.)

I know a couple who love each other deeply who perdiodically ask if they are doing anything to annoy the other . . this is good . . . it prevents the build up of unnecessary walls. When people are too embarrassed to tell the partner that he/she should bathe more often, or that he/she dislikes his/her loud talk at parties . . . then, somehow the counselor has to unoffensively get this message across to the partner. Yes . . . these are small things . . . but small leaks can sink the boat.

The other part of the problem is just plain stubbornness . . . blind insistence on annoying mannerisms . . . "This is me . . . accept me as I am . . . I don't want to change . . . "A lot of old people are really "married bachelors" and married "old maids" . . . set in their ways with no giving at all. By the way, to love means to give. We must learn to bend . . . it hurts less than when we break.

Well, there's your mirror again . . . what are your mannerisms which are turning your partner off?

MOSTLY For MEN by CHUCK FLYNN

Maurice Shevlin of 2060 Parkside drive, Des Plaines, Ill., for many years enjoyed designation as one of the nation's top writers for the Chicago Tribune in the field of thoroughbred racing. At home, he is a remarkably fine chef and specializes in pasta dishes with a particularly zesty sauce.

Shevlin says he was first taught its production by a former St. Louis Cardinal outfielder, Ernie Orsatti, who was a close friend in Shevlin's early days as a baseball writer for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"Orsatti was not only an outstanding baseball player, but at the kitchen range he was something special," Shevlin recalls. "If memory serves, Ernie was with the Cardinals from about 1927 through the early 1930's."

Here is spaghetti sauce a la Orsatti.

Chop ½ pound bacon and in a skillet saute well with the bacon 2 medium-sized onions chopped, and 1 large green pepper chopped. Add 1 small can of mushroom stems and pieces and continue sauteing but do not overcook mushrooms. In a separate pan brown 2 pounds of good quality ground lean beef chuck. Reserve.

To the pan containing the onion, pepper, bacon, and mushrooms, add 2 large cans of whole tomatoes (I'd suggest the Italian pear-shaped) with their liquid and one 8-ounce can of tomato paste.

When all ingredients are blended and warmed through, add the browned ground beef and mix well, cutting the tomatoes with a spoon.

To the sauce mixture add the following spices: 1 small clove of garlic chopped, 1 teaspoon oregano, 1 teaspoon sweet basil, ¼ teaspoon thyme, 1 whole bay leaf, 1 tablespoon salt, ½ tablespoon black pepper, ½ tablespoon of chili powder, and 1½ to 2 cups water.

When sauce is cooking rapidly reduce heat and simmer for 4 hours, stirring occasionally and keeping covered until 15 minutes before ready for use. Skim off part of the liquid if desired for consistency.

Dutch Custom

Three Kings' Bread is a Dutch holiday custom honoring the Biblical Wise Men. Made of sugar-sweetened yeast dough, the top is scored, brushed with butter, and crowned with sugar, spice, and chopped nuts. It always is baked in round loaves. And always in each loaf is hidden one almond. Whoever gets the almond is proclaimed wise and, traditionally, must bake a new sugared round.
